Symington Reaffirms B-36 Faith, Hits Critics

Air Force Secretary Defends Strategic Atomic Bombing, Scores Admirals

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Air Force Secretary Symington yesterday reaffirmed his faith in the B-36 and strategic A-bombing and heatedly denounced their Navy critics.

Through day-long testimony before the House Armed Services Committee, he sharply attacked the admirals for spreading "untruths" and endangering security.

Belittling the testimony of naval airmen on the vulnerability of the giant bomber and worth of the A-bomb, he urged the committee to choose between their "inexperienced" views and those of top Air Force generals and civilian Defense chiefs.

"The fundamental question at issue," said Symington, "is control of the military by civilians and therefore the preservation of constitutional Government."

Denies Immoral Strategy

And he took issue with the Navy argument that it is "immoral" to set out to win a war by attacking enemy cities and industrial centers with atomic bombs.

"If this country's safety is at stake," Symington declared, "I can't see the difference between stopping the functioning of the man on the lathe and the man who is a soldier . . . If civilians are going to be killed, I'd rather have them their civilians than our civilians."

The Air Secretary also attacked Navy partisans for participating in "unfair" and reprehensible tactics in their assault on strategic bombing.

He handed committeemen copies of a 50-page booklet put out by the Air Force entitled: "Analysis of Another Anonymous Attack on the Air Force and the Concept of Aerial Warfare Held by the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

Demands Investigation

Recalling the now discredited paper written by former Navy official Cedric Worth, Symington demanded the group investigate a "second anonymous document." The booklet, he said, contains the latter — entitled "The Strategic Bombing Myth" — with Air Force answers to its "false" statements.

The new "anonymous document," Symington declared, is "far more dangerous than the first," for it attacks methods, principles and objectives upon which this country must rely in time of war." He charged that it quotes from and distorts the findings of the official United States Bombing Survey Re-

$50,000 Fire Hits 3 Stores In Hyattsville

Fire of undetermined origin last night caused $50,000 damage to three stores in the 5100 block of Baltimore avenue, the main street of Hyattsville, Md.

The blaze, for which two alarms were sounded, started in the back room of J. C. Eggleston's electrical appliance store and spread to Vincent's barber shop, according to Hyattsville Fire Marshal E. S. Dorrelle.

The fire did minor damage to the P. H. Ingegneri jewelry store. All three buildings have two stories. The fire was discovered and reported by Hyattsville Police Private Albert G. Thompson shortly before 8 p. m.

Apparatus from Hyattsville, Mount Rainier, Cottage City, and College Park responded and had the blaze under control in 30 minutes.

32 Seized in City-Wide Raids Aimed at Narcotics Peddlers

The Washington Post

Metropolitan police and Federal authorities rounded up 32 persons last night in a city-wide tour of known narcotics haunts.

Carrying search warrants, the raiders went to 15 addresses throughout the city. The series of raids, largest in the District in about three years, was directed against dope peddlers and not addicts.

Although some of those arrested were still being questioned at police headquarters, charges of violating the Harrison Narcotics Act had been filed against the following:

Robert Miller, 33, laborer, of 214 Clark ct. sw.

Maurice Hackney, 23, actor, of 1738 8th st. nw.

Mrs. Audrey Camphor, 27, no occupation, of 1212 4th st. nw.

U. S. Orders Speedup in Atom Bombs

Russian Threat Answered With Expansion Fund Of $30,000,000

By the United Press

President Truman and the Atomic Energy Commission yesterday answered the threat of Russia's atomic discoveries by ordering a 30-million-dollar expansion of A-bomb facilities at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Hanford, Wash.

Authoritative quarters said the outlay would be just the first installment in a new atomic plant construction program which eventually will cost "in excess of 300 million dollars."

The program was announced by Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) of the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee after a closed meeting with commission officials.

Details Kept Secret

Details were kept secret, but informed sources said the plan calls for speeding up construction of new facilities which were blueprinted before Mr. Truman disclosed last month that Russia had achieved an atomic explosion.

The Oak Ridge plant produces uranium 235, and the Hanford plant makes plutonium. They are the two explosive ingredients of atomic bombs.

McMahon said Mr. Truman had authorized the commission to use 30 million dollars of its 60-million-dollar budgetary reserve to start the expansion without waiting for new congressional appropriations.

To Save Vital Time

He said that procedure will save "three or four months" of vital time. The commission announced recently that it had completed the first part of a three-phase construction program at Hanford.

At Oak Ridge, ground was broken last August for a planned 70-million-dollar addition to the 'K-29" gaseous diffusion plant for extracting U-235 from normal uranium.

Subsidies Put Over War Level By 2 Ways of Computation

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Senate and House conferees on a farm bill yesterday unanimously agreed on a new measure to give the Nation's farmers the highest schedule of price supports ever granted, even in wartime.

This was accomplished by setting up two methods of figuring price parity between farm products and the things farmers buy. It would make the schedule rigid for basic commodities at 90 percent of parity until 1951, when either acreage restrictions or marketing quotas are voted by the farmers and adhered to.

It would then drop the level gradually until 1954, when the Anderson flexible system of supports will become law — unless Congress changes its mind again in the meantime.

Higher Level First

Like the Republican bill of a year ago, the measure is a compromise between the House and Senate bills, but would put the higher-level House bill into operation first.

However, the 1948 Act would have postponed the Aiken portion or the lower, sliding-scale form of price supports only one year. The new measure would put off the lower schedules until 1954, although consenting to meet them gradually in the intervening years.

What would send the levels of price supports up, however, is the measure's mishmash method of figuring parity.

The Gore bill, recently passed by the House, retained the 40-year-old parity formula heretofore in effect—using the years 1909-14 as the base period.

Both Formulas Involved

The Anderson bill, passed by the Senate last week, would pick up a modernized parity formula that was part of the Republican Aiken bill.

The new so-called compromise measure would provide that both formulas be computed. The higher for each commodity would be used in guaranteeing the price of that commodity.

The year-by-year price support program is also a hodgepodge.

For next year the support level for basic commodities would be 90 percent of whichever parity is higher for each commodity.

For 1951 the scale would be from 80 to 90 percent of whichever parity is higher, with the variation in percentage based on supplies of each commodity available.

For 1952 and 1953 the support

Nourse on Way Out Lays Fire On Ills of Nation's Economy

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, resigning chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, yesterday treated himself to the pleasure of being impolitic—or nonpolitical—in public.

First, he took out directly after the Administration itself for its present deficit spending policy, and the farm program it has supported.

Second, he denounced the Administration's two most potent political allies, labor and farmers, for trying to get a larger share of the economic pie through subsidies, pensions and higher wages with less work.

Hits at High Prices

Finally, he lashed out against his favorite economic villainy, the refusal by business to cut prices and thus maintain maximum production.

Nourse's views on these subjects are well-known within the council. In fact, controversy over these matters between him on one side and his council colleagues and the Administration on the other is one of the reasons why he submitted his resignation last August.

It may also be one of the reasons why this time, as distinct from his previous attempts to resign, the White House appears to be willing to let him go.

But yesterday was the first time Nourse has sounded off quite so uninhibited in kicking the shins of Mr. Truman, to whom he stands in the role of chief economic adviser.

The occasion was an address to the Golden Anniversary Convention of the National Retail Farm Equipment Association at the Mayflower Hotel. This was scarcely a group that would be cheered at hearing a complaint against agricultural subsidies.

Reviews Predictions

Nourse began by reviewing highly optimistic predictions as to the future state of our economic expansion. But those predictions, he reminded his audience, refer only to "potentials." Constant improvement, with an ever-rising standard of living, is not automatic. It won't just happen.

The march of economic progress from here on in "should" be greater, he said, than it has been in

Minimum Pay Raised, Keeping Promise Made In '48 Campaign

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Congress yesterday fairly leapt over the last major barriers to adjournment and drove toward a windup before nightfall today.

Bills setting a new record in peacetime defense spending and fulfilling at least one Truman campaign pledge to labor quickly hurdled both Houses and went to the White House.

All day loose-end legislation shuttled back and forth between the two Houses as Congress caught the going-away fever in earnest.

Agreement a Surprise

Surprise agreement on the so-called Gore-Anderson farm bill cleared the way for the adjournment march.

These two long stalemated measures led the parade of legislation to the White House:

1. The record $15,585,863,498 military bill providing 1950 funds for all three armed services together with money for a 10-group increase in the size of the Air Force over presidential recommendations.

2. A 75-cents-an-hour minimum wage bill, pledged by Truman in the 1948 campaign. The bill means a 35-cents-an-hour wage increase for some 1,500,000 workers, but removed an indefinite number of others from coverage under the old law.

Still in the works was a second supplemental appropriaton bill providing $1,310,010,000 to arm friendly nations against communism. The Senate passed the bill with some variations in the House-approved measure.

Lucas Revises Forecasts

As the last adjournment roadblocks collapsed, Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) revised earlier forecasts of a Thursday adjournment and voiced the "hope" Congress will get through today.

In the House, members cheered as Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) announced:

"I think I can say in complete confidence that Congress will adjourn tomorrow."

McCormack said approval today of the compromise farm bill should ring down the curtain.

More Schools Demanded at Budget Session

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

A resounding demand for more and better schools in the District was made at the all-day public hearing yesterday on the proposed $138,900,000 city budget for the fiscal year 1951.

Some witnesses, speaking of their own youngsters, reminded the Commissioners that children are attending school in basements and on part-time schedules. They warned, too, that the bumper crop of students is yet to come.

A few witnesses proposed financing these needs by obtaining a larger contribution from the Federal Government or floating a Federal loan or city bond issue.

At the same time, some spokesmen for real estate and building interests asked the Commissioners to hold the line on expenditures and cut the real estate tax back from this year's $2.15 per hundred-dollar valuation to the previous figure of $2.

Pressure for expansion of library facilities, sewers, court services and various health and welfare activities also was brought during the District Building session by community representatives.

Less than 100 of the city's estimated 860,000 population turned out for the meeting, principal opportunity for the citizenry to speak up on city services. Fifty-three appeared as witnesses for various associations or on their own behalf. Others filed written statements with the city heads.

John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, said about 19 million dollars in departmental requests will have to be cut or additional revenue sources located. Major increases are asked for schools, welfare and sewers.

Young warned, too, that the pay increase pending on Capitol Hill if passed will add another million to city salary costs for the 1951 fiscal year, plus another $100,000 for each month of the current fiscal

50 Guardsmen Stage 'Raid' On Capitol

A platoon of 50 District National Guardsmen last night pulled a mock raid on the Capitol to find that the Capitol police soon had the situation—as well as their leader—in hand.

The white-helmeted troops, led by Lieut. Frank Porterfield, and armed with machine and tommy guns, roared up to the Capitol in jeeps shortly after 10 p. m., according to Joseph Duke, Senate Sergeant at Arms. The Senate had recessed half an hour earlier.

While horrified onlookers tried hard not to believe an invasion was in progress, the guardsmen mounted a machine gun on the steps.

"We didn't know what was happening," an anonymous eyewitness said. "All was confusion. It was like having the Gestapo move in to take over . . ."

Opens Counter-Operation

At this point Duke, who is in charge of Capitol police on the Senate side, opened counter-operations.

In a twinkling, his bluecoats were advancing, clearing the grounds of the "enemy." "There was no one hurt and no hard feelings," Duke said later.

Porterfield was brought by police to Duke's office where the crestfallen invasion "mastermind" explained that he had figured out a military problem all by himself: to wit: how to regain the Capitol in the event it was captured.

Porterfield was released and promised to return for further consultation with the victorious Duke today.

Commanding Officer Dismayed

Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, guard commanding officer, expressed astonishment coupled with dismay at the news.

"I didn't know a thing about it," he commented sadly. "We thought we were getting the guard straightened out, then something like this has to happen. "I'll certainly look into it tomorrow. The guard sometimes practices like that . . ."

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 18 (U.P.).—A frantic, two-hour search for Ronald Murray, 5, ended today when he was found asleep in a dresser drawer with his kitten.

Ronald explained that he put the kitten to "bed" in the drawer last night, crawled in with it this morning and pulled the drawer nearly shut.

"What's all the fuss about?" he asked.

Bomb Called 'Real' Russian Arm Since '47

Lake Success, Oct. 18 (AP).—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky today said the atomic bomb has been a "real weapon" for Russia since 1947.

He made this comment in response to a question at a news conference he called to blast again at the American-supported campaign to put Yugoslavia on the Security Council.

The Soviet Foreign Minister threatened "painful consequences" for the United Nations if Yugoslavia wins the seat over Soviet-sponsored Czechoslovakia. He declined to say what those consequences may be.

The atomic bomb question bobbed up in the Security Council also. There the Soviet Union cast its fortieth and forty-first vetoes to kill French proposals outlining an approach to world arms reductions.

Object to Bomb Exclusion

The Russians objected that neither proposal included the atomic bomb. The Council majority said the bomb question was being handled by the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission, a separate organization.

At his news conference, Vishinsky alternated between good-humored talk and bitter language against the Anglo-American bloc. On the bomb, he reminded reporters of the Tass communique of

Mayer Trying To Form New Paris Cabinet

Paris, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Rene Mayer, 58, law and finance expert who studied banking with the House of Rothschild, today agreed to try to form a coalition government, after former Premier Henri Queuille turned down the job.

MAYER

A former finance minister, he is author of the hardboiled "Mayer Plan," credited with staving off inflation and saving the franc in the spring of 1948.

Mayer said he will talk with leaders of France's middle-line parties, then tell President Vincent Auriol definitely whether he will accept the premiership.

Auriol appealed to Mayer after the Catholic Popular Republicans (MRP) refused to accept the assignment. Socialist Premier Jules Moch quit last night after 11 days of bargaining with the political bosses.

Informed sources said unless the three big parties hatch up a working agreement soon, Auriol may be forced to call for new elections.

The latest French crisis stems from inability of the three big parties to agree on an economic policy, specifically wages and prices, as a result of devaluation of the franc.

Fire Volunteer Is Accused In Field Blazes

Maybe he didn't set the world on fire, but the light in his eye apparently fanned flames of suspicion among his fellow blaze battlers.

At least, this situation reportedly led up to the arrest yesterday of George Wilt, jr., 18, a member of the Rockville Volunteer Fire Department for several months.

Police said members of the department reported "an expectant look" in Wilt's eye before alarms were turned in on two field blazes yesterday.

He was booked on a charge of "setting woods and field fires." He posted $52.50 collateral for a hearing Thursday in Rockville Police Court.

Birth of Peiping Regime Puts Reds in International Arena

This is the first of a series by a team of five New York Herald Tribune foreign correspondents, headed by A. T. Steele. They have just completed a survey on the impact of communism on Southeast Asia.

Steele has spent 7 years in the Far East. Other articles will be by Christopher Rand, who has returned to China after a year as a Nieman Fellow at Harvard; Allen Raymond, veteran foreign correspondent; Margaret Parton, correspondent in India; and Dorothy Brandon who has completed an extensive tour of Indonesia and the Philippines.

By A. T. Steele
NYHT News Service

The birth of a Communist-led Chinese government at Peiping is an event of immense and disquieting significance to the rest of Asia. It marks the official emergence of the Chinese Communists from the field of domestic politics to the international arena.

The ripples of this development will be felt to greater or less degree in every Asiatic country. East Asia, excluding Russia, has a population of 1,200,000,000. Almost a third of this vast human mass has been swallowed up in communism's glacial advance.

Yet there is some hope in the fact that two-thirds of the population is still outside the Communist orbit, in the great sweep of territory fringing China on the east and south and extending from Japan, through Southeast Asia, to India.

This arc-like belt of mainland and islands is spotted throughout with Communist, neo-Communist and nationalist movements. In two countries, Indo-China and Burma, the Communist threat is immediate and urgent. Unhappy Korea, football of Soviet and American power politics, is half Red and half gray.

Peiping, under Red rule, promises to become a sort of Oriental Moscow—a magnet of attraction, a center of intrigue and a pattern for left-wing revolutionaries in other Far Eastern lands. And Mao Tse-tung, president of the new regime, may well become an Asiatic Lenin.

Although a new regionalism may be developing in the Communist world with Peiping as its focus, there is no question of Moscow's over-all leadership.

Asia's Reds will find it necessary to lean heavily on Soviet leadership and military power for a long time.

It Took Woman to Get Woman Named for U. S. District Judge

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

"If among the 27 new judges there is not one woman included, then I think every law school should close its doors to women," Mrs. India Edwards, head of the Women's Division of the Democratic National Committee, wrote the President late last week.

"That was the clincher," Mrs. Edwards told a reporter yesterday, which assured President Truman's weekend decision to name Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews to the Federal District Court bench—a move that caught Washington by surprise.

Mrs. Edwards said her letter in Mrs. Matthews behalf came to the President's attention after the White House conference last Thursday attended by Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, Democratic National Chairman William Boyle and White House Administrative Assistant Donald Dawson.

Following the huddle it was reported that candidates for the six newly-created judicial posts on the District and Appeals Court benches here were all set, barring last-minute changes. The list did not include Mrs. Matthews.

On Monday McGrath was called to the President's office shortly before 19 nominations, including Mrs. Matthews' name, were sent to the Senate.

Senate Today Will Consider Mead, Wallgren Nominations

The Senate today will take up the question of confirming President Truman's two most recent appointments, Mon C. Wallgren to the Federal Power Commission and James Mead to the Federal Trade Commission.

Within a matter of hours after the President submitted the names of his two old friends and associates, the Senate Commerce Committee gave them unanimous approval.

What is uncertain, however, is whether Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) would seek today to prevent Wallgren's name coming to a vote before the Senate adjourns. It was Cain who led the successful fight to prevent Wallgren's confirmation earlier this session for the job of chairman of the National Security Resources Board.

Wallgren, 58, served in the Senate with Mr. Truman and was a former Governor of the State of Washington. The President nominated him to fill the post on the FPC left vacant when the Senate last week voted against reappointment of Leland C. Olds.

Most of the Democratic Senators who objected to Olds gave Wallgren their indorsement yesterday. They said he would be a "tough but fair" administrator.

But Cain said he was "reserving" the right to insist that the Senate wait until next year to act on Wallgren. If he exercises that right, and succeeds, the President can nevertheless give Wallgren an in-

Way Cleared to Give Surplus Food Away

Farm bill conferees have cleared the way for the Government to give away millions of dollars worth of food it bought to keep farm prices high.

In addition to writing a new farm bill, the conference committee yesterday recommended a proposal by Chairman Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) to unload Government-owned supplies in danger of spoiling.

Six Ways of Disposal

The Thomas proposal lists six ways for the Agriculture Department to dispose of its surplus perishables:

1. To barter them to foreign governments for strategic materials for military stockpiling.
2. Give them to the National School Lunch program.
3. Give them to the Bureau of Indian Affairs for the benefit of hungry Indians.
4. Donate them to State, Federal or other public welfare or other institutions.
5. Give them to private welfare groups for domestic charity.
6. Give them to foreign welfare or charitable groups, including such organizations as CARE and Friends' Service.

High among the list of goods the Government is seeking to dispose of are:

1. About 2304 million eggs—which cost the taxpayer about 85 million dollars.
2. Around 35 million pounds of Mexican canned beef, bought by the Government as protection against hoof and mouth disease. The Government agreed to can and buy the beef in Mexico to make up for sales Mexican cattle raisers formerly made in this country. Imports of cattle were shut off when Mexican herds developed hoof and mouth disease about three years ago.

The canned beef on hand cannot be either sold or given away in this country, according to American health laws. Eighty million pounds have been sold to the Army for use abroad, and to the British government, at a loss of 10 million dollars. The remaining 35 million pounds cost the Government another 10 million dollars. The cans are beginning to rust.

The new farm support bill, with a provision for mandatory high supports for dairy products and potatoes, as well as discretionary supports for eggs and meats, may increase in coming months the amount of foodstuffs the Agriculture Department will have to dispose of.

A high agriculture official said yesterday that the new provision may force the Commodity Credit Corporation to go to Congress in January to ask for more money for its price support program.

Credit Nearly Exhausted

The CCC charter permits the corporation to borrow $4,750,000,000 and gives it 100 million dollars capital to carry out the price support program. This borrowing capacity probably will be exhausted before the end of the crop year.

The new conference farm bill drops hogs, poultry and eggs from mandatory price supports as provided in the present farm bill. It will make such supports discretionary after January 1.

This change may save a tremendous Government outlay to support hog prices. Many Government experts thought that hogs would be supported this fall. However, although the price of hogs neared the support level, it never quite reached it.

The support of eggs has cost somewhere in the vicinity of 200 million dollars.

Farm Support Bill Agreed On

level would range from 75 to 90 percent of the most expensive parity formula.

After 1953 the Anderson bill, as passed by the Senate last week, would become the law.

The compromise, which was a top victory for the House conferees, would work out as follows for basic commodities next year:

1. Wheat, corn, cotton and probably peanuts would be granted the same support level as this year, because the 1909-14 parity formula is, at this time, more beneficial to them than the Anderson-Aiken modernized formula.

2. The other two basics, tobacco and rice, would be paid at a higher support level than at present, under the modernized parity formula.

The new bill would make price supports at from 75 to 90 percent of parity mandatory for wool, including mohair, tung nuts, honey, Irish potatoes, and milk and other dairy products.

But the basis for figuring parity would be the same for the basic commodity—the higher of the two formulas.

As all these products require a great deal of labor, the action would raise the price support level for each by from 5 to 15 percent. They will undoubtedly call for protection under the Anderson formula, which includes the cost of hired labor in figuring parity.

The sliding scale for price supports for the nonbasic or perishable commodities, however, fixed merely a floor for price supports.

Chairman Harold Cooley (D., N. C.), of the House Agriculture Committee, said the Conference Committee's report will make clear that the Secretary of Agriculture will have discretion to set price supports above the bottom levels—up to the 90 percent maximum. However, he must not go below the levels, when all acreage restrictions and marketing quotas are voted and adhered to.

The committee dropped from the new bill two amendments the Senate had adopted after a bitter fight. They were:

1. One by Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) barring consideration of "abnormal exports" in figuring "effective demands" for products. Directed mainly at extraordinary peanut exports in recent years, it was opposed by Southern members. When a sliding scale formula for fixing price support levels is in effect, the amount of a commodity on hand compared with the "effective demand" for it, will fix the support level.

2. One by Senator Warren G. Magnusen (D., Wash.) would have set up quotas limiting the importation of any commodities into this country in which there is already a surplus here. Opponents argued it would have nullified many reciprocal trade agreements.

White House Gets Bill On Disability Benefits

The Senate yesterday sent to the White House a bill increasing benefit payments to World War I veterans for service-connected disabilities.

Senator George (D., Ga.) said the measure corrects an oversight in a veterans' bill signed by President Truman last week.

It would make World War I veterans eligible for monthly compensation of $150 for total disability, as provided in the newly enacted benefit schedule, and proportionately lesser amounts for partial disability.

Best Wishes, Judge . . .

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

TELEGRAPHED CONGRATULATIONS—Despite a broken wrist, Mrs. Burnita S. Matthews (right), nominated Federal District judge by President Truman, smiles happily as she listens to Mrs. India Edwards, chairman of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee, read congratulatory messages which poured in on the injured woman yesterday at George Washington University Hospital. Mrs. Matthews fractured her wrist when she fell in St. Patrick's Church a few hours after learning of her nomination. She is believed to be the Nation's first woman nominated to the Federal Court here

McGrath, commented yesterday: "It all goes to show that nominations are made at the White House—and it's proved a pretty successful formula."

The effective crusader for more women in top Federal positions explained how she master-minded the appointment of the Nation's first woman Federal District judge during a hospital visit with Mrs. Matthews yesterday noon.

Fractures Her Arm

Mrs. Matthews fractured her left arm Monday in a fall on the altar steps of St. Patrick's Church after lighting a candle in appreciation of her good news. She was released from George Washington University Hospital "feeling fine" yesterday afternoon.

Ever since last spring Mrs. Edwards has been talking up to President Truman and McGrath the idea of naming women to high judicial posts.

"And all along, I've had their sympathy," Mrs. Edwards said. "In fact, I had urged that two or three of the 27 new judgeships go to women, but recently I felt confident the President would give us at least one."

Mrs. Edwards said she really got busy late last week when it became apparent to her that women were being passed over for the new judgeships in New York and Pennsylvania. It came to a point where it was to be a woman jurist in Washington, or none at all.

Her "Clincher" Argument

In her "clincher" argument for the President, the personable Democratic leader said she further pointed out that she "couldn't remember when there ever were as many as 27 court vacancies to fill at one time. If we are passed over now what real hope is there for women lawyers."

But Mrs. Edwards gives the real credit for Mrs. Matthews' appointment to the united backing she received from more than 20 national and local women's groups, both Negro and white. Previously the Nation's women could never seem to rally behind one candidate, she said.

The new woman judge, a native of Mississippi, also had the support of several Administration Senators, spearheaded, it was learned, by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.).

Mrs. Edwards has nothing but the highest praise for the President's sympathy toward women in government, and she attributes this feeling largely to his "very smart and sensible wife who keeps up with what's going on."

There was one other factor in the Matthews coup, according to Mrs. Edwards. "We didn't let out too much speculation. We kept it half secret."

Record Arms Budget Passed, Congress Ready to Adjourn

ence-approved bill legalizing industry's basing point pricing system in the absence of conspiracy to lessen competition for awhile threatened to force the Senate into overtime.

But the threat of a filibuster was enough. The Senate by a tied 29 to 29 vote refused to table a motion to postpone basing point legislation until next January 20. Then, without even a roll call, the Senate approved the postponement.

Some other legislation that moved to the White House in yesterday's hustle to adjourn:

A compromise bill authorizing a 252-million-dollar program of aeronautical research, construction of a large engineering center, and 22 transsonic and supersonic wind tunnels.

An Alaska-Okinawa construction bill authorizing 166 million dollars for housing, power and sewer systems, roads and other projects at the two strategic outposts.

A 25 million dollar program of Government loans to cooperatives and small rural telephone companies to expand rural telephone service.

Compromise on Wheat

Compromise legislation to meet United States obligations under the International Wheat Agreement. It authorized the Commodity Credit Corporation to sell 168 million bushels overseas at $1.80 a bushel. American farmers would receive a subsidy to make up the difference.

Extension of the Government's auto purchase program for disabled veterans. The new bill, costing 25 million dollars, authorizes $1600 payments for automobiles for veterans who were blinded or lost the use of one or both hands or feet.

Passed by the Senate and awaiting final House action was a bill authorizing a loan up to seven million dollars to the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization for a headquarters building in Washington.

The record military appropriation bill provided a 58-group step toward a 70-group Air Force. (Air Secretary Symington said yesterday the 70-group Air Force goal has been reduced to 67 groups.)

Division of Funds

Here's how the big bill divided armed service funds: Army, $4,380,644,298 in cash; Navy, $4,928,928,200 in cash and contract authority; Air Force, $6,081,141,000 in cash and contract authority.

In addition, 50 million dollars is provided for start of construction on a radar screen to guard against enemy air attack.

The White House refused to say whether the President will spend the 740 million dollars additional provided for a 58-group air force.

But Senate Majority Leader Lucas told newsmen he thought the President would spend the full amount.

Whisked through the Senate meanwhile was the big $1,620,000,000 second supplemental appropriation bill carrying $1,314,010,000 for arms aid to friendly countries and 30 million dollars in economic aid to Korea.

This bill goes back to the House, which can either take it "as is" or send it to conference.

Billion for Pact Nations

The arms aid is divided this way: For North Atlantic Pact countries, one billion dollars; for Greece and Turkey, $211,380,000; for Iran, Korea and the Philippines, $27,640,000, and for the China area, 75 million dollars.

The bill also carries funds for a number of Government construction projects and miscellaneous items affecting a score of agencies.

A Senate rider provides a 5 percent pay increase for each officer or employe of the legislative branch. Each Senator would receive about $3000 additional for pay increases to his clerical and messenger help.

An amendment by Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) designed to halt further dismantling of German industrial plants was ruled out of order by Vice President Barkley.

Bridges appealed the ruling to the Senate. The Senate backed up Barkley's ruling by a standing vote.

The 75-cents-an-hour minimum wage bill compromised in conference shot through the House by a 131 to 19 vote and the Senate accepted it, viva voce.

But a change in the old 40-cent-an-hour law left an undetermined number of workers uncovered. The old law applied to workers "necessary" to the production of goods for shipment in interstate commerce. The conference draft applied it only to "directly essential" workers. The compromise also exempts employes of retail firms doing more than 50 percent of their business within a State, newsboys, Western Union messengers, taxicab operators and others. It further broadens the exemption of small newspapers.

The Senate vote to postpone action on the controversial basing point bill until January 20 followed a bitter fight led by these Senators—Douglas (D., Ill.) Long (D. La.) and O'Mahoney (D. Wyo.).

Charging the bill would foster big monopolies and threaten the "whole industrial future of this country," Douglas moved for the postponement.

Senator Herbert O'Conor (D., Md.), one of the Senate conferees, moved to table the postponement motion, but failed by a 29-to-29 tie vote.

Vice President Barkley said he would have voted against tabling had his vote been required.

Without a record vote the Senate agreed to postpone following a speech by O'Mahoney. O'Mahoney said the legislation as now written would not be effective in the court. He urged the Senate to defer consideration so "we will not add confusion . . . in the closing hours of Congress."

Senater Long, who had implied he was ready to talk as long as necessary to block action this session, did not have to take the floor.

Guatemala Flood Dead Put at 1000

Guatemala, Guatemala, Oct. 18 (AP).—Torrential rains and floods over Guatemala's richest banana, coffee and coca lands were reported today to have taken up 1000 lives and left 60,000 to 70,000 homeless. The government said it was a national disaster.

The United States Air Force base here ordered a search for a missing United States plane believed dispatched from Panama on a relief mission.

Trapped by the flood waters were 26 American tourists. Fifteen had been marooned more than a week at the village of Panajachel on Lake Atitlan, 40 miles north of this city, and 11 were at Chichicastenango.

Communication Destroyed

Rains that began 16 days ago swelled to torrents the last three or four days, washing out roads and destroying communications.

A foreign office spokesman estimated the dead at 1000, though police had tabulated only 171 dead by actual count. President Juan Jose Arevalo said 300 were known dead.

United States Embassy sources estimated the economic loss at 15 million dollars or more.

Dozens of villages around Lake Atitlan were marooned and it was feared roads would not be passable for months. All sections of the country were affected.

The government set up a disaster relief committee, and prepared to drop food and medicines in the Lake Atitlan area, where it was feared suplies were exhausted.

U. S. Plane Asked

It requested that a United States amphibian plane be sent to the area to evacuate the 15 Americans there and to aid in relief work. Tourist agencies were trying to arrange for a Guatemala army plane to land near Chichicastenango to bring out the 11 Americans there.

The missing United States plane, an amphibian OA-10, was last reported about 100 miles off the Nicaraguan coast. The Air Force base here said it left Albrook Field, Panama, and was 24 hours overdue at Belize, Honduras.

Balboa dispatches said United States veteran relief workers of the Ecuadorean earthquake disaster of last August would leave Panama for Guatemala Wednesday.

Eiffel Leap Kills Girl From N. Y.

PATRICIA HUNTER
Drops from Eiffel Tower

Paris, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Twenty-seven-year-old homesick Patricia Hunter of Port Chester, N. Y., plunged to her death from Eiffel Tower today.

Police said she almost certainly had committed suicide, climbing over a shoulder-high railing to leap from the tower's second platform, 374 feet above the street.

Her body, clad in a stylish new black and gray tailored suit, crashed into the roof of the terrace on the south side of the first platform, about 171 feet below.

She was identified at the morgue 6 hours later by two women, one American, one French, who said they were friends of the Hunter family.

They said Miss Hunter had come to France with her aunt, Mrs. Joseph F. Hunter of Rye, N. Y., a month ago to study painting. Mrs. Hunter left to return home last week.

Actress Spangler Not Missing, Police Say

Los Angeles, Oct. 18 (AP).—Police opined today that actress Jean Spangler is "missing" of her own volition while convalescing from an illness.

A detective spokesman said that investigation has disclosed grounds for the belief that the 27-year-old movie bit player is recovering from an illness that she wishes kept secret. He did not elaborate.

Miss Spangler was last heard from the night of October 7.

The detective spokesman said police will mark time until the end of this week, at which time it will be "reasonable" to presume Jean would have recovered from illness.

100 Hunters Snowed In By Montana Blizzards

Denver, Oct. 18 (AP).—Blinding blizzards swept across Montana tonight, snowing in about 100 deer and elk hunters in Teton Canyon, 25 miles west of Choteau.

There was no indication they were in any danger.

Wyoming was shivering from the swirling cold front of the storm that coated Montana with the season's first heavy snowfall. Northern Colorado was pelted by a light rain—faint warning of possible snow and cold Wednesday.

Temperatures were below freezing at most points. The lowest reading today was 12 degrees at Cut Bank, near the Canadian border.

Winds sometimes reaching 55 miles an hour churned snow into 5-foot drifts in northern Montana, while the rest of the State already was blanketed under from 2 to 6 inches of snow.

Northwestern Wyoming, including Yellowstone Park, was under 5 inches of new snow and the rest of the State was expecting a general snowfall during the night.

Man Waiting Gambling Probe Jury Kills Self

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Sammy Butler, 46, shot and killed himself this afternoon, when he was due to appear before a Federal grand jury investigating gambling operations.

The grand jury yesterday resumed its inquiry into gambling operations here, apparently as a part of a Nation-wide check by Federal investigating bodies into "lay-off" betting.

20 Die as Unfinished Carrier Sinks British Collier in Gale

Berwick, Eng., Oct. 18 (AP).—The unfinished aircraft carrier Albion and a coal freighter collided in a gale off England's North Sea coast today and 20 British seamen were lost.

The 20 went down with the 2025-ton steamer Maystone. Only four of her crew of 24 were picked up by the civilian crew of the Albion. The freighter, which was carrying coal from Methill, Scotland, to London, sank immediately.

The 18,300-ton Albion, fourth of the Inight Hermes classs, was being towed by tugs from the Jarrow shipyards to the Scottish drydock at Rosyth for completion. Holed on the portside near her propellers, she continued on her way, though a naval spokesman said she was weathering "thremendous difficulties" in the heavy seas.

Howling winds blew down trees and damaged roofs in many parts of England. One 50-mile-an-hour gust smashed the 34,400-ton liner Caronia into a quay at Southampton while she was docking, denting two of her plates. Three passengers and a crew member suffered injuries from buffeting, 50-foot-high seas as she approached Southampton.

A British Overseas Airways Corp. flying boat with 33 passengers bound for South Africa damaged its float in trying to take off at Southampton and had to put into a maintenance base.

Belgian and French fishing trawlers sought shelter along England's south coast. Sea resorts reported much damage from the storm.

A hole 15 feet square was knocked in the Albion's hull and she had five feet of water in her engine room. Tonight the admiralty said she was still in tow but was drifting northeast before the wind at 2 knots. She was some 10 miles off St. Alban's Head, or 40 miles south of the collision scene.

The Albion had not yet been accepted by the navy.

Atlantic Gales Delay Liners

New York, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Gales churned up mountainous seas across the entire North Atlantic today, delaying the arrival of ocean liners and Army transports

The Cunard White Star Line announced that its biggest liner, the Queen Elizabeth, would be delayed 12 hours and would not reach New York until after midnight Wednesday. Among its passengers were the Marquess of Milford-Haven and his American fiancee, Mrs. Romaine Simpson, who will be married in Washington next month.

The master of the Queen Elizabeth said winds reached 70 miles an hour at one time.

The Dutch liner Nieuw Amsterdam and five Army transports also were bucking heavy seas and will be late in arriving.

Divorce Near For Bergman

Rome, Oct. 18 (AP).—Ingrid Bergman's personal representative here said today the Swedish film star's husband, surgeon Peter Lindstrom, has agreed to file divorce papers in California.

A divorce would leave her free to marry the Italian film director, Roberto Rossellini, next year.

Miss Bergman's representative, Joseph Steele, said the agreement ended months of negotiations. She had sought to file for divorce here or in Sweden but legal difficulties were too great.

Lindstrom's agreement to file came after a personal appeal from Miss Bergman through her Rome attorney, Monroe MacDonald. He flew to the United States recently and returned with Lindstrom's acceptance.

Steele said Lindstrom would receive "at least a very generous half" of Miss Bergman's California property under the divorce terms. Grounds for the suit have not been decided.

Custody of their 11-year-old daughter, Pia, has not yet been settled upon.

Divorce Rate In Britain Hit By Elizabeth

London, Oct. 18 (AP).—Princess Elizabeth told Britons today to mend their morals and slow down on divorces.

The heiress to the throne voiced alarm at the divorce rate in the sharpest statement in years from any member of the Royal family. It broke tradition, and recalled the time 13 years ago when another outspoken member of the Royal familyElizabeth's uncle, King Edward—gave up the throne to marry an American divorcee. Usually, Britishly royalty avoids public mention of controversial matters and speaks only along in—sporational lines.

Princess Elizabeth, who is 22 and a mother herself, told a Mothers' Union meeting that divorce and lax morals endanger the British family's foundations.

"We live in an age of growing self indulgence, of hardening materialism and of falling moral standards," Elizabeth said. "I would go so far as to say that some of the very principles on which the family, and therefore the health of the nation, is founded are in danger.

"When we see around us the havoc which has been wrought, above all among the children, by the breakup of homes, we can have no doubt that divorce and separation are responsible for some of the darkest evils in our society today.

"I do not think you can perform any finer service than to help maintain the Christian doctrine that the relationship of husband and wife is a permanent one, not to be lightly broken because of difficulties or quarrels."

Her concern was based on statistics which show the ratio of divorces to marriages in England and Wales last year was almost one to eight. (The ratio in the United States is almost one to four.)

Her audience was made up of 3600 women, all with children of 10 or younger at home. The Mothers' Union is an organization with 2000 branches, dedicated to the welfare of the home and children.

Housebreakings Solved as Boys Forget Cap Pistol

Three recent Alexandria housebreakings have been solved, police said yesterday, because one of the two culprits left his cap pistol at the scene.

Inspector Russell A. Hawes said the culprits are 10-year-old Alexandria boys.

They have been turned over to Juvenile Court for breaking into a boxcar and taking five bottles of beer, for removing $32.24 in cash after going through an unlocked window at the Johnson Wax Co., 409 Calvert ave., and for taking candy from a machine at the Pepsi-Cola Co., 2402 Oakville st. All events occurred last week.

The cap pistol was left behind at the Pepsi-Cola establishment, Police Pvt. George May reported. He then scoured the neighborhood for someone who might recognize the toy gun. In half an hour, he said, he learned whose it was.

On Noah's Life

Lamech Book Called No. 1 Biblical Find

Chicago, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—A lost book of Biblical literature, found in a Holy Land cave and revealing details of the early life of Noah for the first time, was hailed today as "the most important Bible discovery of modern times."

Dr. John C. Trever, head of the English Bible department of the International Council on Religious Education, said the ancient manuscript was expected to shed new light on the story of the man who, the Bible says, built the ark.

Trever identified the work as the "lost book of Lamech," which he said scholars learned of in later Biblical writing, but never hoped to find.

From 5 to 7 Feet Long

The scroll, a brittle parchment roll expected to measure five to seven feet long, was found in 1947 wth seven other scrolls and fragments.

Not all of the writings have been identified, but scholars in four countries are working on photostatic copies.

The scroll of Lamech, who was Noah's father, has not yet been unrolled and it may take three months to do the delicate job, Trever said.

However, a fragment measuring eight by four inches, containing enough to identify the book, has been translated, he said. In it, Lamech discusses with his own father, Methuselah, the birth of an "unusual child," apparently Noah.

Trever said the authenticity of the scroll has been established "absolutely."

Written in Aramaic

He said it probably was composed about the first or second century B. C. by a pseudonymous writer similar to other writers of the apochryphal literature of the period. The Apochrypha, or "unauthenticated" books, were rejected by the council that met to determine the contents of the Old Testament about 90 A. D.

The book is written in Aramaic, the complex native language of Christ. Trever hoped a complete translation could be made by next spring.

He said the manuscripts were found on the "purest chance" by a goatherd boy who chased a goat up the side of a cliff beside the Dead Sea, south of Jericho.

Trever was acting director of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem, when the scrolls were found.

U. N. Peace Effort Fails in Balkans

Sees Wallaceite

Tito Says War On Him Will Prove Global

Belgrade, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Marshal Tito believes any attack against Yugoslavia would lead to World War III.

That was the highlight of the fifth interview Tito has granted in recent weeks to members of Henry Wallace's Progressive Party.

He received William S. Gailmor, former New York radio commentator associated with Wallace, last night.

Gailmor made public Tito's remarks today.

Tito predicted an intensive campaign of infiltration and border incidents by his Cominform neighbors, but said:

"It would be imprudent to get excited by these things."

As for the possibility of military invasion, he did not think the Kremlin would consider that because, he added, it would not be an isolated war but a world war.

"We can resist any attack," he added confidently.

Hawaii Fare Reduced

New York, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Persons commuting by air between the United States and Honolulu may buy cut-rate, 20-trip commutation books for $2600, plus Federal tax, beginning December 3, Pan American World Airways announced today.

Lake Success, Oct. 18 (AP).—A new United Nations attempt to make peace in the Balkans ended in failure today. Western diplomats blamed the collapse on Communist Albania.

That Soviet satellite rebuffed all points in a U. N. peace plan.

The special U. N. Balkan conciliation committee named to settle the long-standing Greek-Balkan dispute gave up 19 days after it was created by the General Assembly.

The four-man committee, headed by Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo, reported with regret to the 59-nation political committee it could find no basis for ending the conflict.

He and Canada's Lester B. Pearson, Selim Sarper of Turkey, and U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie, had held 29 meetings. They met with representatives of seven nations: Greece, her three northern Communist neighbors—Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia—and Russia, Britain and the United States.

Greece's Communist neighbors are under condemnation of the U. N. Assembly for aiding Greek Communist guerillas.

The committee tried to solve the dispute on the basis of a previous peace plan which urged reestablishment of diplomatic relations between Greece and the three northern states and the creation of frontier commissiones and agreements.

Greece accepted. Yugoslavia's reply satisfied Greece. Bulgaria, presumably because of the failure to get final instructions from Sofia, did not reply at all. Western sources said Albania rejected every point.

It was understood a major stumbling block was Albania's insistence on establishment of the existing Albanian-Greek border as final. As the frontier stands now, Albania holds part of the northern Epirus, which Athens claims as Greek soil.

U. N. Group Backs Italy To Run Somaliland

Troops to Stay In Germany, McCloy Says

Frankfurt, Oct. 18 (NYHT).—John J. McCloy, American high commissioner for Germany, told a press conference here today the Western answer to the Soviet establishment of a government in the Eastern zone should be continuity of present policy and closer unity with the West German government.

McCloy declared that whether the Russians withdraw their troops from the East or not, American troops stay in Germany as long as the peace and security of Europe requires.

"I think it is important that at this time we show continuity of policy and act according to our own methods and not to counter some Soviet move," McCloy asserted.

"I think our example is better than the example of what has happened in Czechoslovakia."

McCloy said Chancellor Konrad Adenauer had not asked for additional powers for the Bonn government. Neither, he said, had any proposals been received yet from the Germans on dismantling.

The high commissioner said his attitude on dismantling was that conditions of security, reparations and level of industry are involved. He expressed the hope of a European economic solution to the whole problem of the future of German heavy industry.

"I am thinking in terms of unequivocal German participation in the Ruhr authority and in the Office of European Economic Cooperation," McCloy said. "I am thinking in terms of a solution which will give Germany's neighbors assurances that she is not in aggressive, pushy competition but is working for the benefit of all Europe—a program which would embrace the industries of the Ruhr and Belgium, Luxembourg and France and all the rest. I hope the dismantling question can be used as a device to promote such a solution."

Czech Premier Reveals Use of Labor Camps

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Premier Antonin Zapotocky has told a workers' conference that political prisoners are being sent to labor camps for "re-education," it was disclosed today.

The Premier's statement, reported by Communist newspapers, was the first indication of the fate of thousands of middle class businessmen, lawyers and professional people reported arrested by the Communists in a two-week roundup.

The trade union paper, Prace, said Zapotocky told workers:

"You must not think we are sending these people there to torture them and to give them hard work. We sent them there to turn them into orderly citizens of the republic."

He said the prisoners could become good members of "our present society" if the workers showed them the road.

"If you look at them as black marketeers and push them to the wall this would be very bad, comrades," he was quoted as saying. "We would never be able to come out ahead like that."

Zapotocky urged the political prisoners to produce more than their quota. They would thus become "shockworkers" and "I would try to return (them) to civil life because we don't want to have them stay forever as they were."

According to one report prisoners work hard under constant guard, but are paid regular wages. They get a ration of five cigaretes a day, and are not mistreated.

The report said most of the prisoners were bitter and feared their families would lose their homes and possessions.

Bomb Called 'Real' Russian Arm Since 1947; by Vishinsky

last September 25, which said Russia has had an atomic weapon since 1947. Vishinsky said:

"V. M. Molotov (former Foreign Minister) said in 1947 the American monopoly no longer exists. It happens to be a real weapon since 1947."

This was the furthest Vishinsky has gone in the current U. N. session on Russia's possession of the A-bomb.

The General Assembly will meet Thursday and vote on the Czechoslovak-Yugoslav contest.

Vishinsky declared in a statement that the eastern European countries had picked Czechoslovakia for the seat the Soviet Ukraine will give up December 31 after a 2-year term. Yugoslavia's election, Vishinsky said, would violate the U. N. charter, break a gentleman's agreement on the allocation of seats, and further aggravate East-West differences.

Vishinsky said the decision of the United States and other nations to back Yugoslavia "can only bear witness to the fact that the Anglo-American bloc has the intention of moving further along the path of deepening the split and reducing even the minimum degree of agreement in the work of the United Nations."

Vishinsky was asked whether the Soviet Union has any proposals or further ideas to bring up on atomic energy at this U. N. Assembly.

"Why be so modest? Why not call it the atomic bomb?" he asked. Then he said that the Soviet Union had submitted on September 23 a proposal for the General Assembly to appeal to all who have atomic bombs to ban such weapons and adopt protective measures for the prohibition of such weapons.

Vishinsky said Soviet proposals for control of atomic energy are a "binding statement on the part of the Soviet Union."

Asked whether the Russians would permit investigators to check on atomic energy in the Soviet Union, he said the questioner was badly misinformed on the Soviet proposals.

He said there was a plan dated June 11, 1947, and that he could name a "whole spate of documents which make it clear the Soviet Union is for inspection."

He read excerpts from the June 11, 1947, plan referring to a scheme for inspectors working under a proposed atomic energy commission. He said the Russian idea called for adequate inspection. He said the Russians cannot accept the American plan because the control organization would be an American super-trust over atomic energy.

Asked why Russia was not demanding the Chinese Nationalist seat on the Security Council be taken over by the Communists, Vishinsky asked in return:

"Why do you believe that Russia must necessarily hurry with every good action? Wouldn't it be better to wait awhile? . . . I think the situation in China is not bad at all. Everything will come."

Asked finally how he thought the world can get some more optimism, Vishinsky said the world could be optimistic if it would:

1. Abide by the U. N. Charter.
2. Abide by gentlemen's agreements.
3. Have no corridor intrigues.
4. Not sharpen one's knife in order to stick it into the back of the U. N.

Vishinsky said one way to create an optimistic atmosphere today would be "to give up the bomb scare."

Vishinsky said he found a "change in United States public opinion" since arrving for the U. N. Assembly session last month—before President Truman's September 23 announcement of a Soviet atomic explosion.

"I discern more objectivity and sobriety in the press," Vishinsky said. "The war psychosis has waned. Those who thought the atomic bomb was everything now say the bomb might slip out of their hands and fall on their toes."

One Capitalistic Axiom Accepted by Vishinsky

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky put himself on record today as agreeing with at least one capitalistic axiom—that time is money.

At a news conference, Vishinsky said: "Although I am not a capitalist myself, I do agree with one of your proverbs, and that is that time is money." This was Vishinsky's way of winding up the hour-long conference.

Chungking Feeling More Pessimistic

Until Monday

Economy Ax Is Delayed By Attlee

London, Oct. 18 (AP).—The Labor government is delaying fresh blows from its economy ax until next Monday.

The House of Commons was told today Prime Minister Attlee will outline new measures to cut government spending and save dollars at that time.

Anthony Eden, deputy leader of the Conservative Party, told Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison many members of Parliament had expected Attlee's statement this week.

"The Prime Minister is anxious to make a statement as soon as possible," Morrison replied, "but the House will appreciate that there are a number of departments involved which must be properly consulted so proper and firm conclusions are to be reached."

Cuts proposed by the cabinet's economic policy committee were studied by Attlee's ministers this morning.

The chief savings so far considered appear to be slashes in administrative expenses, government building and imports from the dollar countries.

[Attlee called a meeting of his top government officials tonight, reportedly to discuss possible reductions in defense expenditures in line with the new "austerity" program, the United Press said.]

Britain's economic difficulties were highlighted in a question presented in the Commons by Conservative Sir Frank Sanderson.

Sanderson asked the president of the Board of Trade, Harold Wilson, to explain Thursday how Britain proposes to make the first payment of principal and interest on the $3,750,000,000 loan from the United States, due in 1952.

The loan, made in 1946, is to be repaid with interest in 50 annual installments. Sanderson said the 1952 payment of 40 million pounds at the predevaluation rate (160 million dollars) exceeds indicated exports to the United States for 1949. In addition, he said, the payment comes due in the year that Marshall Plan aid ends.

CHUNGKING, Oct. 18 (AP).—Pessimism mounted today in this refugee capital of Nationalist China despite fight talk from two leaders.

Some quarters expect the Communists to strike soon at Kweichow, the province just to the south of Canton. Its subjugation would cut off Chungking from Gen. Pai Chung-hsi's 200,000-man army in Kwangsi Province farther south.

Acting President Li Tsung-jen and Premier Yen Hsi-shan talked of fighting on. Both spoke at a reception honoring Li.

"We can still turn the tide against the Communists," declared Li, "if we renovate the government and renovate it without delay. If we don't, our position will be hopeless."

Li placed the blame for past setbacks on the government's failure to reform.

Yen appealed for Nationalist unity, saying "Victory wouldn't be hopeless" if national interests were placed above personal interests.

There was little military activity reported on the southern front and on the southeast coast where the Nationalists admit the Reds seized the big port of Amoy.

British Ship Strafed By Nationalist Plane

Hongkong, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—A British ship, trying to slip through the Nationalist blockade of Communist China, was machine-gunned by a Nationalist plane 60 miles north of Formosa, the ship's agents reported today.

One Chinese crewman of the steamer Nanchang was injured slightly in the strafing. The ship was on the way from Hongkong to the Red-held port of Tsingtao, former United States naval base in North China.

U. S. 'Hams' Told Of Foreign Bans On Messages

The Federal Communications Commission has notified American radio amateurs that a number of foreign governments have forbidden their "ham" operators to communicate with other countries.

Under international agreement communication between hams of different countries is forbidden if the government of one of the countries objects.

The FCC said it has been notified by the International Telecommunication Union that the following administrations have forbidden such foreign communication:

Austria, Burma, French settlements in Oceana, Greece, Indo-China, Indonesia, Iran, Israel, Lebanon, Madagascar and dependencies, Mauritius, Netherlands Antilles, Siam, St. Pierre and Miquelon, Togoland (territory under French trusteeship).

World Court to Decide Fate of Peruvian

The Hague, Holland, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—The machinery of international justice was set in motion today to decide the fate of one man.

Dr. Gustave Guerrero, acting president of the International Court of Justice, called a conference Wednesday to establish procedure in a dispute between Colombia and Peru over whether Peruvian opposition leader Victor Raul Haya de la Torre is to be a free man again or delivered to his political enemies, probably to be tried for his life.

Russia Casts 40th, 41st Vetoes Right After Harmony Move

Lake Success, Oct. 18 (NYHT).—The Big Five powers agreed in secret session today to consult before any more United Nations votes likely to produce Security Council vetoes—but much of that good feeling was speedily lost just three hours later.

It was then that Warren R. Austin of the United States, as Council president, and the Council majority overrode Soviet appeals to avoid two more vetoes, and wound up with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Yakov A. Malik casting Russia's fortieth and forty-first vetoes.

The vetoes blocked a projected census of ordinary armaments, and a declaration that information on atomic wepons would be embraced in a Soviet-opposed majority plan for U. N. atomic controls.

On Austin's initiative, the Big Five delegates had met secretly yesterday and today.

Austin told the Council that the new meetings had found the Soviet still refusing to agree to refrain from vetoes on a list of topics suggested by the Assembly.

But Austin announced "our consultations indicate that we are in agreement, all of us, upon the principle and practice of consultation before important decisions are to be made, and we have agreed to meet again as soon as convenient to organize for the calling and holding of such consultations."

After the meeting, Malik told reporters he had "always been in favor of consultations" and would still take part in the Big Five talks. Austin also commented that he considered Big Five consultations "very important and looked to them with hope."

Crittenberger Named To Pact Military Unit

Lieut. Gen. Willis D. Crittenberger has been named deputy representative for the United States on the military committee of the North Atlantic Treaty military organization, Defense Secretary Johnson announced yesterday.

Crittenberger thus becomes deputy to Gen. Omar Bradley, who is the senior military representative on the military committee. Bradley also is chairman of the committee.

B-36 Faith Restated By Air Secretary

ports in an attempt to show that strategic bombing was a failure in the last war.

James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville Banner and a Naval Reserve captain, jumped into the row later in the day. He declared in Nashville that there was nothing anonymous or secret about "The Strategic Bombing Myth," that he had sent copies of it to fellow publishers after it was published in the Banner.

Symington inserted in the record a letter from Franklin D'Olier, chairman of the Strategic Bombing Survey, declaring the "Myth" misrepresented the survey's findings.

Committeemen, however, rejected Symington's plea that we "clean up this first." Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) warned "let's not get off the main track."

He declared that he wanted answers "to the things that are disturbing me and disturbing the country." These are, he explained, "Admiral Denfeld's charge that the Navy is not getting a fair deal at the Pentagon" and whether the Air Force opposes the Navy operating any aircraft carriers.

Representative George Bates (R., Mass.) chimed in that he also wanted to hear the question of the B-36's vulnerability to jet fighters settled. Bates mentioned the testimony of a parade of Navy technicians last week—mostly captains and commanders who told of successful interceptions of planes above 40,000 feet—and calling them "experts."

"Experts at what," grunted Symington.

"Interceptor experts," replied Bates.

Symington snapped that they weren't "experts on the B-36." He then launched into an attack on Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Pacific Fleet commander, for calling the B-36 a "billion-dollar blunder" and said that Radford then introduced some "young officers" who, of course, were "not going to disagree."

The committee, said the Air Force chief, should decide whether to rely on the opinions of USAF generals who handle the "design, construction and operation" of B-36s than "junior" officers.

Representative Dewey Short (R., Mo.) jumped to the defense of the Navy men. He said he'd rather "take it from these captains and commanders with war experience than those who saw blueprints."

Symington retorted that top Air Force leaders also led bombing missions.

"I believe with (Gen. Hoyt) Vandenberg and (Lieut. Gen. Curtis) LeMay that the B-36 is the best long-range bomber in the world," he declared. "I believe it can deliver the A-bomb to any part of the world with acceptable losses."

Most of the time, however, throughout yesterday's hearing, Symington passed up interrogations of this sort on the ground they were "military" questions and he was not qualified to answer. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, will take the stand this morning and is expected to deal with such matters.

In his prepared statement, Symington said that the "most disturbing" thing about the Navy attacks was its effect on "security." It was bad enough, he said, to reveal "technical and operating details of our newest and latest equipment," but "far worse" to tell an aggressor our "strategic plan" and "military doctrines."

On cross-examination, however, the Air Force chief agreed with Vinson that it was "better to bring out into the open the undercover row." He added that the Air Force approved of the committee's investigation as a "very good and cleansing procedure."

Representative Mendel Rivers (D., S. C.) questioned Symington about his statement that "control of the military by civilians" was the basic issue of the Navy attack. Wasn't this inconsistent with the Air Force fight for a 70-group Air Force in the Eightieth Congress?

No, replied the USAF chief. At that time they had the permission of Secretary of Defense James Forrestal to speak their mind to Congress.

Symington's statement took up the Navy charges one by one and branded them "false," "senseless," "a misstatement." He so denied:

1. That the Air Force went over Secretary Forrestal's head in expanding B-36 construction last January. Forrestal knew all about it, he said.

2. That the Air Force is "putting all its eggs in one basket" by spending most of its money for strategic bombing. Only six B-36 groups are planned under either the 48, 58, or 70-group programs and but 16.3 percent of USAF plane purchase funds in 1949, 1950 and 1951 will go to buy B-36s.

3. That the Air Force sonsidered the B-36 "invulnerable." Representative W. Sterling Cole (R., N. Y.), however, recalled that "either General LeMay or General (George) Kenney testified that if he sent 100 B-36s out he'd expect to get 100 back."

4. That the Air Force "favors mass atomic bombing of civilians," or is banking on a "quick, easy and painless war."

Under questioning, Symington said he did not agree with Gen. Carl (Tooey) Spaatz's advocacy of a single air force. The Navy and Marines should retain their aviation, he declared. He also denied that he opposes aircraft carriers. But Symington favored Spaatz's proposal that Navy airmen should be allowed to transfer to the Air Force.

The Air Force chief said he considered the carrier "the Navy's business" and the B-36 "Air Force business," but he added that they must "justify even the development of new weapons if it runs into important money."

Navy witnesses have argued that each service should be permitted to develop its own weapons—such as the prototype of the 65,000-ton carrier—and that higher authority should only approve or disapprove when mass production is planned.

Nominations Before Senate

terim appointment, with pay, to continue until the Senate acts in the next session.

There seemed to be no opposition to the appointment of Mead. He was named by Mr. Truman to fill the unexpired term of the FTC of Garland S. Ferguson.

Mead, 63, was Mr. Truman's successor in the Senate as head of the wartime investigating committee. He is to serve on the FTC until Sept. 26, 1955. About two years ago, after he left the Senate and was defeated in 1946 by Thomas E. Dewey for the governorship of New York, Mr. Truman offered him a job on the Power Commission.

He refused that post, but yesterday, in New York, he said he was "deeply interested in the work of the Trade Commission" and was happy to have the appointment.

Ferguson, who is 71, had asked the White House to be allowed to resign effective November 15, after 22 years of service an the FTC. His personal affairs, he wrote the President, required him to return to private practice. In a highly complimentary letter of reply, Mr. Truman accepted his resignation.

The Commerce Committee's vote for Wallgren was 10 to 0, with approving ballots cast by chairman Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) and Senators Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Tex.), Ernest W. MacFarland (D., Ariz.), Warren G. Magnuson (D., Wash.), Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.), Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.), Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.), Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.), and Homer Capehart (R., Ind.). Hunt and Tobey voted by proxy.

The vote for Mead was 11 to 0, with an additional proxy cast by Senator Clyde M. Reed (R., Kans.).

Cowan Blasts Red 'Diatribe' at U. S.

Singapore, Oct. 18 (AP).—The United States delegate to the United Nations' Far Eastern Economic Conference today sharply criticized the Soviet spokesman for "delivering a diatribe" against the International Bank and the United States.

The Soviet delegate, S. S. Hemtchina, minister to Thailand (Siam), charged the bank's officials were meddling in internal politics of other nations. He contended the United States was exerting political influence in determining loans, and added the Soviet Union could not put Far Eastern countries at the mercy of the Bank in financing projects.

The U. S. Ambassador to the Philippines, Myron M. Cowen, retorated the Bank could and must make its own conditions but no country was under any obligation to borrow.

He said the United States had only 32,000 of the Bank's 95,110 votes. The Bank, he went on, was anxious to help nations needing financial aid.

"For this body to attempt to dictate to the International Bank on the character and priority of loans is utterly bad," he said.

The discussion took place during a meeting on industry and trade, preliminary to the general ECAFE conference which begins Friday.

'Mental' Defense Hinted by Burgman

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The groundwork for a main-line defense contention—that Herbert Burgman was mentally irresponsible when he broadcast for the Nazis during the war—was laid late yesterday at his treason trial in District Court.

The defense offered a motion to subpena the defendant's wife, Mrs. Johanna Burgman, a German whom Burgman married in August, 1920, and whose address was given as Austin, Minn.

"This witness," the motion signed by Burgman said, "can testify as to the strange behavior of the defendant, peculiarities and eccentricities, all of which have a bearing on his mental capacity to commit the offenses alleged in the indictment."

Alias "Joe Scanlon"

Burgman is charged with 20 oxert acts of treason while allegedly broadcasting Nazi propaganda during the war over station "DEBUNK" under the alias "Joe Scanlon." A native-born American, the defendant was chief clerk of the military attache's office of the United States Embassy in Berlin when war broke out. He declined to be repartriated, the Government charges, and remained in Germany throughout the war.

Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin, meantime, sought to suggest that Government witnesses brought here from Germany to testify against Burgman are influenced by a desire to stay in this country.

"You don't want to offend the Department of Justice or the Immigration Service, do you?" Laughlin at one point asked Marianne Heilhecker, a wartime German radio technician who had testified she made recordings of Burgman's programs.

"I hardly believe the trial has anything to do with my staying here," the attractive young fraulein rejoined, "but I certainly don't want to say anything wrong in order to stay."

Testimony on 9 Acts

Through Miss Heilhecker and two other German technicians, the Government yesterday made its way through testimony as to nine of the 20 alleged overt acts of treason.

Rudolf Schweinhuber of Neckar, Germany, testified he made the recordings involved in two of the overt acts. Mrs. Ilse Hoffman, another German national, now living at 3015 16th st. nw., said she handled the recordings for another treasonable act charged in the indictment.

On cross-examination, Laughlin asked Schweinhuber, a graduate engineer, now employed at Radio Stuttgart, if he believed in God and if he had been a member of the Nazi Party. He got "yes" answers to both questions.

The witness said that before yesterday he had last seen the 53-year-old Burgman in July or August, 1943.

"Has his physical appearance changed since then?"

"Yes," said Schweinhuber, studying the arms-folded witness at the defense table, "he looks a little bad."

Mrs. Kasenkina Still Fearful Of Red Agents, She Declares

New York, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina, Russian school techer who escaped from the Russian consulate here 15 months ago by leaping from a third-floor window, said today she lives in constant fear of Soviet agents in this country.

"I'm still afraid," she said. "I still start at the rustling of the curtain. I am still in the shadows. Sleep is difficult. Like everyone who has grown up under the Soviets, I have been inoculated with fear. It takes time to be cured of fear."

When she goes anywhere, she said, she usually is accompanied by William Taraska, a policeman of Ukrainian descent.

"The other day Taraska was driving me through the city and a police car flashed by," she said. "I grabbed Taraska's arm and gasped 'Police!' He calmed me down. 'It's only the police,' he said. 'You're in America, remember?'"

She said she knows "without the shadow of a doubt" that her three sisters and their relatives were shot or sent to concentration camps because of her action.

"There is no family in Russia without some member arrested or shot," she said. "Some of the young people strut about like conquerors. But the Russian people on the whole hate their government and live miserably. If it came to war between the USSR and America a sigh of hope would rise in Russia—it would be their only chance to overthrow Stalin."

Jailed Reds Find Bunks Hard, Food Unappetizing

New York, Oct. 18 (AP). — The 11 Communist party leaders convicted of conspiracy to advocate overthrow of the United States Government find jail uncomfortable.

Their bunks are hard. The night lights glare in their eyes. There's a pungent smell of fresh paint. The food seems poor and unappetizing.

They're in the Federal house of detention awaiting sentencing Friday. They were convicted last Friday.

Mrs. John Gates, wife of the editor of the Daily Worker, one of the 11, saw her husband at the jail yesterday.

Gates looked haggard when she saw him, Mrs. Gates said.

"I wanted to bring him his pipe, but I was told it had to go to his lawyer, who would make formal application to the authorities, and I couldn't even give him a fresh pair of socks yesterday," she said.

"The cereal, the bread and the cheese all seem stale, the men say."

Judge Signs Order Permitting Hiss To Visit District

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell today signed an order permitting Alger Hiss, former State Department official who faces retrial on perjury charges November 1, to visit Washington, D. C., until October 28.

Hiss, free in $5000 bail, could not leave the Southern District of New York without court permission. Last Friday he lost a motion to have his second trial transferred to Vermont, where he spent part of the summer with court permission.

Red Trial Juror Gets New Call, Cries 'Enough'

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—For seven and a half wearying months, Author Russell Janney sat on the jury in the Communist conspiracy trial.

Last Friday the trial ended. Janney went home, and found waiting for him—a summons to serve on another jury.

"Enough," said Janney, "is enough."

He called his lawyer, who said Janney, author of "The Miracle of the Bells," probably could get excused.

New York, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—An 80-year-old Jewish elder was found beaten fatally today in a small synagogue.

The rabbi found Einhorn dying.

The rabbi said the congregation collection box had been robbed recently.

Judge Swears New Citizen in At Her Bedside

District Court went to the bedside of a 60-year-old invalid yesterday with a new lease on life written between the lines of a legal document.

Mrs. Ida Rose came to this country from Lithuania 40 years ago. Four years ago she came to her red brick bungalow at 1513 Downing st. ne. with her husband, Samuel. Two years ago she suffered a stroke, which has kept her in bed since.

And yesterday, she became the first civilian in Washington to be naturalized outside the walls of District Court.

She Smiles Broadly

"Four weeks ago I thought I'd really be gone," Mrs. Rose, dressed in a flower-print robe for the occasion, told Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut, who administered the oath.

But a broad smile swept away the sadness in her voice and belied her ill health when the judge told her:

"Now you are an American citizen, and you might take some comfort in that."

Mrs. Rose hesitated momentarily when she came to the part about renouncing "any foreign potentate," because it was an unfamiliar word. But she recited the words, "I will bear true faith and allegiance to the United States," as if they were of her native tongue.

Has Five Grandchildren

She met her husband, who operates the Rose Valet Service at 1906 Pennsylvania ave. nw., when she lived with her sister in Baltimore.

They have two daughters, a son and five grandchildren, all of whom live in Greater Washington.

Under the Naturalization Act of 1940, as amended, a Federal judge is permitted to administer the oath outside the courtroom under certain circumstances.

The next business between the court and the Rose family, however, is apt to be transacted as an ordinary naturalization matter.

Mrs. Rose's husband, who was born in Russia, has taken out first papers.

Pope Expected to Appoint Another American Cardinal

Vatican City, Oct. 18 (AP).—United States Catholics probably will have their representation in the College of Cardinals increased by at least one in a secret consistory to be held before the opening of Holy Year, December 25.

Some Vatican sources believe the Pope may fill all the 15 vacancies that have developed in the Sacred College since the 1946 consistories when 32 new cardinals were named to bring their roster to its full membership of 70.

Vatican sources say a likely candidate for the high honor is Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston.

Others considered as possible candidates include Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati, Archbishop John Joseph Mitty of San Francisco and Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter of St. Louis.

Huggins Cancer Test Has Failed, D. C. Doctors Are Told at Assembly

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The much-heralded Huggins blood test for cancer detection and cancer diagnosis has failed, District physicians were told here yesterday.

It has failed just as completely as the 25 to 35 "promising" blood cancer tests of preceding years, and the "hundreds" of other such tests which died a-borning, said Dr. Freddy Homburger of Boston.

Dr. Homburger made the failure report here yesterday in a symposium on cancer, in the second day program of the twentieth annual scientific assembly of the District Medical Society at Hotel Statler.

More encouraging news on another disease front came last night, however, when Dr. H. M. Weaver, director of research of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, disclosed details of what he termed a significant development in the search for a polio vaccine.

Within the past several weeks, Dr. Weaver told a public meeting of the scientific assembly, polio research workers have succeeded in growing strains of two of the three known polio viruses in mixture living tissues. The feat, he explained, will greatly speed polio research, particularly on drug effects on the viruuses.

First test tube growth of the viruses, Dr. Weaver said, were announced last February, but at that time the growth was accomplished on tissues of human embryos, or unborn children. The new development, out of the same laboratories of Dr. John Enders, chief of contagious diseases at Boston's Children's Hospital, uses foreskin tissues of circumsized boys of 3 to 10 years of age.

Eventually, Dr. Weaver said, research workers hope to transmit the growth medium to chicken egg embryos to produce a weakened virus strain capable of immunizing humans but too weak to cause crippling infantile paralysis. In much the same fashion, he said, the present smallpox vaccine was born.

Though statistical report of clinical investigations of the Huggins test will not be fully compiled for publication before January, Dr. Homburger said, the evidence already gathered is "overwhelmingly conclusive."

Dr. Homburger, research professor of medicine at Tufts College Medical School, said that at his own institution, where 450 cases of known cancer were given the test, only 60 percent were shown to have the disease—by the Huggins test procedure.

Other investigators testing patients on mere suspicions of cancer, he said, reported false-positive findings as high as 30 percent with the Huggins test. By that, he explained, the test indicated the patients had cancer which could not be confirmed by any other means, and therefore was ruled a false finding.

Somewhat similar disappointment has been recorded here at Doctors Hospital, it was learned separately. The local hospital was selected last June to evaluate the Huggins test in conjunction with other screening and diagnostic measures used at the Cancer Detection Center there.

Doctor Oscar B. Hunter, jr., hospital pathologist, said that of 250 tests completed on apparently healthy individuals, 4.9 percent were positive "though there was no indication of any malignant disease." Besides these, another group of 11.7 percent of the apparently healthy were classified by the test as of "doubtful" status. Negative findings, or no cancer indications, were shown by the test for the remaining 83.4 percent.

On the other side, Dr. Hunter's report showed, the Huggins test spotted cancer in only 36 percent of 58 cancer patients in advanced stages of the disease, and found another 7 percent of these patients in its doubtful category.

The Huggins test was devised by Dr. Charles B. Huggins, University of Chicago surgery professor. It purported to distinguish cancer in humans in blood-clotting timing tests of samples of their blood.

Hailed by Society Officials

Hailed as "simple, inexpensive and reasonably sure," the test was announced to the public last April 16 by officials of the American Cancer Society. Some predicted it might prove to be "the greatest single advance ever made in the fight against cancer."

In fairness to Dr. Huggins, who is a personal friend, Dr. Homburger told reporters, the Chicago surgeon and professor "wasn't nearly as enthusiastic about his test as others were."

Dr. Homburger told the physicians at the assembly of basic research being carried on in cancer and said that the failure of all blood tests to date does not mean a successful one will never be found.

At the same session, Dr. William C. Hueper, chief of the cancerigenic studies section, National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md., belittled two commonly accepted beliefs—that cancers follow chronic irritations and that cancer is inherited.

Little Valid Evidence

He termed the irritation theory "miasmic . . . and based on evidence of doubtful value." Of inheriting cancer or a predisposition to cancer, he declared "there is at present little valid evidence available to indicate hereditary influences are active in causation of the great majority of human cancers."

Dr. Elise Strang L'Esperance, director of New York's Strang Cancer Prevention Clinic, Memorial Cancer Center, told the physicians that routine clinic detection examinations there last year uncovered 19 cancers in 1356 persons examined without suspicious symptoms of the disease, for a rate of 1.4 percent.

Protestants Seek Unity on Child Welfare

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 18 (AP).—Delegates representing three-fourths of the Nation's Protestants met here today to seek a unified Protestant view on child welfare.

The two-day conference marked the first major attempt by America's 40 million Protestants to reach a common ground on a child welfare program.

This conference results primarily from a desire of the Protestant churches to play a more vital role in the scheduled 1950 White House conference for children to consider how to develop in children the mental, emotional and spiritual qualities essential to individual happiness and to responsible citizenship.

Dr. Paul Limbert, president of Springfield (Mass.) College, said his solution to the problem: is for laymen to make a more positive, aggressive expression of those fundamental values and convictions "which we as Protestants cherish."

U. S. Speeds Effort To End Steel Strike

By The Associated Press

The Government speeds its efforts to settle the big steel strike yesterday, while allowing John L. Lewis and the soft coal operators at least another 24 hours before it moves in on their strike negotiations.

Conciliation Director Cyrus S. Ching and his chief assistants, Peter Seitz and William N. Marsolis, met for several hours with Arthur J. Goldberg, general counsel for the CIO and the striking steelworkers' union.

Goldberg has been Philip Murray's top legal adviser in this strike. Around 500,000 steelworkers walked out October 1 in protest against employers' refusal to agree to a pension-insurance plan financed wholly by employers.

Thousands more are joining in the walkout daily as contracts with aluminum and steel fabricating plants employing more members of the same union expire.

The meeting between Goldberg and the conciliators was in preparation for sessions in New York this afternoon between Ching and U. S. Steel Corp. officials.

Today's meeting will be the first between Government representatives and the Nation's most important steel producer since the strike began. Similar conferences with officials of Bethlehem Steel Co.—ranked No. 2 in yearly steel ingot output—were held in New York last week. Ching also met counsel for Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. at lunch Monday.

Should Ching fail to obtain a coal back-to-work agreement this week, it was generally believed he would suggest that President Truman intervene.

White House intervention in the coal strike would mean a fact-finding board inquiry, but no recommended settlement—before an 80-day court injunction aimed at sending the 400,000 striking coal diggers back to the mines.

UMW, Operators Talks Still Deadlocked

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Negotiators for a coal contract took up their wearing chore today—and it was just another deadlock piled on deadlock.

After a two-hour session here between Northern and Western operators and United Mine Workers negotiators, George H. Love, operator spokesman said of the meeting:

"Typical—absolutely no progress."

UMW spokesman Thomas Kennedy retorted:

"I wouldn't go as far as George. I think he's in the dumps."

Kennedy did not say anything to indicate that the two sides are any closer than they were when the old contract expired June 30 or when the strike began a month ago tomorrow.

Another UMW negotiating team met with Southern operators at Bluefield, W. Va. After a routine 70-minute meeting, it was the same story—nothing.

Both groups will reconvene tomorrow at 10 a. m.

Murray Blames Strike On 'House of Morgan'

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—CIO President Philip Murray today said he is "satisfied" that the present steel strike represents a bankers' "conspiracy to destroy not only the United Steelworkers Union but the trade union movement as a whole.

Murray, at a news conference prior to speaking in nearby Gary, Ind., tonight, said this "conspiracy is spearheaded by the House of Morgan. It is difficult to understand why the industry should resist the modest demands of the union, the fact-finding board and the President of the United States.

"Unquestionably powerful resistance emanates from powerful banks and the House of Morgan. The United States Steel Corp. is the House of Morgan."

Schweinhaut Dissolves Ban On Picketing

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut yesterday dissolved an injunction granted last week to prevent picketing of a National Bureau of Standards cafeteria.

The District Court jurist ruled that there was no showing made in the court that the picketing conducted by the Restaurant Workers Local No. 471 was anything but peaceful. It was, therefore, not subject to injunction, he said.

The injunction had been given in a suit of Joseph Martz, operator of the cafeteria, which he took over during the summer from the Welfare Association of the bureau.

The pickets had complained of low wages at the Cafeteria.

Judge Schweinhaut overruled the contention of Martz' attorneys that the pickets were intimidating and belligerent, and that the leaflets they distributed were fraudulent.

'Pampered and Spoiled' Labor Opposes T-H Act, Denham Says

San Francisco, Oct. 18 (AP).—NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham today said that labor opposes the Taft-Hartley Act because it has been "pampered and spoiled by political influences and governmental favor."

Denham, whose post with the National Labor Relations Board was created by the Taft-Hartley Act, made clear that he considers the law a good one—just as the Wagner Act was a good law, he said, when it was passed.

"As it turned out," Denham said, "the application of the Wagner Act, its reception by the labor organizations and its abuse by such organizations, encouraged the administration given to it . . . very well could have led us to the most disastrous results."

The consequence, Denham said in an address prepared for delivery to the Commonwealth Club, was the Taft-Hartley Act—"a piece of legislation which, if properly administered with a view to accomplishing the greatest good for the greatest number, can, I think, do more to bring about industrial peace than any other legislation we have ever had."

Denham declared that the Nation's economy is equally dependent on management, labor and capital, and added:

"What all of us must do is vigorously protect that tripod, and patiently recognize the factors that can shake it, either intentionally or otherwise."

Own Local Moves to Suspend UE President

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 18 (AP).—The executive board of his own local has voted to suspend Albert Fitzgerald, national president of the CIO United Electrical Workers Union.

In a 6 to 5 vote last night, the board held that Fitzgerald was guilty of conduct detrimental to the local in supporting a left-wing faction at the national convention. The 17,000 members of the Lynn local will vote on the board's recommendation on Monday.

Fitzgerald, as leader of the left-wing faction, voted for himself for president.

He has challenged legality of the proceedings against him instituted by Fred Kelley, business agent of the Lynn local whom Fitzgerald defeated for the national presidency of the union.

Kelley claimed the Lynn local went on record in favor of supporting the right-wing faction but Fitzgerald and three other delegates defied instructions.

Leo Corcoran, one of the delegates facing suspension with Fitzgerald, was the only one to appear before the executive board of Local 201 to defend himself yesterday.

9 Locals to Withraw From Tractor Union

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 18 (AP).—Nine of the 10 locals of District 6 (CIO), Farm Equipment Workers, have decided to withdraw from the national organization and will seek affiliation with other CIO unions.

Peter Aversa, president of District 6, announced today the decision was reached last night by the district's executive board after the membership of the nine locals earlier had voted against merger with the CIO United Electrical Workers.

The nine locals represent about 1700 workers in plants here and in Syracuse.

Aversa said the 1800 members of the tenth local in District 6, Local 180, International Harvester Co., would vote on the resolution Thursday.

More Schools Asked At Budget Hearing

year during which the raise is effective.

Rufus S. Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers Association, urged close scrutiny of the school requests. "Many of the existing schools may be old, but they are not obsolete and can be renovated and rehabilitated at far less cost than building new buildings," he declared.

Charles J. Bauer, executive executive secretary of the Building Owners and Managers Association of Metropolitan Washington, recommended "some restraint in spending. Of course our children must obtain at least a primary education at public expense; but do we need 10 million dollars more next year than this year for schools."

On the other side, however, were 19 groups each pleading for additional educational facilities and personnel in their areas. The far Southeast section, center of much wartime and postwar building, was strongly represented in pleas for schools.

Mrs. Ruth E. Glennon, president, Congress Heights Parent-Teachers Association, said the area has 30,000 children of school age and desperately needs two more elementary schools, another junior high school and shortly a senior high school.

This was backed by Howard Nessen of the Washington Highlands Citizens Association, who said the elementary school in his area now has double capacity and more children coming of school age all the time. He favored asking for a Federal loan or issuance of city bonds, if necessary, to erect additional school buildings.

The League of Women Voters of the District favored a long-range loan from the Federal Government or legislation to float a city bond issue for school construction.

Mrs. John C. McClintock, president, said: "There is no more important planning problem for municipal authorities and for Congress than the provision of the right schools in the right location to take care of the increase of school children during the war years and after." She estimated space and equipment for 15,000 additional youngsters "will have to be found during the next seven years."

A long term, interest-free loan for schools and a larger Federal contribution were supported by Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell, speaking for the Metropolis View Citizens Association.

The larger Federal payment was also backed by Mrs. James M. Cox, president, District Congress of Parents and Teachers, to provide for schools.

Further funds for the "fire trap" Hine Junior High School was urged by Michael Lane of the Southeast Washington Businessmen's Association and the Capitol Hill Lions Club. He was seconded by Mrs. Sam Hogan of the Hine P-TA.

In other school requests:

Robert Brooks, president, Terrell P-TA, asked for a new Terrell Junior High School; Frederick C. Belen, president, Shipley Terrace Citizens Association, urged more schools for the rapidly growing Southeast area.

Mrs. Edward B. Morris, president, Fort Davis Citizens Association, asked for purchase of land for a new elementary school in the vicinity of Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Minnesota and Alabama aves. se.

Mrs. Gertrude Evans, executive secretary, Progressive Party of the District, and Mrs. Lillian Millman of the Southeast Club, Progressive Party, spoke for dropping segregation and additional schools.

Henry Austin, Bradbury Heights Citizens Association, asked expansion of the Adelaide Davis Elementary School; Alexander Hawes, Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown, said residents send children to other schools because present public schools are inadequate.

Gardner L. Bishop, president, Consolidated Parent Group, declared Negro schools are below the white ones in quality and urged full approval of Board of Education requests; Mrs. Eunis Hayes, secretary, Francis Junior High P-TA, urged a new school, stating the present one has no gymnasium and a 156-person cafeteria for 1000 students.

Mrs. Marion B. Scott, president, Federation of Parent-Teachers Associations, asked for more teachers in the Cardozo School and two additional dental clincs in far Northeast and Southeast sections.

Mrs. Gilbert Weiss, legislative chairman, Stanton School P-TA, requested reduction in size of classes and purchase of land sites for junior and senior high schools.

Mrs. Rosina T. Tucker, Public Interest Civic Association, declared schools were overcrowded and the Lovejoy School, particularly, needed improvements; Milton S. Bush, Armstrong Alumni Association, Inc., asked earmarking of a million dollars for new Armstrong Technical High School.

Expansion of driver training in the schools was urged by Washington I. Cleveland of the American Automobile Association. He was supported by A. Julian Brylawski and Baxter Smith of the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board.

Construction of libraries in their areas was asked by David R. Barbee, Connecticut Avenue Citizens Association; Fred T. Devine, Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association, and Thomas E. Lodge, American University Park Citizens Association.

The most dramatic plea of the day was made by Mrs. Henry A. Bartlett, 3817 17th pl. ne., speaking as a delegate of the Burroughs Citizens Association.

Speaking in a low tone toward the end of the six-hour parade of witnesses, she told the Commissioners of the death of infants in local private hospitals through lack of regulation of obstetric and pediatric practices. An infant among her close relatives died during an unreported epidemic of diarrhea at a local private hospital. She said another, the child of a friend, died three days after being dropped from the delivery table during birth.

Dr. Benjamin Striner, appearing for the Federation of Citizens Associations health committee, termed the present lax practices a "wanton waste of life" and declared Washington has "the second worst record in the country for diarrhea conditions among children."

He joined Mrs. Bartlett in asking the Commissioners to set aside funds for employment of a physician by the Health Department to enforce new regulations approved by the District Medical Society and the Federation of Citizens Associations.

A tale of continuing woe was unfolded before the city heads by Arthur R. Cochel, sr., president of the Columbia Park Community Club.

For the past 23 years homes in the vicinity of 4th to 8th sts. on Ingraham and Hamilton sts. nw. have been flooded regularly because of inadequate sewers. Basements are filled with 2 to 3 feet of "disease-laden muck and slime," which could easily set off a city-wide epidemic, Cochel warned.

He then presented a petition signed by about 200 residents urging expenditure of 5½ million dollars for sewers in the Piney Branch system to alleviate this condition. While the Commissioners were studying this, he pulled out another petition submitted to the city heads 20 years ago asking for the same kind of improvement.

Among the recommendations made yesterday were these:

John H. Connaughton, president, Federation of Citizens Associations, warned the city government not to go on a "spending spree" because of the sales tax. He said the budget should be held down to 112 million with the Federal contribution boosted to 30 million.

Connaughton joined with Lusk and Jerome B. McKee of the Federation of Businessmen's Associations in asking a reduction in the real estate tax rate.

John A. Reilly, chairman, Municipal Finance Committee of the Washington Board of Trade, said public hearings on the budget should be held after Commissioners complete cuts in departmental requests and have a good idea of revenue anticipation.

G. Calvert Bowie, Washington Real Estate Board, urged a larger Federal contribution.

John K. Hoskins, Washington Housing Association, supported additional funds for the Health Department Bureau of Public Health Engineering, Inspections Department and National Capital Park and Planning Commission in a three-pronged drive on slum clearance.

Charles J. Harnett, Washington Building Congress, and Grosvenor Chapman, Washington chapter, American Institute of Architects, asked additional personnel for the Inspections Department to speed up building permit issuance.

Philip Austin and Mrs. Ellen Lee Park of the District Bar Association Juvenile Delinquency Committee asked for appointment of research and statistical personnel for Juvenile Court plus three additional probation officers. Roger Robb of the Court's Advisory Committee requested this, also.

Jacob Sandler of the Bar Association Municipal Court Committee declared addition of 7 to 9 more clerks in the court would clear up about 750,000 cases now pending.

Daniel O'Donoghue, Hospital Council of the National Capital Area, urged payment of actual costs to private hospitals for care of indigents, rather than fractions of the amount.

Dr. Maurice Protas, president, District Diabetes Association, asked for funds to establish free clinics for diabetes detection.

Miss Etta L. Taggart, president, Washingtonians, urged sale of the Soldiers' Home and transfer of residents to Federal institutions. She urged a Federal lottery.

William Maio, Southeast Washington Citizens Association, asked for funds to continue rehabilitation of the Capitol Hill area.

Howard D. Woodson, Northeast Boundary Citizens Association, said pavement of Grant st. ne. from Kenilworth ave. to the District line is essential.

Capt. Joseph F. Jelley, John Eaton P-TA, urged purchase of five acres of Twin Oaks for use as playground. He said the project has been planned for 20 years.

Paul Cherney, United Community Services of Washington, said his group backs the Welfare Department budget request and recommended additional funds because of current living costs.

Mrs. Isabel Moore, speaking as an individual, suggested a network of recreation and athletic facilities across the city.

Mrs. Anita J. Candee, vice president, Preschool Play Center, Mothers' Council of Washington, asked establishment of additional play centers and better pay for per-diem workers.

Mrs. B. G. McIlwee, 517 Peabody st. nw., opposed funds for day nurseries, declaring mothers should take care of their own youngsters.

'Hill' Light Bill Is Passed

The Senate last night approved and sent to the White House a bill for a 16-million-dollar modernization of the lighting and heating systems of the Capitol and nearby buildings.

A result of the bill will be eventual purchase from the Potomac Electric Power Co. of 60-cycle alternating current to serve the Capitol Hill buildings now supplied with 25-cycle direct current generated at the Capitol Power Plant. New heating equipment and an enlarged air conditioning supply also are included in the plan.

Money to start the repair program was also cleared by the Senate with voice vote passage of the second supplemental appropriation bill. The Senate wrote into it a fund of $950,000 to begin the job.

Also approved in the supplemental bill was $175,000 for building a new swimming pool in Fort Stanton Park in southeast Washington. This fund, and the one for Capitol repairs, still must be cleared by the House. The swimming pool money was turned down by the House, when it acted on the bill.

The measure is slated for conference, and for final action of Congress today.

On another issue, Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) filed a statement with the Senate protesting the decision of the Senate Appropriation Committee dropping the House-approved plan for a $3,500,000 new Census Building in Suitland, Md.

The Senate group decided, instead, to go ahead with plans for alloting space in Philadelphia to the Census Bureau for the 1950 census, and granted $870,000 to get the facilities ready.

O'Conor said that maximum efficiency would be obtained with a minimum expense by concentrating the census work at Suitland. He did not make a fight on the issue in debate, however, and the Senate approved its committee's plan.

The Senate also approved the $50,000 granted by the House for expenses of the commission on renovation of the Executive Mansion.

"Tuck" and "Bobbie" Shepard of Hyde Park, Cincinnati, both agree
"Fall is a Perfect Vacation Time at the New Greenbrier"

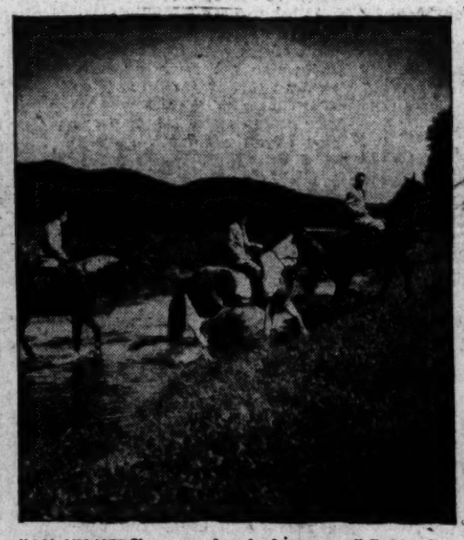
FISHING, SWIMMING, GOLF, TENNIS give Ohio Shepards an autumn holiday they'll always remember. "It wouldn't be Greenbrier," both insist, "without a pilgrimage to the spring that made White Sulphur famous."

"MARVELOUS FOOD served right in our room," they tell friends. "And what a room to have breakfast in! Dorothy Draper's giant roses all over the place. Wait 'til you see the decorating ideas we picked up for our house."

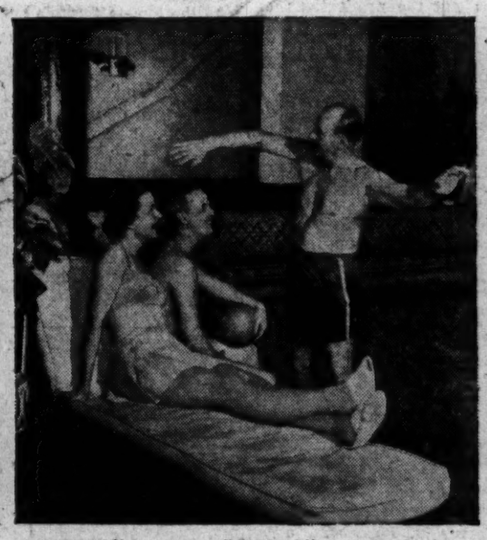
"AND WE MET such wonderful people," says Mrs. Shepard. "Here are the Harrison Brands of Washington." Tuck likes Greenbrier's tennis courts. "If they're good enough for exhibitions, they're okay with me," he says.

"CAUGHT A TROUT the first half hour," Tuck recalls for Ohio fishermen. "A fighter, too." And that's no fish story. Howard's Creek produced fish and fun for Shepards and Brands. Line on Tuck's postcard sent to Ohio parents—"Bobbie almost fell in."

"NO WONDER Sam Snead makes Greenbrier his headquarters," golfing Shepards say as they shoot one of Greenbrier's three beautiful courses. No tournament players, Shepards enjoy game arranged for them with Connecticut couple with same handicap.



"ALL MY LIFE I've wanted to ford a stream." Bobbie has photograph to prove she did it at The Greenbrier. "A pinto named Witch gave me a good ride—once down Valley Trail, then in the mountains where we saw a deer."



"WE FELT like movie stars." Bobbie likes to remember happy hours beside Greenbrier pool. "One day the coach showed us the crawl stroke his daughter used to win Olympic championship. He taught her to swim right there at Greenbrier."

"I'LL THINK about Greenbrier whenever I hear sentimental music," Bobbie says dreamily. "They played old and new favorites the Saturday night I wore my nicest dinner dress and felt like a real belle. May the songs and I be that popular each time we go back."

FOR a century White Sulphur Springs has attracted couples like the Shepards who want vacations to mean fun, adventure, new friends. At The Greenbrier, holiday dreams come true. Mansion grace, southern hospitality, wonderful things to do. Greenbrier is out of this world in everything but price. Rates per person, for double room with private bath, average $19-$20 per day—some as low as $16—including breakfast, lunch, tea and dinner. Send for color photograph booklet.

Modern Beehives

Anyone who has taken a good look at the proliferation of new house and apartment developments ringing Washington for many miles will have considerable sympathy with the plea of the Montgomery County Civic Federation for a breathing period. In almost every nearby community—Alexandria and Arlington and Fairfax Counties in Virginia and Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties in Maryland—the phenomenal growth of population has far outdistanced the ability of local facilities to accommodate it. Schools have resorted to half-day sessions and are still bursting at the seams; roads are clogged and inadequate; utilities are strained to the utmost. In some areas, notably Fairfax County, there is a serious sanitation problem. Inevitably, despite prodigious efforts at expansion, there has been a great deal of dislocation.

We doubt, however, that the moratorium on apartment permits proposed by the Civic Federation would help matters. For these present-day pueblos are merely symptomatic of the general problem of population growth, and an attempt to block construction in one area would merely increase the congestion in neighboring communities. As a matter of fact, the decentralized pattern of suburban development, with fringe shopping centers, is the most promising means of preventing slums and taking care of newcomers.

What these growing pains illustrate is the necessity for more metropolitan planning. If communities attempt to meet on a purely local basis the problems of growth that are general in nature, not only will they be swamped, but the result will be an unsatisfactory conglomerate. Assuredly there must be more streets and superhighways, more schools, better fire and police protection, more sewers. But if an impossible burden of present debt is to be avoided, these needs must be approached, not on a day-to-day basis, but as part of an integrated area plan with long-term financing. King Canute could not hold back the tide, and neither can Montgomery County. As the Nation and its Government continue to grow, so will Greater Washington, and if that growth is to be healthy, new residents cannot be left to double up in the attic.

What Kind Of Planes?

Air Secretary Symington has given some much-needed assurances in his rebuttal of the mixture of serious charges and plain caterwauling aired by the Navy. It is not true, he says, that the Air Force favors "mass atomic bombing of citizens." Nor is the Air Force overemphasizing the long-range B-36 bomber at the expense of other types of aircraft. Moreover, he does not go along with General Spaatz's thesis that the Navy's air arm should be merged with the Air Force. These are categorical statements of policy which it is good to have on the record.

Furthermore, Secretary Symington made an excellent point against the subrosa circulation of The Strategic Bombing Myth, supposedly by Navy sources. Although the Air Force has been responsible for some questionable leaks in the past, certainly in the present row it has been extremely circumspect, and it has gained a good deal of stature from the fact that it has not replied in kind to the Navy's below-the-belt tactics.

The mere statement of a policy does not, however, make that policy a practical fact. For example, if major stress is placed upon long-range strategic bombing, may this not lead inevitably to the mass atomic bombing of citizens? Is it not likely that the size and vulnerability of the B-36 to fighter attack, requiring it to remain at high altitudes, would turn attempts at precision bombing into indiscriminate saturation?

And is not reliance on long-range bombing implicit in Mr. Symington's statement that "the ability to fight from our own shores at the start of any war should not be looked upon with contempt"? Assuredly, that ability should not be depreciated. But, whatever the Air Force intentions, stress of the "from our own shores" aspect plays into the hands of the neo-isolationists who believe that a war somehow could be won comfortably by an intercontinental atomic blitz. This illusion must be dismaying to the European nations who are now our Allies.

Two issues have developed from testimony before the House. The first concerns the worth of strategic bombing, in the sense of long-range heavy bombing rather than selective, precision bombing by medium-weight planes. Pertinent in this connection is the secret study mentioned by Admiral Denfeld of the probable effects of atomic bombing on Russia—a study which reportedly concludes that an atomic blitz would not work. The second issue is a derivative of the first, and it concerns the merits of the B-36 itself. No layman is competent to evaluate either issue. Nor does the answer lie in the approach taken by Representative Vinson, which seems to be to give each military service all that it asks.

It is evident that a vacuum exists in that vital area of national policy determination that has to do with the definition of war objectives and the integration of strategy with them. This is the main point to settle, and a good way to do it would be to appoint a board of civilian experts to review strategy, including strategic bombing, in line with national objectives. At the same time, tests of the B-36 by the Joint Weapons Evaluation Group ought to be pushed to completion promptly. Without these determinations, it is hard to see how legislators, or the public, can have an intelligent appreciation of air power needs. In this connection the cave-in of Senate conferees to the House demand to enlarge the number of air groups looks more like adjournment expediency than a vote based rationally on knowledge.

Truman's Judges

Some weeks ago President Truman remarked that he looked upon the selection of Federal judges as his most important task. At the time he was studying the qualifications of numerous candidates for the 27 new judgeships created by Congress. In the judicial nominations of the last few days there is some evidence of careful deliberation, but also, unfortunately, evidence of casual regard for the needs of the courts—or mere politics.

On the credit side is the nomination of Gov. William H. Hastie of the Virgin Islands to become a judge of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals. In addition to being an able lawyer, Governor Hastie has been a United States district judge in the Virgin Islands. His background and experience well qualify him to take the new assignment, and, while many will applaud this recognition of an eminent Negro lawyer, the appointment merits praise because of the nominee's personal fitness for the assignment without regard to race.

As to the local nominations, some very able lawyers have been chosen, but there is a question as to whether the President studied the need of the courts with the care that the selection of judges demands. For the United States Court of Appeals for the District the nominees are Charles Fahy, former Solicitor General and a man of wide experience who is highly respected in the legal profession; George Washington, a brilliant legal scholar who comes of a family of judges and has had a good deal of experience in government in addition to his service as Assistant Solicitor General; and David L. Bazelon, a Chicago lawyer-politician, who has been an Assistant Attorney General since 1946. The only question that arises with respect to Mr. Washington is why he was chosen for the Court of Appeals at the age of 41 instead of being given an apprenticeship on the District Court. As for Mr. Bazelon, who is 39, it is difficult to find any good reason for his nomination, and if the President felt obligated to give Mr. Bazelon a judicial post, he might at least have assigned him to the lower court.

For the District Court the President has chosen: James R. Kirkland, a prominent Washington attorney; Charles F. McLaughlin, a former Congressman from Nebraska, but also a seasoned lawyer of judicial temperament; and Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews, who has been practicing law in the District for 20 years, and who had the indorsement of the District Bar Association's committee on judicial selection. It was previously reported that one of these posts was to go to Walter M. Bastian, one of the top-ranking lawyers of the District bar, but it seems that Mr. Bastian was eliminated at the last moment because, forsooth, he has only judicial qualifications.

One other factor about the nominations to the Court of Appeals is disturbing. By naming three Democrats to fill the newly created judgeships the President has added to the serious lack of balance within the court. It now has one Republican and eight Democratic judges. When the courts are overweighted with members of only one party, it is impossible to maintain the appearance of a nonpartisan judiciary. Some of the Democratic members of the Court of Appeals are known to be concerned about the President's seeming insistence that all his appointments to it bear the Democratic tag. The quality of justice is inevitably diluted if the courts, or even some of them, are consistently staffed by lawyers from only one party.

Sensible Ruling

Justice di Giovanna of the New York State Supreme Court has dismissed a suit brought by Mr. Murray D. Rosenberg, a taxpayer, to oblige the Board of Education of New York City to exclude The Merchant of Venice and Oliver Twist from the reading lists of the public schools. Mr. Rosenberg had sought to show that such books encourage children to regard the characters of Shylock and Fagin as representative of the Jewish character and were therefore productive of anti-Semitic prejudice.

Justice di Giovanna, however, held that efforts by minorities to exercise a literary censorship would be far more likely to engender resentments and group hostilities than the reading of the books in question, which after all, as he said, are recognized works of art. A censorship, he observed, would be justified only where it could be shown that a book had been "maliciously written for the apparent purpose of fomenting a bigoted and intolerant hatred against a particular racial or religious group," and such an intention could not be shown in the case of either Shakespeare or Dickens.

We think the view expressed by Justice di Giovanna is the one of common sense. If works of literature are to be excluded from reading courses whenever some member of some minority deems them offensive, there would be no literature left to study.

Indian Policy

President Truman's veto of the bill to aid the Navaho and Hopi Indians ought to be a sobering experience for both the Administration and Congress. This measure was launched by the Bureau of Indian Affairs not because any legislation was needed but for the purpose of making a show of activity in behalf of the poverty-stricken Navaho and Hopi tribes. It would have been more practical and more candid simply to have asked for appropriations to carry out the program that the bureau had in mind. For Congress attached amendments that made signature of the bill unwise and may have prejudiced the cause of getting a simple appropriation through.

So far as Congress is concerned, the veto is a justifiable rebuke for its indulgence in the rider habit. In its original form the bill was solely concerned with rehabilitation of the Navaho and Hopi Indians. The House attached a slap-dash rider that would have brought the tribes under State law and might have jeopardized some of their existing rights under tribal and Federal laws. While there is widespread agreement that the present isolation of the Indians on reservations should be relaxed, that objective can be attained to the advantage of the Indians only by gradual evolution over a long period. It could not have been suddenly imposed upon the Navahos and Hopis without confusion, probable lawlessness and perhaps loss of property.

In reluctantly vetoing the bill, President Truman says he will ask for an appropriation to carry out its rehabilitation features. We hope Congress will consider that request on its merits next year. Then let Congress deliberate upon the problem of gradually ending the Indians' isolation, in full consultation with the Bureau of Indian Affairs, with the object of working out a long-range policy that can be applied as rapidly as the various tribes are ready for it.

Robeson's Rights

Paul Robeson, the noted baritone and political savant, came to Washington last week, saw an audience that came to see and hear him and left, we imagine, without conquering any who were not already conquered. His constitutional right to sing and speak as he pleased was unconstrained. No violence, indeed no disorder of any kind, attended his appearance. If this city is none the wiser for his visit, it is none the worse, either.

Washington might have been much the worse for Paul Robeson's coming, had it not been for thoroughly intelligent preparations on the part of leaders of this community, official and nonofficial. No doubt Mr. Robeson's sponsors would have liked nothing better than to provoke in the National Capital, as they succeeded in doing at Peekskill, N.Y., a noisy counter-demonstration and perhaps a violent clash which would have enabled them to pose as champions of civil liberties. They were kept from this achievement and their rights were effectively safeguarded, as they should have been, by the Metropolitan Police Department, which had plenty of force available to maintain law and order. But as it turned out there was no threat to law and order because local organizations, including all the veterans groups, were astute enough to realize that the wisest way to deal with the Robeson rally was to leave it strictly alone.

Idaho Appointment

Former Senator Henry C. Dworshak, with whose services the people of Idaho thought they had dispensed last November, will return to the Senate through appointment by Idaho's Republican Governor, C. A. Robbins. Senator Dworshak will succeed the late Bert H. Miller, a Democrat, who roundly defeated him at the polls and who died here 10 days ago. The Governor of Idaho has indisputable legal power, of course, to thumb his nose in this fashion at the people of his State. But we wonder if it is good politics or even good sense, let alone good taste, to send this unregenerate isolationist back to Washington against the express wishes of his constituents.

Halloween "Mardi Gras"

With the approach of Halloween and our community's past experience with it as something of a nightmare and headache, we might well take stock at this time. We know children are great imitators. Dad and other adults in the family quite frequently portray a vivid picture of their escapades as kids in observance of Halloween, but usually conclude by saying: "But don't let me catch you doing anything like that." Rather silly isn't it?

Furthermore, we give public presentation to that which is expected in the way of antics and vandalism on this annual occasion. Then we say to the youngsters: "If you behave yourselves as you should, we will give you apples, cakes, etc., and maybe even ice cream. How nice. The kids are way ahead of us at this point.

For at least the past 10 years we in the Washington Boys' Clubs have been developing Halloween as a local "Mardi Gras" for youngsters, leaving out the traditional acts of vandalism of past generations. The results have been as you might expect as mature adults. The youngsters have a grand time at our clubs and the neighborhoods in which they are located are quite free from vandalism.

CHARLES M. FYFE,
Executive Director, Boys' Clubs of Washington.

"Lobbying"

Your thoughtful October 15 editorial, "Lobbying," prompts me to suggest that Alexis de Tocqueville more than 100 years ago most prophetically suggested in his chapter "What Sort of Despotism Democratic Nations Have to Fear" in his penetrating discussion of American Democracy what has become established and necessary practice in the United States.

He wrote: "An association for political, commercial or manufacturing purposes, or even for those of science and literature, is a powerful and enlightened member of the community, which cannot be disposed of at pleasure, or oppressed without remonstrance; and which, by defending its own rights against the encroachments of the Government, saves the common liberties of the country."

It has to be regretfully noted that along with the power for good of such groups there are those who are ready allies of political partisans who thrive on ever expanding the Government rather than maintaining an eye single for the public welfare.

Japan's Red Ties

In his October 16 article, "New Japan Will Need Red Links," Owen Lattimore points out that Soviet Russia, by holding both eastern Germany and China, has made it necessary for western Germany and Japan to bargain with her for access to the resources of those regions. "Reluctantly and with foreboding, Washington is resigning itself to the prospect that a Red China, by controlling its own raw materials, will be able to bargain with Japan on equal terms. This in turn will mean that Japan's relations with China and Russia will become as important as its relations with the United States."

However, all is not as hopeless as Mr. Lattimore would lead us to believe. If, in negotiating the peace treaty with Japan, we were to renounce the Yalta Agreement and refuse to recognize the Sino-Russian Treaty of August 15, 1945, then legally Japan and not China (Russia) would be in possession of south Manchuria, the Kuriles and Sakhalin; Japan would owe her legal possession of these territories, as well as Formosa, to us and not to Russia, and Japan could then be readied, with our aid, in the ultimate step of repossessing the areas which had been wrested from her, ostensibly to be returned to the Nationalists, but now, to all intents and purposes, occupied by Soviet Russia. REALIST.

"Austrian Discontent"

Your October 16 editorial, "Austrian Discontent," gives an extremely misleading picture of the situation. The fact that the extreme rightist party of Dr. Herbert Kraus, "League of Independents," polled almost 500,000 votes in the recent national elections was not at all a symptom of discontent among Austrian voters. These 500,000 are merely Nazi Party members who are voting this year for the first time since the end of the war.

In the previous election of October, 1945, this half-million was forbidden by law to vote as part of the extremely mild punishment meted out to Austrian Nazis. This year they were permitted to vote and they clearly voted for Kraus and his group, who had been beating the drums of "forgive and forget" for the Nazis since 1947. The majority parties, Peoples Party and Socialists, numerically gained strength over 1945 and the Communists lost a little, although by revision of districts they gained one new seat.

For the record, little Austria, with its seven million inhabitants, managed to sign on 500,000 Nazi Party members after the German invasion of 1938. The Austrian tendency toward fascism and the strong-fist mentality is such as to call for further Allied occupation and rigorous reindoctrination. OBSERVER.

Import Delays

Your columns indicate your recognition of the importance of increased United States imports if our Government is seriously interested in lending its aid toward sound international trade.

As a result of an expensive European business trip, we arranged for the importation of white oak barrels. Our Paris office sent us a sample barrel, valued at $13. The French authorities cooperated splendidly and the barrel was on the boat within two days.

United States Customs held it up in New York for two weeks, although it was plainly marked as a sample for "rush" delivery. The New York custom house brokers made no attempt to notify us of its arrival, although the sample was clearly marked with our name and address and we maintain a New York office. The custom house brokers in New York eventually forwarded the barrel to a custom house broker in Washington, where the barrel remained for several more days before we were notified.

We immediately requested delivery of our $13 barrel and after two more days we received it, along with an invoice showing charges as follows:

|---|---|
| "1 empty barrel | |
| Storage | $ .50 |
| Ocean Freight | 15.00 |
| Foreign Charges & NYC Charges | 44.10 |
| Inland Freight | 1.67 |
| Cartage and Arranging Delivery | 2.06 |
| Drayage to Customhouse | .52 |
| Messenger Service | 1.00 |
| Duty | 1.88 |
| Customs Entry and Services | 4.00 |
| | $70.73" |

Custom house brokers would directly benefit from increased United States imports. We have never been able to get an explanation of their charges or their delays or their procedures.

"Eyes Of The Fleet"

May I suggest that the Alsops read the Navy testimony more carefully before they write long columns such as that of October 14, stating what they imagine the admirals said?

The Alsops state that the admirals condemn all strategic bombing while asking for a share in it. Any intelligent person who read the testimony will agree that the admirals said no such thing! They did say that bombing from 40,000 feet could not be depended upon to wipe out purely military targets and that it is inexcusable when used in such a way that it leaves a future generation maimed in body and warped in mind while failing to destroy the enemy's war potential.

Carrier planes would enable us to drop bombs from a lower altitude with much more certainty of accuracy and it would be done by faster, less vulnerable, shorter range planes accompanied by necessary fighter protection. The Air Force apparently has planes of this type, too, but they are dependent on overseas bases which would be the enemy's first target for destruction or capture. In that event, without carriers, we'd be stuck.

The Alsops agree that the primary function of the Navy is to maintain control of the seas, but failed, apparently, to read the testimony which pointed to the value of carriers as "the eyes of the fleet" in that important job. HELEN S. CRAIG.

"Funds For The Sesqui"

Your October 13 editorial, "Funds for the Sesqui," deserves some comment. I, for one, cannot agree that the issue is at all resolved by the mere passage of funds for the planned celebration. Congress has not yet "done its duty," and will not have done its duty unless and until this city of Washington becomes a fitting setting for a "Freedom Fair."

I do not feel that Washington is at all worthy of this honor. Not that there is any lack of material symbols of what we have come to regard as the American way of life. Quite the contrary. We can come here to find the great buildings that house the working departments of our Government—and beautiful buildings they are. We can find here the hallowed memorials to the men who gave voice and meaning to the ideals of our democracy—and impressive memorials they are. We can find here the documents and exhibits that marked the birth of our Nation and its liberties, carefully preserved under glass for all who wish to see.

But there are other things. Things that repudiate and deny the very ideals the "Freedom Fair" is supposed to honor. And I am sorely afraid that these visitors whom your editorialist hopes "may obtain a better understanding of this shrine of their liberties" will find disillusionment and shame instead.

I wonder, for instance, about the visitor who after being duly reverent before the great documents on display at the Library of Congress comes out to find men and women eating their lunches on the Library lawn because the restaurants along the street refuse to serve American citizens whose skin is of a darker hue.

I wonder about the visitor who turns his gaze from the shining marble of our public buildings and monuments set in vast stretches of green and looks upon the slums and hovels that mark the ghettos that Washington has set aside for these same American citizens—into which they are forced and in which they are imprisoned by a wall of unreasoning prejudice.

Fresh Look At The Free Life

By Malvina Lindsay

Holding The Heritage

WHAT THE visiting German woman jurist said made me momentarily very proud. Now I find it haunting and a little disturbing.

Suddenly in the midst of surface talk she looked about her hostess' cheerful living room, aglow with fellowship, alive with conversational challenge, and exclaimed with deep feeling, "This is a good land . . . the best land!"

Why?

"Oh, you live so well, you have so many comforts, such plenty. But," she paused, "the big thing is harder to put in words. It's what one feels, senses constantly here—the great freedom. Always, everywhere, you speak out, say what you think. You go where you please, do what you want. You are so easy, relaxed, fearing nothing."

She spoke of many incidents. In a college classroom she visited a student had interrupted the professor with "Will you please speak louder?" Another student had said firmly "I don't agree with you," when the professor had finished, then had taken the floor to tell why. Her woman companion (both are on a visiting panel of German jurists) broke in eagerly, "That's the the way we want our youth to be!"

On the boat both had been amazed at American children who were guided with such light hands and low voices by their parents, who were so early made independent and responsible. And both everywhere had heard Americans of all types declaiming earnestly how the country ought to be run. "Everyone here feels so responsible," one observed, to the surprise of several guests who had just maintained that an atomic blitz could not have competed with the World Series.

SOMEONE gave the Constitution credit for this great "feel" of American freedom. It was that, of course, but more, the visitors insisted. It was a long, long practice of personal freedom in daily living. This had built a technique, a tradition constantly handed down. This they felt was this Nation's great contribution to the world—this workshop demonstration of individual liberty.

It would be easy to go on swelling with 100 percent American pride over what I heard. But I keep thinking of the insidious perils to free thought, speech, movement, that these foreign visitors in their hurried observations could not see.

What will a continued arms race do to them? Will it bring extensions of loyalty tests, abuses of these by high-handed or biggoted officials? More demands from excited legislators and citizens for clamps on the American habit of speaking the mind? More snooping by officials into private lives?

Will continuing preparation for war necessitate more regimentation of science, industry, labor? Will continuing threatened danger restrict the long-cherished right of Americans to "go West" or to farm, city or wherever their fancy leads?

And what about the more subtle dangers that threaten the mind—the trend to thought control in many parts of the world and in many aspects of life? The tendency of man in time of confusion, weakness, danger, to turn to authoritarian direction? Above all, what about questioning, unafraid youth in the classroom?

I think of my own college days and one of the outstanding intellectual memories of them—a professor of economics sitting hunched up on his table baiting students to debate with him his espousal of the single-tax theory. Well, that sort of thing is still going on, it seems, even though some mother-knows-best types of both sexes keep trying to diagram just how youth should be taught.

I remember what a leading American educator said recently when a cry was raised that youth must be indoctrinated more in the American system—"teaching youth the American system is primarily a matter of teaching youth to think for itself." I think of the college presidents who rose like Minute Men to oppose what seemed an effort of a congressional committee to censor textbooks. I think of how a leading college president recently reported that the greatest opposition to the growth of communism in American colleges was American youth's habit of free questioning.

Well, possibly this freedom of the spirit may be too vitally rooted to be weakened by any material upset that may occur, I tell myself. If it is weakened it will be because we have grown so used to it, so careless of it, that unlike the German visitors, we cannot delight in it.

Inadequate Retirement

It seems to me that William S. Kenyon in his letter of October 11 has made an excellent suggestion in the desirability of increasing retirement benefits for the retired Federal employes.

Contrast the meager amount that comes to the career Federal worker upon retirement (and he pays into that throughout the years) under the three fourths pay that comes to the Army and Navy career worker upon his retirement (and he pays nothing into that amount).

If the Government worker received three fourths of his final pay check, instead of about 45 percent after 30 years of service, he would be able to face the future with some degree of satisfaction instead of almost desperation. K. O. COLVIN.

Norway's Recovery

By Marquis Childs

Subsidized Shipping Threat

OSLO, NORWAY.—Ninty million dollars of American money is going into Norway in the current year in loans and grants through the European aid program. That figures out roughly at $30 each for every Norwegian man, woman and child.

Childs

In addition, Norway will get at least half as much more in drawing accounts on other European countries under the Marshall Plan system of mutual aid. Because Norway is a small country with a relatively simple economy it is possible to see where Marshall Plan money is going and why. Here, then, is what is happening to the American dollars you provide for this northern outpost.

This year about 35 percent of the total will go for grain to feed humans and cattle. Last year nearly 50 percent of aid went for grain, one reason for the larger proportion being the fact that equipment the Norwegians wanted to buy was not then available.

Most of the balance, with two exceptions, goes for heavy goods to rebuild Norway's industry. A considerable part goes into steel plates delivered to Swedish yards where ships are being made to restore Norway's fleet. In this way Sweden shares the benefit.

STRUCTURAL equipment is being provided to rebuild the iron mines at Kirkenes in the far north. Before the war Norway exported 950,000 tons of iron ore and the foreign exchange it brought in helped to pay for essential imports. The mines were totally destroyed by the Germans as they fled before advancing Russian troops.

By next year, according to plan, the mines will produce for export about a half million tons. The intention is to have full production restored by the end of the Marshall Plan in 1952.

Other American dollars go to rebuild power plants. They go for Diesel engines, for construction rigs and for other equipment. Most of the steel and the equipment comes from America, and that fact points up the disaster of a prolonged steel strike in the United States to the current of European recovery.

One of the exceptions is petroleum and petroleum products for which from 10 to 15 percent of Norway's 90 million dollars is spent. The second exception is tobacco, which will cost this year about $4,500,000 to five million dollars.

In Norway, which has lived at the austerity level since the war's end, this is judged the only "luxury" on the Marshall Plan shopping list. And for thousands of Norwegian fishermen who spend lonely weeks at sea in cramped quarters it is regarded as a psychological necessity. Norway's American aid budget can thus be divided roughly in half that goes for immediately consumable goods, including the petroleum that is largely for industry, and half that goes into steel and equipment for reconstruction to bring a badly damaged country back to normal again.

CAN THE balance of prewar years be achieved again? Norwegian planners and economists say yes. But they admit there are serious obstacles in the way.

Before the war, Norway, with its tillable land at a minimum, imported 85 percent of the grain consumed. A deal has been made with Soviet Russia to exchange Norwegian fish for Russian grain and this is expected to bring about 100,000 tons.

The recovery key is, of course, shipping. Before the war, Norwegian freighters operating all over the world earned a large share of the foreign exchange that went to pay for necessary imports and for some luxuries. About half of Norway's fleet was destroyed in the service of the Allies in the war years.

The ships have been replaced by new, fast freighters that are again plying the seven seas. But they cost much more to build than the lost ships. And operating costs have gone up faster than freight rates.

But there is another and more serious obstacle in the way of restoring the revenue essential to a balance between exports and imports. That is the subsidy which certain countries are providing through their governments to keep their ships in world trade.

This is conspicuously true of the United States. The subsidy, plus the encroachment of laws requiring the use of ships bearing the Government's flag, makes it harder and harder for Norway's freighters and crews to compete. This form of nationalism cuts directly across the pattern of world trade that prevailed in the years before the war.

The Norwegians claim, and there is evidence to back them up, that their ships can carry freight more efficiently and more cheaply than any others. But if they are prevented from using this skill, then recovery may be remote. With one hand the United States subsidizes its own merchant marine, pushed by a powerful lobby that would require by law that all American aid be carried in American ships. The other hand dispenses aid to promote the recovery of this sturdy democracy. And the two objectives may well be self-defeating.

Wellington, Ohio, Oct. 18 (AP). — Richard A. Cordray has lived in a three-story, old-fashioned 16-room brick home here for 15 years. The other day he was helping install a furnace in the basement. He knocked a hole in a brick wall and found an iron box with "about $30,000 or $35,000 inside.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Johnson Is Very Vulnerable

BEHIND the battle between the angry admirals and Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, there is something infinitely bigger and more important to every American. This is simply the fact that President Truman and Secretary Johnson have apparently decided, in the year of the Beria bomb, that the defenses of this country can safely be weakened.

There has been no public debate, or even announcement of this incredibly grave decision, which involves the future of the whole free world. The President has simply issued an order that defense expenditures shall be limited to 13 billion dollars in the 1951 budget. And Secretary Johnson has gone along with with the presidential order.

The effect of the presidential order is further increased by the pay raise which Congress has just voted to the services. The cost of the pay raise will be 500 million dollars. Thus in practical power terms, we shall only be purchasing 12.5 billion dollargs worth of strength next year, as against just short of 14.5 billion dollars worth of strength originally planned to be purchased this year. In fact, the amount of defense we will buy for ourselves next year is to be nearly 15 percent less than what we are buying this year.

Since such vast sums are nonetheless to be spent, it may superficially appear that the President and Secretary Johnson are still buying as much defense as we need. The truth is, however, they are really buying almost no defense at all, as any leader in the defense field will privately admit but publicly deny.

THIS IS TRUE for two reasons. In the first place, all defense expenditures are relative. The Soviet economy, while immeasurably weaker than our own, is still the economy of a giant power with vast resources. Ever since the war, the output of the Soviet economy has been channeled into war production with a completeness that even the Nazis never achieved. And our own defense effort, while costly, is globally far inferior to the Soviet effort.

In the second place, even the most astronomical expenditures are purposeless unless they are made in accordance with some coherent plan. The strategic concept and supporting plans approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff constitute the blueprint of American defense. That blueprint is not, however, being realized at present.

To take the simplest example, one of the most conspicuous features of the Joint Chiefs' blueprint is the reliance placed on the strategic air arm. Strategic air power is intended first to serve as a deterrent to Soviet aggression. Second, if the deterrent fails and war comes, strategic air power is supposed to strike at the enemy's vitals, to weaken his offensive capability, and thus to cut him down to size. This planned role of the strategic air arm is what makes it theoretically possible to maintain balanced land, air and naval forces that would otherwise seem appallingly weaker than the immense Soviet armament.

BUT THE Joint Chiefs of Staff and the leaders of the Air Force have also agreed that an Air Force of 70 groups, with 20 groups assigned to act as the strategic air arm, is the smallest that can do the job. Even the congressional decision for a 58 group Air Force will not substantially alter this, because the whole Air Force program will run afoul of the 13-million-dollar budget ceiling next year. Furthermore, the budget ceiling will vitally affect the efficiency of this already reduced Air Force.

If the strategic air arm is to achieve reasonable efficiency, the 10 groups now equipped with B-29s and B-50s must be rapidly rearmed with the greatly superior B-47s.

Production of this jet bomber is only just beginning, so that the presidential economies will not drastically affect output next year. But thereafter the whole reequipment program will be unavoidably delayed. The strategic air arm, on which so much depends, will therefore continue to use obsolete aircraft.

Other facts like these, so reminiscent of the foolish interwar years, are to be found at every turn, in all spheres of the defense effort. The net meaning of these facts is that, relative to the Soviet Union, we are growing weaker, not stronger.

Because the Soviet Union is a nonnaval power, the strategic concept of the Joint Chiefs of Staff actually called for a reduction in American naval strength. It is this which the admirals are protesting. But the strategic concept of the Joint Chiefs of Staff also called for a powerful compensating buildup in ground, air and allied strength. Secretary Johnson has made the cuts in the Navy without inaugurating the buildup elsewhere. And as long as the net strength of the United States is actually declining, the Secretary of Defense has not got a leg to stand on.

Neely's Staff Given Notice To Quit Jobs

Employes of the Senate District Committee yesterday received letters calling for their resignations effective in 30 days.

The letters were signed for a subcommittee appointed for the chore — Senators Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) and Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.).

The call for resignations was voted unanimously by the full District Committee last week, and announced then by Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.).

In line with the letters they received, staff employes immediately began writing letters of resignation —and of reapplication for their present jobs—for submission to Chairman Neely.

"We've gained comfort and independence
with the income from dividend-paying stocks I bought in my wage-earning years"

Samuel A. Johnson
THOMASTON, CONN.

"I landed in this country June 1, 1900, at the age of 17," Mr. Johnson says, "with nothing but the clothes on my back. I've worked ever since, until my retirement a few years ago, at my trade of ironworker.

"Back a good many years ago my wife and I started looking ahead to the day when I could stop work and still have a comfortable income. We decided that could be done only if I put part of my wages into companies that would then be working for us.

"During the last 16 years, I've frequently felt, after careful consideration, that the stocks or bonds of certain companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange were selling for less than they were worth. I've backed my judgment, buying a few shares or bonds whenever we had the money to spare.

"Everything we need or want"

"The result is that we have many different investments—all my own selections, and most of them common stocks—and we get our entire income from them today. We receive about 7.5% on the money we have invested, not counting the increase in market value of the securities we hold. We are still investing, and expect to do so all our lives.

"My wife and I spend our winters in Florida, our summers in Connecticut, and I do some fishing in Maine. We are not rich, but the invested money we have working for us provides everything we need or want."

Facts for the thrifty

Dividends paid on common stocks provide "second incomes" for millions of people; in many cases their entire incomes. Your surplus funds can earn you an income, one that contrasts favorably with the return from so-called "riskless" investment.

The facilities of Member Firms of the New York Stock Exchange for supplying factual information help make informed investing today a convenient, simple procedure...and also help you appraise the risk that attends ownership of common stocks, a risk inherent in ownership of any form of property. Member Firms invite all who would put their funds to work, producing income, to do so with the benefit of facts that can be had without obligation.

Indonesian Fate Remains Uncertain

lution, however, is pretty strong medicine for Asiatic application. Through the years, the Chinese Communists have worked out a Marxist prescription better suited to Far Eastern countries. It is to be expected, therefore, that while Communist-inspired revolutionary movements in the Far East will look to Moscow for their cue on matters of high policy, they will tend to seek ideas and guidance from China on matters of governmental, social and agrarian reform. The writings of Mao Tse-tung, which stand with the works of Marx and Lenin as the scripture of the Chinese Communists, have already had a far-reaching influence in Far Eastern countries. That influence will probably grow.

Impact Already Felt

In ensuing articles correspondents will give a first-hand country-by-country account of Communist activity in countries of East Asia. The impact of Communist successes in China is already being felt in varying degree in neighboring countries. Each of these countries is more engrossed in its own problems that in the danger from without. There is no common plan of action to halt communism, and efforts to organize one have so far met with little response. The failure of United States policy in China has left us faltering.

The area in greatest immediate danger of Communist penetration is Southeast Asia, Indo-China and Burma. It is not expected the Chinese Reds will march across the frontiers. But it is probable the Communists will give what surreptitious assistance they can spare to pro-Communist revolutionary movements in Southeast Asian countries.

Of all the non-Communist areas in the Far East, Southeast Asia offers the most promising returns at the lowest cost. The lands of Southeast Asia are a treasure chest of natural resources.

Food is a critical problem for the Chinese Communists. In normal years, China is a food-deficit country and imports up to 800,000 tons of rice annually. To the south of China lie the great rice-exporting countries of the world—Burma, Siam and Indo-China. The normal export of any one of these countries could largely solve China's rice problem.

Of equal importance to China is Southeast Asia's oil. Russia is interested in its rubber and tin.

It is possible the Communist bloc will be able to obtain these materials through normal trade channels. But like the Japanese they will want to be sure of continued supplies in event of war. It is possible the Communists have in mind a scheme of inter-Asian economic cooperation somewhat along the lines of Japan's late Greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere.

The pace of Communist infiltration in Asia depends, for one thing, on the ability of the Western powers and their sympathizers to meet the issue squarely and unitedly. Also the Chinese Communists have their problems, political and economic. Preoccupation on the home front, plus the desire for international recognition and trade, may constrain the Communists for a while. But it will not deter them from seizing any opportunity to fish in the troubled waters of Asia and the world.

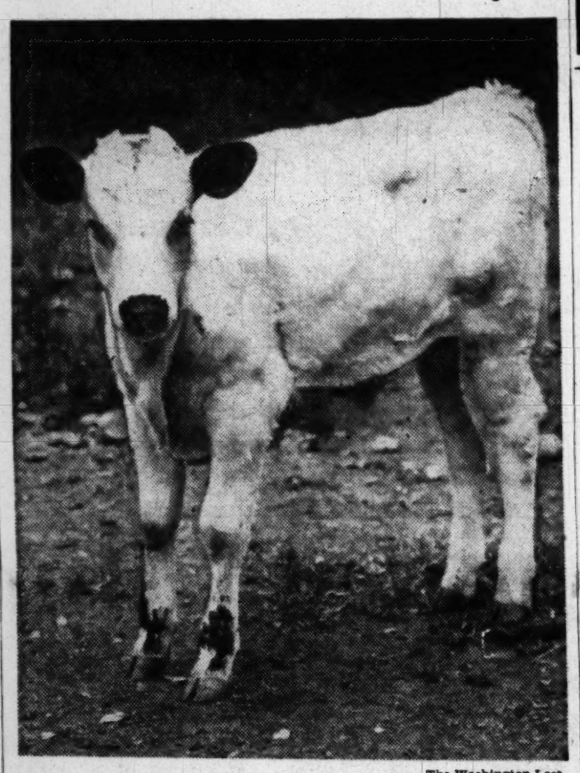
Zoo Not Interested in Dwarf Cattle Exhibition, Mann Says



The Washington Post

NO DWARF—This English Park calf, born a month ago at the Washington Zoo, is good enough for the Zoo's Dr. Mann

The discoverer of pint-sized cattle in North Dakota can eliminate the Washington Zoo from his list of possible exhibition points, Dr. William M. Mann, Zoo director, emphasized last night.

Asked whether he would welcome a few examples of the Mid-western midget cattle for his world-famed animal collection, Dr. Mann said he was interested in a broad variety of bovines, but not freak types.

And, he added, he suspected the 2-foot animals were not even side-show types, but rather were the victims of not enough hay and other cattle delicacies.

However, if Washingtonians are in the mood for a bit of cattle gazing, the Zoo does offer the following attractive lineup:

English Park cattle—known in official circles as Bos Taurus—descended from a direct heritage of more than 1000 years of grazing on British estates. They are believed to be the descendants of the cattle which roamed the British Isles before Roman times.

Sacred bulls of Burma.

Scottish Kyloe cattle sporting long brown hair not unlike Jeannie's.

Gaurs of India—the largest of the wild cattle.

These are "among the best of cattle there is" and are on display at the Zoo from dawn to dark every day of the year—free, Dr. Mann said.

Girdle Weakness Leads to Downfall

Canton, Ill., Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Wayne A. Smith, 24-year-old bus driver, admitted to police today that he was the "girdle snatcher" who mystified the town for two weeks by snatching women's underthings from clotheslines in the night.

Sometimes he stopped his bus on lonely night runs to make forays into neighboring yards. He didn't know why he did it, he said.

Amanda D. Garnett, 23, of 1740 6th st. nw.

William Taylor, 27, interior decorator, of 1424 W st. nw., charged with violation of both Harrison Narcotics Act and Marihuana Tax Act.

Andrew W. Norman, 25, bricklayer, 2015 15th st. nw. Charged with violating both the Harrison Narcotics Act and the Marihuana Tax Act.

James E. Halsley, 39, of 1540 Marion ct. nw.

Leon J. Bryant, 29, truck driver, 73 G st. nw.

Charged only with violation of the Marihuana Tax Act were:

John H. Tucker, 21, cobbler, 1213 9th st. nw.

William H. Schmith, 20, laborer, 2015 15th st. nw.

Robert Neal, jr., 29, laborer, 2015 15th st. nw.

Alfred S. McLean, 20, laborer, 1722 N st. nw.

The Harrison Narcotics Act relates to the sale of drugs.

All of those charged will be arraigned at 9:30 a. m. today before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

Police said arrest warrants were obtained in advance for all of those charged. In fact, the raiders carried 35 arrest warrants.

Police listed the premises raided as the following: 1540 Marion ct. nw., 1608 11th st. nw., 1025 7th st. nw., 1412 T st. nw., 128 G st. sw., 1413 C st. se., 1327 Wylie ct. ne., 1719 1st st. nw., 4625 Central ave. ne., z1738 8th st. nw., 1212 4th st. nw., 1303 9th st. nw., 744 Girard st. nw., and 2005 14th st. nw.

The raids were carried out by about 20 deputy marshals, 35 Metropolitan Police detectives and 8 agents of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics.

Arrested Girl Weeps

The raids, the climax of careful planning since last March, netted both shabbily dressed and well dressed.

A mixed racial party was interrupted at one address.

One of the two white girls arrested at the party tried to shield her face from photographers' flash-bulbs and sobbed:

"Now my mother will find out all about this."

At least five women were picked up during the raids. Most of them claimed to be waitresses.

The men mostly identified themselves as laborers, although one classified himself as actor. One of the Negro youths brought in sported a be-hop goatee.

The raiders set out from District Court at about 6:30 p. m. after a two-hour conference during which the long-drawn plans were given a final polish.

Coordinator of the raids was Boyd M. Martin, supervisor of District No. 5 (Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District) of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics.

Marihuana and Cocaine Seized

Working along with him was Inspector Robert S. Bryant, chief of detectives of the Metropolitan Police Department.

Martin said about $2000 worth of marihuana and cocaine was seized. He said the amount of the narcotics haul was not too important because he believed that in the case of each person arrested and charged enough evidence had been gathered by undercover agents since last March to make the charges stick.

"There were what you would call some very important peddlers and what we would call major violators picked up in the raids," Martin said.

Martin said the raids were "highly successful." In answer to one reporter's question, he said there were no known instances of those arrested selling narcotics to minors.

The raids were launched immediately after the conference at District Court and were completed by 10:05 p. m.

United States Marshal W. Bruce Matthews and his chief deputy, Charles Woos, headed the contingent from the marshal's office.

Also active in the raid were Thomas W. Andrew, agent in charge of the Washington office of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, and Lieut. H. H. Carper, head of the narcotics squad of the Metropolitan Police, and two of his aides, Detective Sergt. William Taylor and Detective Joseph Gabrys.

D. C. Man Held In Baltimore In Holdup Case

Baltimore, Oct. 18 (AP).—A quick-witted Quantico Marine's story that he was forced into an automobile at pistol point resulted in a 34-year-old Washingtonian being held on a charge of attempted robbery.

The defendant, Albert Burleson, of 1420 17th st. nw., was held yesterday in $5000 bail pending grand jury action on the charge. Bail was set at $500 on an additional charge of carrying a pistol. He pleaded innocent to both at a hearing in Western Police Court. Boguth, testified he met Burleson at a tavern Sunday night. They left together, he said.

The 19-year-old sergeant told Magistrate Julius Romano that outside, Burleson produced a pistol, ordered him into an automobille and forced him to drive off in it.

Boguth said he slammed on the brakes when he saw two policemen, pulled the key from the ignition and jumped out.

Burleson was still in the car when police arrested him.

Family Relations Have Variations In Conshohocken

Conshohocken, Pa., Oct. 18 (AP).—The character in the song "I'm my own grandpa" has nothing on Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Gardocki.

The bride married her sister's stepson and here's what happened:

The bride's sister became her stepmother-in-law. The bride's brother-in-law, who is the bridegroom's father, became her father-in-law. Her sister's two children, the bride's nephews, became her brothers-in-law.

As for the bridegroom, his stepmother now also is his sister-in-law, his father is his brother-in-law and his two half brothers are also his nephews.

Town Meeting Finds U. S. Aid Needed in Asia

If the world is to be free, the United States must extend aid not only to Europe but to the Middle and Far East as well, speakers declared last ngiht at "America's Town Meeting" held in Departmental Auditorium.

The "Town Meeting" was a highlight of the World Town Hall seminar which opened here Sunday and closed yesterday. The seminar represents 28 national organizations and claims a combined membership of approximately 31 million.

Last night's discussion topic was "How Can America Contribute to a Free World?"

Speakers were Brooks Emeny, president of the Foreign Policy Association; Dean Althea K. Hottel, president of the American Association of University Women; Chester S. Williams, director, World Town Hall Seminar, and George H. Wilson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"Threats to freedom are even more acute in Asia than in the Middle East or Europe," Emeny asserted.

While he cited the illiteracy, over-population and low subsistence standards as prime factors in the peril to freedom, he said that of equal importance "is the revolt of the masses, which has come at a time when these people are unprepared to assume, in freedom, the responsibilities of statehood."

Dean Hottel viewed the Middle East as one of the "main arenas of potential conflict," since "this is the meeting place of Europe, Africa, and Asia."

D. C. Income Climb Under That of U. S.

By S. Oliver Goodman

Although the District of Columbia's income is well above the national average, there has been a general tendency for that gap to lessen over the past eight years, according to a review by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

Per capita income here for 1948 was reported as $1691. This was 20 percent more than the United States average for last year but in 1940 the per capita income here was 88 percent more than the national average.

Putting it another way, the Reserve Bank stated that total income payments in the District of Columbia amounted to $1,885,000,000 last year. This was 4.5 percent greater than in 1947 and 108.3 percent larger than in 1940.

On the other hand, income payments nationally aggregated $206,011,000,000 in 1948. This was a gain of 8.9 percent over 1947 and a jump of 171.6 percent over 1940.

The percentage change in income payments of Fifth Reserve District States from 1947 to 1948 found South Carolina at the top with a gain of 11.4 percent while the District of Columbia was at the bottom with its 4.5 percent gain.

From 1947 to 1948, Maryland showed an increase of 7 percent; Virginia 9 percent; West Virginia 10.5 percent; North Carolina 6.5 percent. The Fifth Reserve District as a whole averaged 8 percent higher.

PERSONAL DEBT: Every citizen should be willing to accept a Government post, even at a relatively small salary, in order to contribute to the overall improvement in the functioning of good government, according to Clark L. Simpson. He addressed the D. C. Institute of Certified Public Accountants last night in the Mayflower. Simpson, assistant comptroller of the Economic Cooperation Administration, also outlined needed improvements in the Government accounting system. Carl W. Tiller told the accountants that modernization of the Government's accounting system is needed to keep pace with the "performance budgeting" system. Tiller is assistant to the chief, Division of Estimates of the Bureau of the Budget.

ECA Races Against Deadline In War on Europe's Customs

By J. A. Livingston

PARIS, Oct. 18.—The war's still on here at the Talleyrand House, headquarters of the Economic Cooperation Administration for Europe. The pace and tension are of Washington just after Pearl Harbor. ECA officials, working from early morning till late in the evening and often into the night, are warring against European isolationism and splinteration—also against time. On the day the Queuille government fell, a staff meeting was still in progress at 7 p. m.

Livingston

In the war against Hitler and Hirohito, America used time to build up airplane, tank, gun factories and armed forces. But in the war against economic anarchy in Europe, for Averell Harriman, head of the ECA in Europe, and Milton Katz, his deputy, time is running. They're due to be out of business on June 30, 1952. Yet, what started out as a postwar relief job has become a major long-term operation. They must uproot Europe's special brand of economic isolationism and protectionism.

Isolationism and protectionism in Europe differ from America's. We have a political block which seeks to stay clear of Europe, that would avoid entangling alliances. We likewise have an economic block of manufacturing, mining, and farming interests that wants tariffs. But we have a central legislative body, Congress, in which the issues are wrangled out—and oftentimes settled. There's a court of high appeal, which can legislate.

THAT'S NOT SO in Europe. The Organization for European Economic Cooperation, located in the beautiful Chateau la Muette, formerly the Paris residence of Baron Edouard de Rothschild, hopes to assist in coordinating over-all policy eventually. But it's still fledgling. ECA is striving to develop OEEC into a vital, going concern able to take over when ECA bows out.

In the meantime, France has its restrictions, Britain its, the Netherlands its, and so along. Each of the 19 OEEC countries has been brought up, through war, cartelism, and the great depression of the 1930s, to protect itself against the political vagaries, against the ups and downs in the business cycles of other countries—especially America.

Tht men in ECA and OEEC are fighting for the elimination of customs and trade barriers. Their argument: Each country must win larger markets for specialties. England is good at fine woolens and cottons; France excels in dresses, gloves, and wines; Denmark makes butter par excellence, and so on. Why not permit each country to exploit its abilities over wide areas and populations? Let those companies and industries which can't compete efficiently fold up. Let those companies and industries which can compete successfully expand. The conequence will be higher production, higher productivity, and a higher standard of living through lower-priced goods for all of Europe.

THE OEEC especially seeks to get rid of import quotas. In the United States, protection takes the form of tariffs. We say to foreigners: If you can hurdle our customs duties, okay, your goods can come in. In Europe, however, countries try to protect their producers and their gold stocks and dollar reserves by setting a limit on imports country by country. No matter how efficient a company or a country is, it cannot scale the barrier. The quota's fixed. That was Hitler's way—autarchy, restrictionism.

In its efforts to break down the indurate trade habits of European countries, ECA and OEEC are twice removed from the point of action. They deal not with a country's lawmakers, but with governmental appointees. These reprepsentatives, if convinced that the OEES program is sound, must then go back to their governments and their legislatures to implement the program. Then the program must be sold, in turn, to manufacturers and retailers.

ECA is emphatic that action must be taken now, that individual countries must strive, through group action, to help one another become part of an expanding European economy which can pay its own way. For from now on, United States dollar injections are bound to decline. ECA officials know in their hearts that if they cannot honestly tell Congress ECA countries are doing those things necessary to economic survival, then funds will stop even before 1952. Therefore, says ECA, European countries must justify the outlays by intelligent self-assistance and cooperation.

The argument has a weakness. Last year Congress provided $4,700,000,000 for ECA; this fiscal year $3,800,000,000. In the 1951 fiscal year, the appropriation will be less, and in 1952 still less. Obviously, as the dollars diminish, so will ECA's power of persuasion. That's why ECA's personnel is racing against a deadline. That's also what's behind ECA's fever to develop OEEC into a European economic congress with power to influence nations.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Cotton futures rallied sharply in late dealings today, with new-crop deliveries pacing the market on news that the Senate-House conferees had agreed on a compromise farm bill.

Traders saw in this development prospects of another year of high-price supports for cotton. Commission house and local buying carried distant months up as much as $2.80 a bale above the previous close before prices receded moderately on profit taking. Old crop months were supported by aggressive mill buying although gains were checked by hedge selling and liquidation. Final prices were 45 cents to $2.45 a bale higher.

STAND TOGETHER—Mrs. Isaac Notes of 2301 15th st. nw. and her 6-year-old daughter, Dora, appear at District Court yesterday to testify in the case of a man charged with housebreaking. the past. But the dreams will go glimmering, he said, unless we make them come to pass.

But, Nourse went on, when he took a look about, 'I am filled with real concern. I cannot indulge in easy optimism."

Here was his pessimistic view on labor:

"As an economist, I do not see standards of life being raised adequately out of enlarged production when a great labor organization sees the current situation as 'the occasion for a reduction in the hours of work (to 35 or 30) . . . or when the czar of coal orders a 3-day week with full pay for a redundant labor force and when pensions at 60 are demanded for a population steadily becoming longer lived."

Targets of Remarks

The crack about the reduction in hours was leveled at the AFL; that about the three-day week in coal at, of course, John L. Lewis; that about pensions at both Lewis and the CIO.

The charge against business came in this paragraph:

"I am filled with apprehension, too, when I look at management and see it choosing the costs of banked fires rather than capitalistically venturesome reexamination of their practices of accounting and their theories of price making."

The farm bloc got its comeuppance with:

"I am uneasy when I see farmers demanding stimulative prices whilst Government accumulates gigantic surplus holdings, pays subsidies out of Federal deficits, and imposes production allotments and marketing quotas."

On Mr. Truman's fiscal policy, he declared:

On Fiscal Policy

"I am not happy either when I see Government slipping back into deficits as a way of life in a period when production and employment are high, instead of putting its fiscal house in order and husbanding reserves to support the economy if less prosperous times overtake us."

In case anyone—particularly the folk across the street at the White House—failed to catch that point, Nourse concluded:

"We must . . . recognize . . . that monetary and fiscal tricks have no power or magic, but are a slippery road to misery."

H. M. Government Gets a Ribbing

By Richard L. Coe

THE PLAYHOUSE has a dandy little British satire on governmental red tape which Washingtonians will particularly enjoy—"Passport to Pimlico."

This unpretentiously slight joke is veddy British in both its wry tone and its theme. No doubt, persons who've lived long years under rationing and austerity will find it closer to their funny bone than we luckier people will. But it's adult, literate humor, practically a pearl of great price—compared with the shoddy—dished up for the masses.

Pimlico is not our near race track but a shattered part of London, home to John Bull's average citizen. Some kids are playing near one of the last of the war's unexploded bombs when it explodes. Beneath the ground are hidden treasures and proof that this slice of land belongs not to Britain, but to a descendant of the Duke of Burgundy.

For the folk who live within the area, that means that the rationing and various licensing laws which govern Britain don't go for them. All governmental holds are barred. Pretty soon all London is on saturnalia in Pimlico. This gets a bit much and the more responsible folk of Pimlico realize some controls are needed to keep out the spivs and the riffraff.

Which brings in H. M. government. What department does this unforeseen situation apply to? The civil servants take what looks to be the only way out: Pimlico is out of bounds, a barbed wire fence surrounds the territory, now recognized as a separate principality. Which means the water's turned off, no food may enter the compound and the electricity's off.

Newsreel Take Off

There's a genial, harum-scarum style to the incidents which make up T. E. B. Clarke's screen play. A whacky professor of medieval history, Margaret Rutherford, asserts her scholarly calling. Policemen, so often the butt of British theatrical jokes, have their battles with duty. There's a happily comical scene in a subway, stopped for customs inspection midway in its rush through Pimlico. There's the beginnings of a phone call to Lake Success, one never completed.

Choicest barb of humor is a newsreel description of what's been going on in Pimlico. Not since the newsreel shots in "Of Thee I Sing," has there been so neat an unmasking of the ruts of newsreel's history lessons.

There are in the cast no particular names of note to American filmgoers, but they're all capably equipped to deal with the caustic barbs of Clarke's delightfully original screen play. As a comment on the necessary evils of government, "Passport to Pimlico," is a refreshing delight; without government, the Pimlicans discover, the little foxes fatten. There's not a hint of stuffy preaching in this, but that lesson is as sharply preached as ever lesson was.

Technically unimpressive, "Passport to Pimlico" is as civilized a comedy as has come along since "I Know Where I'm Going."

Friendly Explains ECA Information

The ECA information program in Europe was set up "not to create gratitude," but to inform Europeans of America's motives behind the Marshall Plan, a former director of the program said yesterday.

Speaking to the Advertising Club of Washington, Al Friendly who recently returned to The Washington Post staff after 14 months on the ECA assignment, said the information program had helped to build a new feeling of faith in democracy, stiffening European resistance to Communist propaganda.

appear, he added, the department will proceed on the assumption she is dead.

D. C. Students To Get Roles In Sesqui Play

Between 200 and 300 Washington students will have a chance for roles in a specially written play commemorating the Sesquicentennial celebration here next year.

Edward Boykin, executive director of the Sesqui Commission, also announced yesterday that Paul Green, who is writing the symphonic drama, will come here Thusrday from Chapel Hill, N. C., to confer with celebration officials.

The play, centered around the life of George Washington, will be produced in a 5000-seat amphitheater to be built in Rock Creek Park.

Boykin explained that the play "Common Glory," also written by Green, is produced in Williamsburg, Va., by Virginia students. They are paid to take the parts, he said.

Moving to meet the Freedom Fair hoped-for opening date of next July 4, the Sesqui group is expected soon to appoint architects and engineers to complete the plans for the buildings slated to go up in Anacostia Park at the foot of East Capitol st.

On Thursday, the Sesqui Commission will go before the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to seek approval of the construction plans for the buildings on the proposed site. The Fine Arts Commission cleared the building designs Monday.

Lack of Book News Laid to Cost Problem

The Washington Booksellers Association was told last night that the limited attention given to books in American newspapers is due in large part to financial reasons.

Philip L. Graham, publisher of The Washington Post, told the meeting in the Hotel Statler that it "is a shocking thing, and yet it is a practical thing.

"The plain truth is that we don't have the financial wherewithal," he said.

"There is not enough promotional enterprise on the part of book publishers," Graham said. "If you look at the results, I think hardly any of the publishers can pin medals on themselves."

Although "we are living in the richest country in the world," he said, "on a per capita basis almost twice as many Englishmen read books as Americans."

Graham described ways in which newspapers develop public consciousness of books in addition to book pages. These include, he said, news and feature stories, serialization of books, and discussions and references in editorials and columns. Another method, he said, is through "events," such as The Washington Post book and author luncheons.

Sen. Morse Urges Housecleaning in Pressmen's Union

By the United Press

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Ore.) last night called for a "housecleaning" of the AFL Pressmen's Union which he said had been "victimized" by its former officers.

He referred to charges aired before a House labor subcommittee that the late George L. Berry, former union president, had misappropriated union money.

"It is a clear-cut case in which the union president used union funds for his own purposes," Morse said in a Senate speech.

He criticized top union officers who have taken steps to discipline Washington Local No. 1 which has announced plans for legal action against Berry's estate.

Morse charged that a provision in the union's constitution permitting such discipline amounts to suppression of the rights of members, and urged the union to modify its constitution and "democratize" its procedures.

Sawyer Leaves by Air For Mexico City Visit

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer left by plane yesterday for a two-day visit to Mexico City, where he will address the nineteenth annual convention of the American Society of Travel Agents October 20.

He was accompanied by George Wythe, chief of the American republic branch of the Commerce Department; Fowler W. Barker, deputy chief of the travel branch of the Office of International Trade, and James V. Fletcher, a member of the Secretary's staff.

School-Aid Measure Is Blocked in House

An objection from Representative Nicholson (R., Mass.) yesterday blocked House action on a Senate-approved bill to grant Federal aid for public school construction in areas where the population has been swollen by Government war or defense activities.

The bill would authorize immediate spending of five million dollars on surveys of school needs.

Child Guidance Clinic Goes on Full Time Today

The Child Guidance Clinic in the Southwest Health Center will begin full-time operation again today, Dr. Leopold E. Wexberg, director of the District Health Department's bureau of mental hygiene, announced yesterday.

The clinic will operate every Wednesday from 8:15 a. m. to 4:45 p. m., by appointment only. Dr. Ruth E. Stocking, psychiatrist in the Bureau of Mental Hygiene, will be the psychiatric consultant.

The Supreme Council will visit President Truman, himself a 33rd degree Mason, at 11 a. m. today. At 8 p. m. tonight, the new Knights Commanders will receive the investiture in ceremonies at the temple.

Ex-Sen. Clark of Idaho To Seek Seat in 1950

D. Worth Clark, former Democratic Senator from Idaho, yesterday announced he will be a candidate for the Senate in 1950.

Clark told a reporter he was unable to say whether he will seek the Democratic or Republican nomination. He would not elaborate on this point.

Clark served one term in the Senate, but was defeated for re-election in 1944 by Senator Taylor (D., Idaho). Clark previously had served two terms in the House. Idaho is to elect two Senators next year.

Court Rules Phone Threat Is Offense At Receiving End

Judge Thomas D. Quinn dismissed a threat case yesterday against a 21-year-old man after finding that the Municipal Court lacked jurisdiction.

Acquitted under the ruling was Charles H. Bennett of 1736 G st. nw.

The jurist noted that Bennett was charged with threatening his wife, Jean, in a telephone call from Washington to Arlington, Va.

Quinn held that the crime, if any, occurred in Virginia, where the call was received, and the mere transmission from Washington constituted no offense in the District.

—With Shirley Povich

ARMY IS MOVING toward another undefeated season, and why not? It's virtually a sheltered football career for the cadets, with those tastefully arranged schedules they play. Until Army takes on something tougher, it is not to be mentioned in the same inhalation as Notre Dame.

That victory over Michigan was not to be gainsaid and it was an achievement. But meeting the Davidsons, the Harvards, the Columbias, the VMI's and the Fordham's adds no luster to what may be a great Army team that isn't getting the chance to prove it.

POVICH

Any No. 1 or No. 2 national ranking for Army, even if it remains unbeaten, will have to be withheld. There are too many soft spots on the schedule, compared to Notre Dame's rugged list. In a year when Army apparently has a tremendous football team, it isn't mixing with enough good ones.

The defenders of Coach Earl Blaik, who as athletic director had much to do with the schedule, make the point that it collapsed under him—that the opposition figured to be tougher. All of which is nonsense. It was obvious a couple of years ago that Army was thinking of the pushovers.

IT'S TOO BAD, too. This Army team may actually be as good as Notre Dame, maybe better. The point was made that Notre Dame in its romp over Tulane, was pulling its punches, but no team ever let down so obviously against an opponent as Army did against Harvard on the same Saturday. It was 41-0 at halftime and the game ended 54-14. It could have been 82-0.

Notre Dame Coach Frank Leahy was never more generous than Blaik was against Harvard. Except for a brief 90-second spell in the second half, Blaik kept his regular offense out of the game in the last three quarters. Twice he deliberately gave Harvard first downs by sending illegal substitutions and drawing five-yard penalties.

When Blaik was a little bit irked by a blocked Army kick that led to a second Harvard touchdown, he took quick action. He sent Arnold Galiffa into the game with the number one Army team and in 90 seconds had that touchdown back.

NOTRE DAME is a bigger team than Army, but I'd say that it can't match that Army speed both in the line and backfield. Nor is there any proof that the Irish hit harder than Blaik's Cadets. Army generates murderous power off its T-formation with Galiffa directing and with a viciously tackling outfit, as has been noted by the Michigan and Harvard teams.

On the second play of the Michigan game, they carried Chuck Ortmann, Michigan's best back and only forward passer, off the field on a stretcher. In the Harvard game, Army was rid of Billy Roche, the Crimson tailback, after the opening kickoff. One Army end slowed him up, another one whacked into him, and Roche was to be seen in action no more that day.

Army can pulverize as effectively as Notre Dame. An Army's schedule is well-planned by Blaik. It is no coincidence that Army plays Davidson and Penn State before the Michigan game. All three teams use the single wing, and Blaik wanted three weeks of defense practice against the single wing before taking on Michigan. In that sense, it was smart scheduling.

NOT UNTIL November 12, will Army be tested again, even mildly. The Columbia, VMI, and Fordham games won't extend the Cadets. Army is too good and the others too weak. That provides virtually a three-weeks breather before the next big game with Penn on November 12. Army figures to win that on, too.

Closing th Army schedule, of course, is the Navy game. Navy always gives the Cadets a hard time of it even when losing. Navy is the only team that actually out-roughs and out-toughs Army. The Middies are inflamed with the same kind of spirit that Army takes into its games and like Army, is a punishing team.

Army pulled out of its series with Notre Dame with the confession that it wasn't in the same class with the Irish as a football power. There were other reasons, but that was the chief one. Now, in a year when the Cadets could perhaps knock the Irish off, there is no game. A pity, because it would have been a beaut.

Notre Dame Walloping Choice as Top Team

By Will Grimsley

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Top-placed Notre Dame sits it out this weekend but other members of college football's "first 10" face tough foes who should give the rankings another vigorous shuffle.

Three new teams moved into the select list after last week's wave of upsets, but the Fighting Irish strengthened their hold on the No. 1 position by mauling Tulane, 46-7.

Sports writers and broadcasters participating in the Associated Press' weekly poll were so impressed by this show of might that they gave the Irish a walloping vote.

Notre Dame received 146 of 179 first-place votes and a 200-point lead over Army, which hung on to second place, with Minnesota hurdling Oklahoma to take third.

Finishing out the top 10, in order, are: Oklahoma, California, North Carolina, Kentucky, Cornell, Rice and Texas.

Three newcomers are Cornell, Rice and Texas. They shoved out Michigan, the mythical national champion, Tulane and Southern Methodist, the most distinguished upset victims.

Michigan, beaten by Northwestern for its second defeat in a row, dropped to twelfth. Tulane fell from fourth to twentieth. S.M.U., subdued by Rice, plummeted from tenth to seventeenth.

Rice, No. 9, and Texas, No. 10, clash at Austin in the only game involvng two members of the top ten. Minnesota, No. 3, plays Michigan, and Kentucky, No. 7, meets S. M. U., on the rebound.

Army figures to have little trouble with Columbia. Oklahoma, No. 4, goes against Nebraska. California, No. 5, plays a Washington team that has lost three in a row. North Carolina, No. 6, meets Louisiana State. Cornell, No. 8, opposes Princeton.

The Voting:

The total vote with points figured on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis (first-place votes in parentheses):

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 1. | Notre Dame (146) | 1745 |

| 7. | Kentucky (3) | 798 |
| 8. | Cornell | 345 |

Cooper, Titone Rematched at Turner's Monday

Jimmy Cooper, District featherweight champion, and Charlie Titone, Brooklyn youngsters have been rematched for the main event at Joe Turner's Arena next Monday night, Matchmaker Gabe Menendez announced yesterday.

Cooper took a split decision from Titone here three weeks ago and handed the Brooklyn Italian his first defeat in two years.

St. John's Plays W-L Friday Night

St. John's will play Washington-Lee Friday night at W-L at 8 o'clock instead of playing Eastern, as was originally scheduled.

The game with Eastern will be played November 11 at W-L.

Ken Batson, W-L coach, and Joe Gallagher, St. John's mentor, were schoolmates at Georgetown in 1940 and this is the first time they have had a chance to schedule a game between the two schools.

Navy 5th in Nation in Offense

ARLINGTON BOY RETURNS—Ray Leister, former high school star in Arlington, will be at fullback in Washington and Lee University's razzle-dazzle attack against George Washington at Griffith Stadium Friday night. Leister played high school ball for Washington-Lee in Arlington, is the son of E. R. Leister, 309 N. Fillmore st., Arlington. He scored his team's only touchdown against Virginia last week

Virginia Holds 4th In Rushing

Although young Bob Zastrow had a bad day before Wisconsin kinfolk last Saturday, his great passing this season has currently elevated Navy to fifth among the Nation's total offensive leaders.

Virginia, paced by the area's greatest running back, Johnny Papit, is fourth in the country among the teams going by land.

Statistics released yesterday by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau show that George Sauer's Middies have averaged 403.8 yards in four contests.

Texas Western, nee Texas Mines, and the University of Texas run 1-2 on total offense with 432.8 and 418.8, respectively.

Papit Has 153.5 Average

It isn't surprising to find Virginia fourth in ground gaining with a four-game average of 292.5. Papit, himself, averages 153.5. And, in the VPI game, the Cavaliers let Ralph Shoaf go in his home town of Roanoke.

Wisconsin grabbed four of Zastrow's passes but still he completed 12 of 21 for 166 yards, including two touchdowns. So Navy also is fifth in passing offense.

William and Mary is sixth in this department and 10 of its passes have gone for touchdowns. That's topped only by Villanova's 11.

North Carolina's Charlie Justice dropped to a 38.3 average for seven punts against Wake Forest. Furman, with Punter Stombaugh operating, displaced the Tar Heels as the top kicking club.

Rieder Paces Terp Soccer Win

College Park, Md., Oct. 18 (AP).—Eddie Rieder scored two goals today to lead the University of Maryland to an easy 5-1 victory over the Salisbury State Teachers soccer team.

In hanging up their third straight victory, the Terrapins allowed the Salisbury booters only three shots at the net during the entire first half.

Bears Licked Eagles—Can Redskins?

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

It's really very simply. Beating the Philadelphia Eagles, that is.

According to the Washington Redskin coaching staff, which must figure a way to perform that rigorous chore Sunday, there are only two requisites:

(1) The Chicago Bears' system of defense, and

(2) The kind of tackling which will flatten Steve Van Buren and keep him flat.

In their last five games against the Eagles, reigning National Football League champions, the Redskins have come off a poor second all five times.

Last week, however, the Bears brought hope into the Redskin camp. They whipped the Eagles, who hadn't tasted defeat in 12 games, 38-21, by the simple device of jamming up the middle of Coach Greasy Neale's line.

Bear tackling, of course, paid dividends too. It was the conclusive sort that the Redskins DIDN'T get in their last five meetings with the Eagles, when tacklers had their hands on Van Buren, Josh Pritchard and company time after time and let them get away to long gains and touchdowns.

Van Buren Held to 15 Yards

The Bear trick which held Van Buren to a mere 15 yards in 15 trips with the ball on his wide sweeps, oddly enough, was built around the defensive center and guards. They all charged in toward the middle, allowing the defensive tackles to play wider in a stationary position and the defensive ends to sweep in and force Van Buren into the tackles, backed up by defensive halfbacks.

Obviously this system, or any other, won't work if the Redskins miss their tackling assignments. Their main hope of winning Sunday will be in stopping the Eagles' running game, which has accounted for 717 yards in four outings to date. Eagle passes have run up only 486 yards while the Redskins were sailing 1026 yards through the air and only 629 along the ground.

So far Washington's defense against runners has been very weak. The opposition has paced off 867 yards through Redskin defense, to only 492 yards in rushing by Eagle opponents.

Whatever formations Coach Billick Whelchel and his staff of Redskin coaches dream up and install, the Eagles probably will remain a three-touchdown favorite in Sunday's tiff at Shibe Park. This also despite the fact that every Redskin now on the injured list may be ready for at least a little action.

Of prime importance is the return of Fullback Ed Quirk, whose banged-up ankle is finally healing. Besides being a bull-like ball carrier, big Ed is a powerful line backer and blocker on pass defense.

Rocca, Baxter Wrestle Tonight

Argentine Rocca will wrestle Laverne Baxter in the main event at Joe Turner's Arena tonight. Rocca is undefeated since entering this country and holds a verdict over Primo Carnera.

Marvin Mercer and Martin Karadagian will stage a playback of their draw match from last week in tonight's semifinal.

Kola Karwiani will meet Barney Barnard, Lou Sgoberg takes on Ivan Kamaroff, and Ace Freeman grapples George Macricostas in the preliminaries starting at 8:45.

Jolters Win, 9-8, In Roller Derby

The New Jersey Jolters, coming from behind in the second half of last night's Roller Derby competition, scored a 9-8 victory over the Washington-Baltimore Wildcats at Uline Arena before 1,165 fans.

Player-Coach Carl Payne's Jolters have a chance to tie the 12-game series tonight in the final match between the two teams at Uline's at 8:30 o'clock. Tomorrow night, Brooklyn's Bombers open an 11-game series with the Wildcats.

Game Rescheduled

The Maryland-Georgetown freshmen football game scheduled for Saturday afternoon will be played Friday afternoon at 2:30 at Byrd Stadium.

W and L Has Trammel Set for GW

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

AFTER A YEAR and a half of careful grooming, Washington and Lee's Generals are preparing to spring their long, lean greyhound, Talbot Trammel, Friday night at Griffith Stadium.

That could be bad for their George Washington opponents.

Tales of End Trammel's heroic feats as a prep athlete in Chattanooga and as a freshman at W. & L. border on the fantastic.

They're still talking about last year's W. & L.-Virginia Tech freshman game, when Talbot carried four passes for touchdowns in the first seven minutes and then yanked himself. "Don't want to hog the show," he explained.

And there was the time when Talbot had finished freshman baseball practice, and was walking, spikes in hand, across the high jump pit toward the shower room. On a whim, Talbot suddenly hopped four steps and leaped over the bar. The track coach, who happened to be watching, almost swallowed his whistle.

The bar was set for 6 feet, 2 inches, and Talbot had made it in full baseball uniform.

FOOTBALL, baseball and track aren't Talbot's only specialties. In addition to those sports, he lettered in basketball, tennis and golf at McAllie Prep in Chattanooga.

That's where W. & L.'s Assistant Football Coach Harold Wise first read of him. Wise happened to be passing through Chattanooga the day Talbot graduated and read a writeup about the boy's athletic exploits.

"I thought to myself, wouldn't it be nice to have a kid like that at W. and L.," Wise tells in retrospect. "But I quickly dismissed the idea. I knew we couldn't compete for him with the bigger schools.

"Next thing I knew I was back at Lexington and the registrar was telling me about a Talbot Trammel from Chattanooga who had seen sent to W. and L. by his dad to forget sports and concentrate on law.

"WE GOT TALBOT'S dad on the phone, and finally persuaded him to let his boy come out for baseball and football.

A's Trade Fox, Get Tipton

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox today announced the trade of Catcher Joe Tipton to the Philadelphia Athletics for Second Baseman Nelson Fox in a straight player deal.

Tipton batted .204 last season, playing in 67 games. He was acquired by the Sox from the Cleveland Indians in exchange for Pitcher Joe Haynes last November.

Fox, a 21-year-old rookie, batted .254 for the Athletics in 88 games this year.

The swap was believed the first step in a Sox move to put their American League all-star second baseman Cass Michaels on the market with hopes of landing three or four good players in return.

Harris Talks Contract With Griffith Today

Bucky Harris will talk contract today with Clark Griffith, who has offered him the post as manager of the Washington baseball club.

Griffith was prepared to receive Harris in his office yesterday, but the conference was postponed at Harris' request. Arriving in Washington in the morning by train from California, Harris complained that "it was a rugged trip."

Harris confessed his interest in the Washington job "if the salary figures are attractive enough." He added, "It has always been a pleasure to work with Mr. Griffith."

Hoyas, Catholic Lose Players

Georgetown gains an end and and loses one for its tough battle at Boston College Friday night.

Bill Resch, who caught the winning touchdown pass against Wake Forest, will miss the game because of an injured knee.

A Catholic U. end, Tony Pelerossi, fractured an ankle bone against Randolph-Macon Saturday, and will be out three weeks to a month.

Hoya Harriers Win Easily, 16-47

Baltimore, Oct. 18—Eleven of the first 12 men to cross the finish line in a cross country meet here today wore the blue and gray of Georgetown University of Washington, as the Hoyas romped to a 16-47 win over the Baltimore Olympic Club.

Jim Rams completed the 4½-mile grind in 20:53 to lead the Hilltop harriers.

4 Touchdowns Against VPI

GW's Al DuGoff—Player of the Week

HATS OFF to Al DuGoff of George Washington University.

All he did to merit his selection as College Football Player of the Week was:

1. Return the second-half kickoff in Saturday's Virginia Tech game 105 yards for the Nation's longest touchdown of the year;

2. Bust over for three other touchdowns to lead the Colonials to their first win of the season, 24-14;

3. Account for 239 yards in 29 chances with the ball;

4. Leap into the Southern Conference scoring lead with seven touchdowns and 42 points in four games.

This young fellow of a senior (he just turned 20 last February and weighs a burly 190 pounds) is something rare in college football. He came to G. W., not via the routine athletic scholarship, but by an academic scholarship.

He has always been a near straight "A" student, and he ranked eighth in the 1946 Roosevelt High class of 350 graduates. He is majoring in pharmacy, and is doing so well that he'll finish in June.

THAT'S THE tragedy of it all, from the football standpoint. Al is just beginning to mature into thick sinew and muscle, and his football career is almost ended.

Al was a pretty fair quarterback at Roosevelt, and made the varsity at G. W. in his freshman year. He was moved to fullback last season, and, in spots, showed brilliantly on line bucks and kick returns.

Against Wake Forest, he took a punt on his own 35 and scooted to the Deacon eight to set up a touchdown. And against V. M. I., last season, he returned the second-half kickoff 80 yards for G. W.'s only touchdown.

The G. W. players are still chuckling about that 105-yarder against Virginia Tech.

"Sounds funny, but we planned it that way in the dressing room at halftime," commented Guard George Walley. "We decided that instead of merely hitting and running on our V. P. I. targets, we'd block them down, and hang back to make sure that they stayed down."

"We just asked Doogie which way he wanted to run," said Halfback Charlies Jones. "And you know how quiet he is, all he said was 'to the right'."

Overconfident Jockey Almost Costs Double Brandy a Victory

Bill Bennings . . .

DEAR FOLKS:

Bowes and Bernie Bond, the two brothers who used to dominate the half-milers with their training, are tied here with four winners each. In searching for the blame for light Laurel betting, it seems one point has been overlooked. This track has the poorest line-up of jockeys in many years. For instance, Bobby Martin, the leading rider, couldn't get to first base around Laurel last year. That goes despite his big day on the Tuesday program. The apprentices are far off usual form, too, with Dick Stark, the leader, being a novice who gets good mounts because he's the best of a bad lot. See you on the rail. BILL.

Gasparilla Beaten Out At Laurel

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 18.—Charles E. Tuttle's Double Brandy proved stimulating to his backers in a crowd of 8054 here today, the colt winning the $7500 added Grayson Stakes.

The only 3-year-old in the field of five, Double Brandy was an easy winner by three parts of a length.

In fact, his rider, Jack Robertson, almost tossed off the first money in an overconfident finish. With a three-length lead at the far edge of the results board, Robertson apparently thought A. J. Sackett's Gasparilla was through, and eased Double Brandy.

However, Jockey Robert J. Martin, who rode three winners earlier on the program, roused Gasparilla and the 4-year-old made a belated rush going into the wire that would have brought victory in another jump.

Gasparilla, the favorite, was six lengths ahead of Big Dial, owned by G. M. Jacobson of Washington, for the place money. Alairne, Big Dial's stablemate, and Mrs. F. J. Vollmer's Infirst were the only others to compete in the twelfth running of the event.

Double Brandy, as second choice, returned a $5.40 mutuel and was clocked for the marathon route of a mile and 5 furlongs in 2:48. H. L. Straus' Pilaster set the track record of 2:45 ⅘ in last year's Grayson.

This was only the second victory in 17 starts this year for Double Brandy.

Jockey Martin went three-up on Bobbie Strange in the saddle battle here. Strange, who was absent today, being at Jamaica, was tied with the Baltimore boy at 16 winners going into today's program.

Top Rider Glisson Breaks Collarbone

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Gordon Glisson, the "golden boy" of horse racing who became the Nation's leading rider this year in his first full season as a jockey with 249 wins, suffered a fractured collarbone today in a spill at Jamaica.

The 19-year-old rider from Winns S. C., was tossed over the shoulder of Samuel C. Back's Marine Compo which stumbled during the running of the third race.

Trammel Set for GW

Mr. Trammel was worried because Talbot packs only 170 pounds on his 6-foot 4-inch frame. He didn't want Talbot to wear himself out on six sports."

All Talbot did was whack .350 as a baseball outfielder, and catch 11 of Gil Bocetti's 14 touchdown passes in football.

They've been breaking Talbot into the varsity lineup slowly. He's been used only on defense, and has played about a quarter of each of W & L's first four games.

However, there's a rumor that G. W. is allergic to passing. So W & L is warming up its hot sophomore passing combination of Bocetti and Trammel, and should make it hot for the Colonials.

Oh, Well, Terps-N. C. State Can Get Together Saturday

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

DIFFERENCE of opinion dept.: Preparing his squad for Maryland, Coach Beattie Feathers stressed pass defense yesterday, terming this "one of N. C. State's WEAK POINTS" . . . Preparing his squad for North Carolina State, Coach Jim Tatum warned his passers yesterday to be cautious since "pass defense is one of State's STRONG POINTS" . . . Mrs. Phyllis Spangler will watch Saturday's clash between George Washington's freshmen and Bullis Prep with mixed emotions . . . Her husband, Bill Spangler, is the GW tutor; her father, Harry Deming, coaches Bullis . . . Rice doesn't play Navy until 1951, but the Owls have already put the eye on the Annapolis athletes. They had a scout at Madison, Wis., Saturday, when the Middies were trounced by Wisconsin . . . Granted, Midwestern football is better than the Southern brand, but not as superior as one of the Midwestern papers would have you believe. A Sunday Minneapolis newspaper carried the scores of North Carolina-Wake Forest game under high school results. That's not Justice, boys . . .

MARYLAND'S FOOTBALL team was idle Saturday, but the Terps weren't from a prestige viewpoint. They gained several notches of respect when Michigan State, whom they held to a 14-7 victory, trounced William and Mary, 42 to 13 . . . Also, the Terps moved up to the Nation's third best defensive club as Yale and Tulane, rated ahead of them last week, were thoroughly drubbed by Cornell and Notre Dame, respectively . . . Kansas will probably not appear on the GW schedule next year with Arkansas as the likely replacement . . . If Athletic Boss Max Farrington does schedule Arkansas instead of Kansas he won't be doing Bo Rowland, an old Arkansan, any favors inasmuch as the Ozark footballers are tougher than Kansas.

NAVY'S RIP MILLER is looking for triple threat football players—those who come from either the farm, mill or mine . . . Virginia Coach Art Guepe isn't at all mad that Johnny Papit has run up huge chunks of yardage against GW, VPI and W. and L., but he doesn't want his fullback star to run out of gas before Virginia meets Tulane, Pennsylvania and North Carolina
Quote of the week: Henry Frnka, Tulane coach, after Saturday's rout by Notre Dame: "I'd like to say something funny, but I feel like I've been pulverized." . . .

Stevens And Hunt Low at 63

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Congressional Country Club staged its big show yesterday, a $1500 added pro-member tournament, and watched Chandler Harper come up from Portsmouth, Va., and walk off with the top pro prize.

Harper carded a 33, 34—67, four under par, to win the $250 top prize money.

Harper, however, failed to get much help from his partners in the pro-am and couldn't do better than take E. L. Stohlman and C. J. Matthews into a tie for third with 66s. Clagett Stevens, Manor, and F. E. Hunt walked off with the top pro-am prize with a 63.

Amateur low gross went to Tom Belshe, 74, while Dr. W. F. Sullivan, 88, 19—69, won the low net award. A novel feature added by Frank McArdle, chairman, was a three-man team event which went to three teams with 63s. Harold Oatman, Norfolk, Va.; Percy Erisman and Jim Gibbons; Clagett Stevens, Manor, and F. E. Hunt without a third man, and Buck Worsham, Congressional; C. P. Given and D. A. Stalker.

Chandler Harper was two strokes ahead of his nearest opponent, Mel Shorey, Indian Spring, 69, whose effort earned him $150. Most of the pros in yesterday's event will play in the District Open at Indian Spring today and tomorrow. Harper, however, will not compete. Walter Romans, Baltimore C. C., whose 71 yesterday gained him a tie for fifth place, is the defending champion in the Open.

Low net went to R. W. Fleming and Mrs. Edward Ferriday, Chevy Chase, 35, 38, 75, 5½—62½, who topped the other 72 competing teams by eight strokes for the net award.

Second gross was won by Maury Fitzgerald and Betty Meckley, Kenwood, 36, 40—76; third gross was a three-way tie between, Karl Corby and Mrs. John Ives, Columbia, 42, 37—79; Don DeVeau and Mrs. David Clark, Chevy Chase, 41, 38—79; Ralph Bogart and Mrs. Landra Platt, Chevy Chase, 39, 40—79.

Gwynn Park Booters Beat Lackey, 6 to 1

Gwynn Park defeated Lackey, 6-1, in a soccer game yesterday at the winners' field. The win avenged a 2-1 defeat earlier in the season.

The Federal Diary
by Jerry Kluttz

U. S. Pay Raise Bill Is Forwarded to Truman by Senate

The Senate yesterday approved and sent to the White House the conference reports on the bills to give modest pay boosts to 1,385,000 Federal workers—885,000 classified and 500,000 postal.

President Truman is expected to sign both bills into law within a few days. In that event, the bills would become effective for about 200,000 Government people here covered by them on October 30. They would increase the Federal payroll here by about $27,500,000 annually.

Meantime, the Senate approved a rider to the final supplemental appropriation bill to boost the salaries of the 5000 legislative employes here by 5 percent. The bill goes back to the House for action on it.

Cost $240 Million a Year

The three pay bills would cost an estimated 240 million dollars a year—125 million dollars for classified employes; 115 million dollars for postal workers, and $35,000 for legislative people.

The 885,000 classified employes would get an average pay boost of $140.50 each; postal workers would get a flat $120 annual raise, and in addition, they would get "fringe" benefits that would cost an average of $122.25-a-year for each postal employe, or an average of $222.25 for each of the half-million workers. The average legislative employe would get a pay boost of between $175 and $200 annually under the 5 percent rider.

It's entirely possible for some classified people to get surprisingly large pay raises under the bill — up to $400, $600, and $800 a year. In this group would be employes who have been at the tops in their salary grades for three or more years. These people would get longevity pay raises which are provided classified workers for the first time in history of the measure. As revealed here previously, past service can be credited toward the longevity promotions.

Could Get All Three

An employe who has been at the maximum of his salary grade for nine years and who has rendered satisfactory service could get all three of the longevity raises. He'd get two such raises if he had been there for six years, and one if he had been at the top for three years. A maximum of three grades is provided in the bill.

The longevity raises apply only to the first 10 proposed new (GS) general schedule grades, and all (CPC) crafts, protective, and custodial grades. Their amounts are the same in in-grade raises in those grades such as: $80 in the first four GS grades and $125 in grades CS-5 through GS-10. The CPC schedule is: $60 for Grade 1; $70 in Grade 2; $80 for grades 3 through 6; $100 in grade 7, and $125 in grades 8 through 10.

A survey made several months ago by the Civil Service Commission revealed that 80,000 of the 885,000 classified workers were at the tops of their respective grades. The study didn't show how long each of them had been in their "dead-end" jobs but it's assumed that upwards of 25,000 will get at least one longevity pay boost under the bill in addition to the salary hike provided in the bill.

Disputed Point Cleared Up

The conference report on the postal bill cleared up a point over which the conferees themselves were in doubt. The disputed point is the provision to abolish the lower grades. What actually happened is this:

The two lower grades for regular employes would be abolished for all practical purposes and the starting salaries for clerks, carriers, and other regulars would be lifted from $2550 to $2870 under the bill.

Only grade 2 would be abolished for substitutes and temporaries who would be required to serve a year before they could be promoted to grade 3 jobs.

VA: The Senate yesterday voted to soften the threatened major layoff in the Veterans' Administration.

It agreed to a transfer of 15 million dollars to VA's administrative fund. Earlier, the House had voted such a plan.

VA had sought $17,500,000 in cash. Administrator Carl Gray told Congress that he would be forced to fire 7800 employes and shut down 501 field offices unless he got the money.

If the 15-million-dollar transfer is finally okayed, VA will have to abolish about 1000 jobs.

Big Business Chest Team Has Kickoff

Several hundred volunteer workers who will carry the 1950 Red Feather campaign to 2500 large business houses in this area received pep talks and campaign literature at a kickoff rally yesterday.

As they met, their assignment was cut down to 2499 by an announcement that one firm in the unit, Business Unit 1, had just reported going over the top.

It was the G. B. Macke Co., an automatic vending machine company at 212 H st. nw. The Macke company was selected by Community Chest officials as one of the 125 bellwether firms that will attempt to complete their solicitation in time for the first report luncheon, October 31.

The company reported collecting $1022 from its 94 employes, $484 from its executives and $600 as a company gift, for a total of $2106. This was 22 percent more than last year's donation.

Aaron Goldman, president of the Macke company, is chairman of Business Unit 2, which will solicit the 18,000 smaller businesses in the are. The Chest is aiming for a total of $3,991,719 in this year's campaign.

At yesterday's rally in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, 1615 H st. nw., Thornton W. Owen, chairman of Unit B of Business 1, urged the volunteers to work for installment pledges rather than cash donations.

He said evidence indicated that a great deal more money was obtained through pledges and that 96 percent of the pledges were paid up.

Maurice L. Nee, chairman of Unit A, outlined the size of donations to be aimed at in Business 1. He asked workers to strive for one day's take-home pay from each employe, 1 percent of wages of executives who make more than $5000 a year, and one tenth of 1 percent of the annual volume of sales from each firm.

Workers in Business Unit 2 will hold their kickoff rallies at two luncheons today and Thursday in the Washington Hotel. The new Washington Redskin coach, Admiral Billick Whelchel, will speak today, and William E. Leahy, D. C. director of Selective Service, will speak at the Thursday rally.

Mrs. Keleher Evicted, Then Pays, Returns

Dolly Keleher, estranged wife of one of the town's upper-crust gambling figures, was singing "Baby, It's Cold Outside" yesterday.

The marshal's men evicted Mrs. Keleher from her Woodley Park Towers apartment and it wasn't until friends hurriedly scraped together back rent of more than $800 that she was permitted to return.

Mrs. Keleher knew she was in danger of being ejected from her seven-room, two-bathroom apartment, but—

"I called the Weather Bureau and they said it would be rainy. Well . . ."

Well, it didn't rain, and the eviction forces did arrive, and they moved out Mrs. Keleher's furnishings valued at more than $35,000—oriental rugs, old paintings and rare pieces of furniture.

They weren't balked either by the fact that Mrs. Keleher was out and the door was locked. They picked the lock, said Mrs. Keleher.

When rent due since last June was paid in full, Mrs. Keleher's furnishings were moved back in the apartment.

Mrs. Keleher blames her predicament on her estranged husband, who is known in certain circles as "Blackjack" Keleher.

Under a District Court order, he is paying her $100 a week maintenance, but this doesn't even begin to pay the bills, Mrs. Keleher complains.

Retroactive Pay Given to D. C. Workers

Retroactive pay checks went out to 17,600 District employes yesterday, but indications were most won't keep them any longer than it takes to pay a bill.

Some said they would bank the money against a rainy day. Most, however, agreed they were in the same boat with Pvt. P. G. Mangum of the Metropolitan Police Traffic Division who said: "I'm going to pay myself part way out of the hole I got into waiting for it."

Checks for persons who had worked for the District steadily from July 1, 1948, and were still on the payroll July 6, ranged from $260.70 to $269 depending upon the department they worked in.

Police and firemen received $269, teachers received $264 and classified and per diem workers received $260.70. In each case, 15 percent was deducted for withholding tax. The variation came in the amount deducted for retirement funds.

The congressional appropriation for retroactive pay was $4,205,850. Deductions cut the amount actually paid out yesterday to a little less than $3,500,000.

This was still a lot of money to be put into circulation at once. Comments from various city workers indicated it would circulate in large amounts—among the butcher, the baker, the doctor and the rest. A large share of it has already been spent in anticipation, they said.

Mrs. Adelaide L'Homme, receptionist in the Corporation Counsel's office at the District Building, spent the money last summer on an emergency operation.

District Poundmaster Frank E. Marks spent his check last summer ahead of time when he took his first vacation in 10 years.

Women Hear Candidates In Arlington

Magruder Tells 60 at Lyon Park Of Plans Against 'Runaway Pappys'

Incumbents of and candidates for the Virginia House of Delegates and the Arlington County Board outlined their platforms before the Arlington Association of American University Women at the Lyon Park Community House, Arlington, last night.

Those who addressed the gathering of 60 were J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm, both Democratic members of the House of Delegates; Lee Potter, Republican candidate for the House; Basil DeLashmutt, Democratic chairman of the county board; Robert W. Cox, nonpartisan candidate for county board, and Jacob Bechtel, independent candidate for county board.

Magruder said he intends to sponsor a "runaway pappy" bill at the next session of the Legislature. He asserted his bill is designed to remedy the present situation in which there is no civil procedure to enforce the support of abandoned wives and children when the father flees to another State.

Damm recommended that the Commonwealth use a general funds surplus, which he estimated would reach 45 million dollars by 1951, to make outright grants to counties for school construction.

Potter outlined a program which included legislation to permit women to serve on juries in Virginia, abolishing the Virginia Milk Commission and authorizing a referendum on the question of nonpartisan elections in Arlington.

Cox declared: "The people of Arlington have taken control of the school board out of the hands of the old guard and the politicians, but the fight for schools is not over."

DeLashmutt, asserting that he was running on his record, declared, "If we should give each of our departments what they ask for we should have a tax rate closer to $6 than to the $3.45 which we now have."

Bechtel said: "I don't care where the money comes from, whether through bond issues or taxes, but I'm for education. The schools are one institution that must be kept up."

Conley Calls Cox Charge Direct Slap at PUC

A former member of the Arlington Public Utilities Commission yesterday denied charges by a nonpartisan county board candidate, Robert Cox, that County Board Chairman Basil De Lashmutt has been "tender" toward public utilities.

Lester Conley, who retired Saturday from the PUC, said he "personally resents" Cox's remarks which he termed "a direct slap at the PUC."

Conley said that in his three years with the PUC "all members of the county board have been alert to problems affecting residents of the county." He said De Lashmutt "personally and on his own initiative" saw to it that State and Federal regulatory bodies were aware of these problems.

Fry Elected President Of Alexandria P-TA

The newly-formed Parent-Teacher Association of Ficklin School, Alexandria, has elected William T. Fry as its first president, it was announced yesterday.

Alexandria House Gives Up Faded Letters Stirring Ghost of Washington's Cousin

The Washington Post

LETTERS DROPPED IN EAVES—William E. Ketland of Alexandria examines old letters dated 1725 and 1785, found in eaves of building at 6 King st.

Some ghosts of Alexandria in the late 1700s were abroad in that city yesterday, unloosed by chance from their resting place in an old warehouse where King st. tumbles down to the Potomac.

There was, for instance, the shade of Col. John Fitzgerald—friend of George Washington—called up by the discovery of numerous faded, torn letters addressed to him.

Another wraith was that of G. Washington—third cousin of the general—brought back through a letter involving him in a squabble over a hogshead of tobacco.

The correspondence came to light in remodeling the four-story brick building at No. 6 King st.

W. E. Ketland, who recently sold the building but still lives in it, said workmen uprooted a dormer window on the fourth floor and under an eave found a dusty, paper-wrapped package, which they threw aside.

The packet lay in the rain for several days until Ketland retrieved it. Now he is wondering whether the faded letters are of value.

Clearest of the letters is one to Colonel Fitzerald, penned by an Edward Smith in a firm hand. It notes that the colonel has refused a hogshead of tobacco sent him.

"I am really surprised at it as one hogshead was made by W. Washington . . ." the letter continues, and another hogshead sent to Fitzgerald was made "by W. Throckmorton."

"I shall thank you to inform me which hogshead it is," Smith's letter went on. "Washington's tobacco the waggoner informed me was something amazed in the head by being prized out of doors . . ."

The letter is dated July 26, 1785.

Other items include a badly-blurred account ledger; several bank notes; newspaper fragments, one dated 1846; a statement that one James Gillis is entitled to one share in the Bank of Alexandria (dated March 2, 1793).

Old District Court records in Alexandria show that the King st. property was sold to Mrs. Elizabeth Mancaster in June, 1790.

2 Ex-Athletes Under Bond in Home Entry

Two former high school athletes, charged with housebreaking, yesterday waived a preliminary hearing in Municipal Court and were released in $1000 bond apiece for the grand jury.

The youths, John E. Talbert, 19, of 905 Quackenbos st. nw., and George J. Pappafotis, 19, of 3516 30th st. nw., were arrested Monday by Pvt. John F. Corey, a motorcycle policeman, who surprised them in his apartment, 839 Kennedy st. nw.

Talbert and Pappafotis told police they got the idea that an easy living could be made from housebreaking after reading about 64 such crimes committed with ease by another man some time ago.

Both suspects had played football at Wilson High School where Talbert was involved in a "ringer" case about a year ago.

Police reported yesterday that Talbert's 1947 Buick convertible was picked up near the scene of the housebreaking. In the glove compartment, they said, they found a pearl necklace, a dinner ring and a gold bracelet. Talbert was quoted as telling police the items were left in the car "by various girl friends."

Coroner Lists Sullivan Boy As a Suicide

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday signed a certificate of suicide in the death of Robert Sullivan, 15, who was found in a wooded ravine Friday with a bullet through his head.

A sophomore at Wilson High School, the boy had been missing from his home since October 1. He lived with his mother, Mrs. Edith C. Maxey, at 4831 36th st. nw.

Police were told that before the boy disappeared he had displayed a Luger and 50 cartridges to friends and said he was going to Mexico. He had been shot by the Luger which was found by his side.

The body was found in an area known as Soapstone Valley pkwy., in the rear of the Chevy Chase Ice Palace, and near Connecticut ave. and Albemarle st. nw. The scene was about a mile from the boy's home.

3 Suspended Policemen Quit Force

Three suspended Alexandria policemen charged with conduct unbecoming an officer, resigned from the force yesterday.

City Manager W. Guy Ancell and Maj. Edgar Sims, chief of police, declined to elaborate on the charges. "They all resigned of their own volition," Ancell said. "I think they've been persecuted enough."

The three, all Alexandrians, are Clifton G. Ferguson, 26, 314 Prince st.; Jack W. Holmes, 26, 105 E. Windsor ave., and William J. Vaughn, jr., 24, 323 Mansion dr. Ferguson and Holmes have been officers for three years, and Vaughn for a year and a half.

A city official who wished to remain anonymous, said the charges against the policemen specified they broke up a dice game, pocketed the money, and made no arrests. They were suspended October 6 on a citizen's complaint.

Following their suspension, Chief Sims gave each man a hearing. Their testimony subsequently was turned over to the city manager.

Ancell, who alone can hire and fire police officers, studied the testimony and then directed Chief Sims to order the men to resign.

The city manager, asked to make public the cause of the resignations, declined on the grounds that the action taken was sufficient, that full publicity would be too harsh.

"They're all young fellows," he said. "They have their ways to make."

Of the three, only Vaughn could be reached. He declined to comment.

All-Girl Show Is Set For Fort McNair

An all-girl variety show will be the feature entertainment at 8 p. m., October 24, at the Fort McNair Post Theater, P and 3d sts. sw.

Sponsored by the District Recreation Board, the show has traveled widely throughout the country and stars Tommy Thompson, veteran USO performer.

Correction and Retraction

An article in The Washington Post of October 17 contained the following:

"Criminal Lawyer James Laughlin, who defended Axis Sally, and who told Prince Georges County authorities he knew all about gambling in the county, versus A. Gwynn Bowie, county State Attorney, who tried unsuccessfully to get Laughlin to make good on his boast."

What Laughlin did tell Mr. Bowie was stated in the following paragraph of a letter dated March 16, 1949, as follows:

"I feel sure you will agree with me that I have no personal knowledge of the gambling situation in Prince Georges County. The information at my disposal comes as a result of my participation in the Keleher trial."

The Washington Post's reference to this statement, to whatever extent it did exaggerate or misinterpret Mr. Laughlin's position or construe it as a "boast," is herewith corrected, and retracted and our apologies extended to Mr. Laughlin.

Police Quiz Of Pupils In Murder Up to Board

Education Heads Have the Decision In Park Slaying, Corning Declares

School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning said yesterday it is up to the Board of Education to decide if police are to question students at the Briggs-Montgomery Elementary School in the Harrison Walker murder case.

He said he is opposed to having police visit the school where the 8-year-old victim was a student.

"It would be very bad for the children to have police discuss the boy's death at an assembly," Dr. Corning said.

The boy's body, bearing evidence of multiple stabbings, a severe beating and sexual abuse, was found October 9 in Rock Creek a few blocks from the school. The boy had been missing for two days.

Police Chief Robert J. Barrett complained to the Commissioners Monday that school officials had refused police permission to question the children at the school or to speak to them at an assembly.

In answering Barrett, Corning cited a 25-year-old police directive which said students would be questioned only in their homes. The order had the approval of the Board of Education and was sent out to all principals, Corning said.

Barrett said yesterday the directive was rescinded in February, 1948. The new order said "children will be interrogated at their homes after school hours when circumstances permit, and not at the school during school hours."

Barrett said "circumstances do not permit questioning of children at home in this case." Purpose of the assembly would be to find out if any other children had been accosted, the police chief declared.

Corning said that if police had changed their procedure to permit questioning of children at schools, they had failed to notify school officials or to get permission of the Board of Education. A report will be made to the board at its regular meeting today at 3:30 p. m., Corning said.

Hat Band Hides Numbers Slips, Suspect Is Held

LeRoy Pulliam, 56, of 750 7th st. se., believes in keeping his business under his hat.

And so when Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad chief, examined Pulliam's inside hat band in police headquarters yesterday, a quantity of numbers slips was uncovered.

Pulliam had been arrested earlier on a United States Commissioner's warrent at his home, 750 7th st. se.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, Pulliam was held in $1000 bond on charges of operating a lottery and possessing numbers slips. His case was continued to October 26.

Correction

A motion recommending a parking ban for a small section of Carpenter st. se., between O st. and Highwood dr., was indefinitely tabled at a Monday night meeting of the Fort Davis Citizens Association.

An association spokesman said the motion was tabled rather than cause "ill feeling" among those residents affected, although the parking ban would involve only four houses.

The Washington Post erroneously reported yesterday that the action took place at a meeting of the Fort Dupont Citizens Association and that 39 homeowners protested the motion. Actually, only six residents appeared to protest. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Sealed-Cargo Truck Upsets, Ties Up Traffic

Alexandria Police Wait for U. S. Agent To Remove Trailer

Truck traffic on the main southbound route through Alexandria was disrupted for more than four hours last night when a trailer truck overturned and blocked the road at Potomac Yard bridge and N. Henry st.

Alexandria police said the truck was loaded with a sealed cargo of Government supplies, and that it could not be moved until a Government agent from Baltimore arrived with another truck to transfer the cargo.

Police said the truck was too heavy to turn right side up with the cargo aboard, and that after the fire department washed spilled gasoline from the street, all they could do was to stand by to reroute traffic.

The driver, as yet unidentified, was unhurt. He told police the truck overturned as it made a right turn from the bridge into N. Henry st.

Sailor Escapes Injury As Auto Overturns

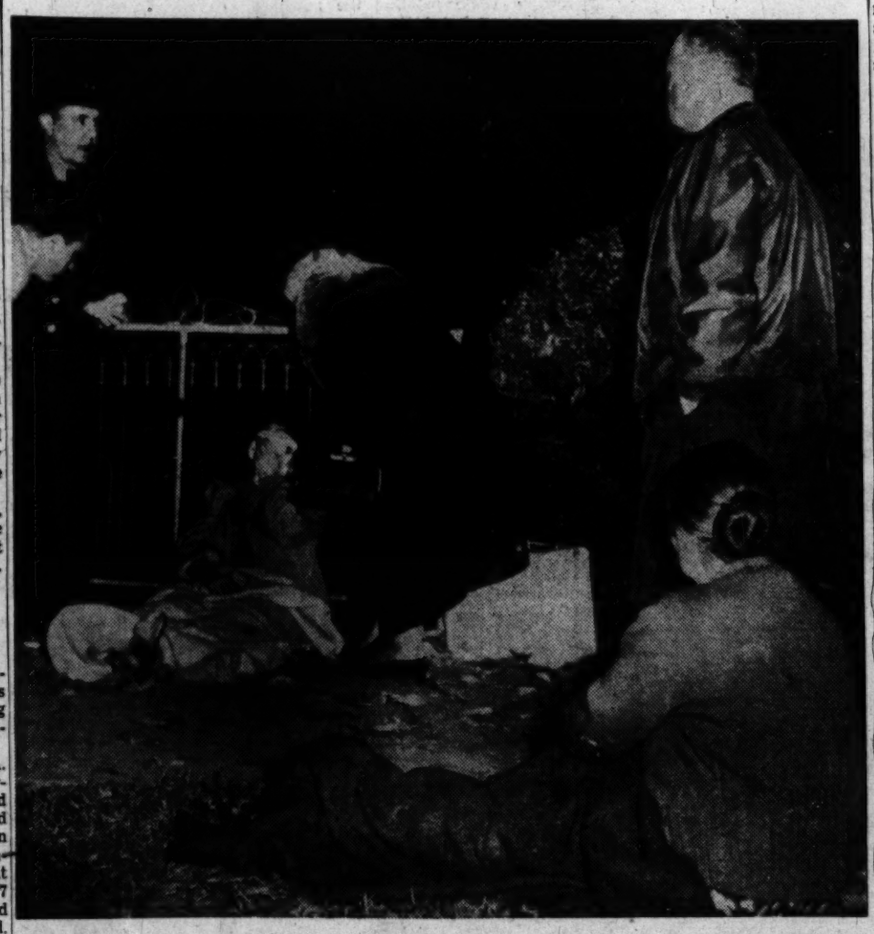
A 20-year-old sailor escaped injury yesterday when his car was knocked more than 70 feet along Massachusetts ave. and turned upside down.

Police said the sailor, John A. Walker of Navy Quarters K, Arlington, Va., drove through a red light at Massachusetts ave., and Waterside dr., and was struck in the rear by an auto driven by Genevieve Tupper, 23, a Department of Justice stenographer, of 4817 36th st. nw. Walker was charged with failing to obey a traffic signal.



By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

Allen Thomas Gets Montgomery Post

In Prince Georges

Hearing Set On Zoning Ordinance

A hearing on the proposed new zoning ordinance for Prince Georges County, Md., was set for November 29 at 8 p. m. in the County Service Building, Hyattsville, yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners.

The ordinance is an amended form of the proposed regulation presented to the commissioners by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission two years ago on which a hearing was held last March. Opposition developed to several clauses, and these have been deleted.

The ordinance would provide 11 instead of five zoning classifications, and include territory on the fringe of the metropolitan district within the zoning region.

In other actions, the commissioners exempted from taxes five acres at Forestville on Marloro pike, where the new Mount Calvary Catholic Church School and convent are to be built; took under advisement requests for better traffic safety provisions for pupils of Wildercroft and J. Enos Ray schools.

The commissioners will hold hearings today on several petitions for rezoning.

The last remaining top vacancy in Montgomery County's charter government was filled yesterday by the appointment of Allen Morton Thomas, jr., as director of the Department of Inspection and Licenses.

The appointment, made by County Manager Irving G. McNayr from among 25 applicants, was approved by the county council at its regular weekly session.

At the same time McNayr reported that Wallace A. MacBain, of Somers Point, N. J., appointed county fire marshal on September 27, had declined the post.

Thomas who is 39 and lives at 5506 Glenwood rd., Bethesda, until Saturday was chief engineer for the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. His appointment to the $7500-a-year post is effective today.

As head of the department he will be charged with administration and enforcement of codes, ordinances and other standards relating to zoning, building, electrical work, plumbing, trash removal from vacant lots, billboards, street construction and standards of weights and measures.

The new department head had been with the Park and Planning Commission since April, 1947. Prior to that he was associated with the construction of the Pentagon Building, the Naval Medical Center, at Bethesda, and George Washington University Hospital. He served in the Navy from 1942 to 1946, attaining the grade of lieutenant commander.

The council approved the county personnel board's denial of the application of County Policeman Lester Jones for a disability pension. Jones suffered injuries on August 29, 1948, when an automobile he was entering to report for work at the Bethesda Station was struck by another vehicle. The board ruled that Jones was not, within the meaning of the law covering disabilities, actually injured "in the line of duty."

The council appointed three members of the county safety board to serve to December 31—Henry K. Evans, Silver Spring; Dan Hayes, Kensington, and A. H. Bowis, North Chevy Chase.

Wender Urges Care in Ending Segregation

The chairman of the District Recreation Board last night said if he could give his life to end segregation in Washington during 1950, he would do it.

But Harry S. Wender speaking to the Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights, said "We just can't go whole hog overnight.

"We must go forward, and we will make changes in the program of segregation, but we will make them in the public interest and public order."

"If you say segregation must remain, you are speaking sinfully." Wender spoke at the Bell Vocational School, Hiatt pl., and Lamont st. nw. on "Gripes of a Recreation Chairman." The speaker said he was especially tried by:

1. The apathy of persons "supposedly interested" in all civic programs. These people specialize in telling others what to do and then doing nothing themselves, Wender said.

2. The demands made by Washington on its Recreation Board. "A few years ago when we had no Recreation Board, we also had virtually no recreation," he said. "Now we have the board, and the people expect us to work wonders overnight."

3. The reluctance of officials to inform the Recreation Board of decisions that vitally affect District recreation. He said the site for the sesquicentennial celebration at the foot of East Capitol st. was chosen without notifying the Recreation Board, even though the board had spent "hundreds and hundreds of thousands of dollars" on the site, and that no substitute had been provided.

Wender also cited the recent decision by the Interior Department to ask for funds to build a pool at Fort Stanton Park in Southeast Washington without consulting the board.

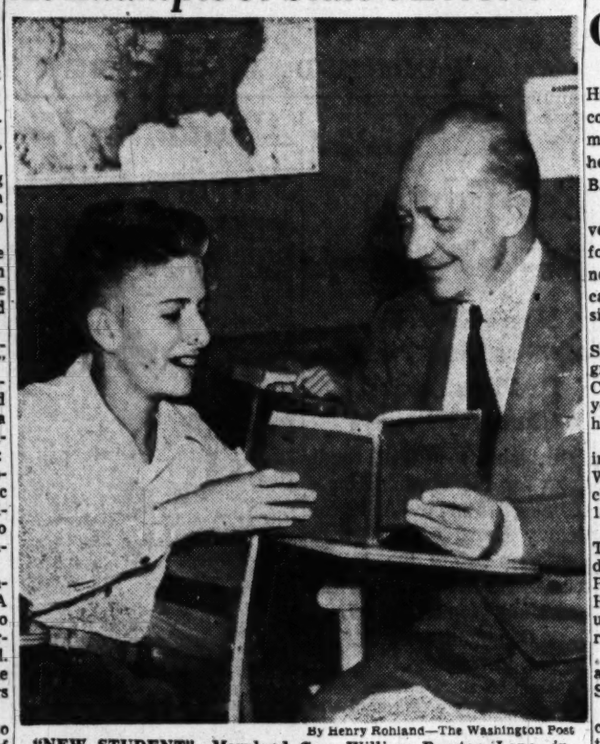
Lane Acclaims School Addition As Example of State's Efforts



By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

"NEW STUDENT"—Maryland Gov. William Preston Lane, jr. (right), sits down with students in the new addition of the Takoma Park Junior High School, dedicated yesterday. William Endress, jr., 12, shows Governor Lane the math lesson for day

Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., made the principal address yesterday at dedication ceremonies of the half-million dollar addition to the Takoma Park Junior High School on Piney Branch rd. near East-West hwy.

The Governor cited the construction of the unit as an example of the steps being taken to add to school facilities throughout the State to catch up with the backlog of pupils occasioned by population growth and lack of building during the war.

Under the school program enacted by the 1947 General Assembly, the Governor said 23 new schools and 48 additions have been built throughout the State. The over-all program running through July, 1950, calls for 121 new buildings and 140 additions. Total cost of the program was estimated by Lane at 101 million dollars.

Citizens and children attending the ceremonies were welcomed by Principal Lester Welch. Harold H. Flickinger, president of the school P-TA, introduced school officials, representatives of the county government and other county leaders who "had a part in the construction of this addition."

The addition, containing 10 classrooms and a gymnasium, raises pupil capacity from 450 to 900.

Junior Leaguers Hear UCS Director's Plea For Needy of Capital

By Marie McNair

JUNIOR LEAGUE members must surely have come away from their annual luncheon yesterday impressed with their responsibilities toward their fellowman.

The intelligent, well-dressed group of young women listened earnestly to Arthur H. Kruse, executive director of United Community Services, as he impressed upon them the duties of organized society toward less fortunate individuals not only in Washington but throughout the land.

Earlier, league members in new season's hats, tweeds and smart frocks, gathered on the Chevy Chase Club's wide porch for cocktails, moved upstairs to the sunlit dining room with windows looking out on an autumnal scene.

Mrs. Thomas Taylor, chairman of the luncheon committee, had given the speaker's table a holiday touch with Halloween masks eerily lurking among green leaves.

Mrs. Herbert P. Fales, president of the league, in taupe sheer wool accented with black velvet collar and buttons, presided and introduced the speaker. Also seated at the head table were other officers: Mrs. Alexander Guyol, first vice vice president, a saffron felt hat topping her heather tweeds; Mrs. George McGhee, second vice president, wearing reseda green and gray felt hat swathed in veil; Mrs. Pierre Bauregard, secretary, sat at one end of the table and Mrs. Robert Reeside at the other.

Mrs. Charles Runyon, last year's president, now regional director and league representative of the department of psychiatry of Children's Hospital, had an honor seat and next to her sat Mrs. Richard Marsh, placement chairman, with Mrs. David Austen, education committee chairman, in bottle green, down the line.

Responsibilities Outlined

WHERE does individual responsibility stop, where does community service begin? Is the community accepting too much responsibility for what is happening to the individual or the individual family? Mr. Kruse asked. "Is 15 billion dollars too much for national defense? Then, is five billion too much for education; two billion too much to feed, house and clothe the Nation's needy, or four billion too much for the dependent and the sick?"

These are some of the questions the speaker put to his audience. The answers of course are obvious. But he went on to say that we have preserved our democratic way of life by accepting certain basic responsibilities.:

1. Providing income for those who are unable to provide for themselves.
2. Providing services to maintain the well-being of the family.
3. Assuming the task of protecting and helping underprivileged children, of whom there are 5000 in the District.
4. Providing for the prevention and treatment of mental and physical illness.

Last year 250,000 individuals in Washington were helped. This year, with the same problem, the cost will be 25 million dollars, said Mr. Kruse.

Emphasizes Self-Help

WITH the program 10 minutes behind schedule, Mrs. Fales laughingly gave the speaker the choice of eating his lemon ice, or cutting short his speech. He ate his dessert. But he ended on the note that it is the responsibility of the community to see that those who are able to help themselves should be given the opportunity to do so, regardless of race, color or creed.

As a finale to the luncheon hour, Junior Leaguers paraded with posters and exhibits symbolizing the activities of the 311 volunteers working in the Washington area. Led by the Marionettes, there were the Children's Hospital volunteers, with a doll in a wheel chair; the Community Arts Survey; the Department of Psychiatry; Education, House of Mercy, News Letter, the Outgrown Shop with models showing what you can buy at the shop; D. C. Heart Association; Planned Parenthood; Provisionals; Red Cross; Suburban Hospital, and Television.

The act that brought down the house was Mrs. Harrison Brand 3d with her children, bearing the placard "10 per cent of league members engaged in reproduction."

Ambassador Murphy Honored at Luncheon

MAJ. GEN. U. S. GRANT 3d, vice president of George Washington University entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Cosmos Club in honor of Robert D. Murphy, Ambassador to Belgium and 1949 recipient of the university's alumni achievement award.

Snyder Urges 'Town Halls' for World Peace; Kem Scores Socialist Trend Here and Abroad

By Genevieve Reynolds and Nicha Soure

SECRETARY OF THE Treasury John Snyder yesterday advocated more "Town Hall Meetings for America and for the world." He made his proposal in a luncheon address at the Washington homecoming luncheon for members of the World Town Hall Seminar held at the Washington Hotel.

His was one of several suggestions on "How Can America Contribute to a Free World." Last night five members of the World Town Hall Seminar who visited 12 world capitals gave their ideas on the subject on a Nation-wide broadcast held at the Departmental Auditorium. Those participating were Brooks Emeny, president of the Foreign Policy Association; Dean Althea K. Hottel, president, American Association of University Women; Chester S. Williams, director of the World Town Hall; George H. Wilson, president, American Farm Bureau Federation, and George V. Denny, jr., moderator.

One of the best contributions America ca make to international understanding is the encouragement of the free exchange and discussion of ideas among all peoples, according to the Secretary of the Treasury.

"The institution of the town meeting is a deep-rooted American tradition," he told some 200 leaders of organizations and Government officials. "If we could expand it to world-wide proportions, many of the existing reasons for international anxiety and fear would vanish."

Dean Hottel termed the conflict between the Arabs and Jews the Number One problem of the Middle East. She pointed out that regardless of the merits of creating a free Jewish State, the Arabs resented its rapid recognition.

"A few years ago we were looked upon as the only foreign power whose motives were not purely selfish," she said. "But in no other part of the world does the United States stand in greater disrepute and condemnation than in the Middle East today."

Williams observed that while Europeans may be dangerously slow in uniting to make the best of Marshall Plan aid, the United States cannot withdraw into an isolationist shell. He pointed out that we can't win our bet on Europe unless the idea of a United States of Europe comes alive quickly.

America can contribute to a free world by practicing all the ideals of democracy in America, Wilson asserted. He said the United States could help further by fostering the development abroad of effective agricultural research and extension services, including work among youthful elements.

Threats to freedom are acute in Asia, observed Mr. Emeny. "It is in this area of the globe that the final verdict as to whether we shall have a free world will be determined," he declared.

GOP Women Hear Kem

SENATOR JAMES P. KEM last night called upon the women of the Nation to drive "Pendergastism from power in Washington."

He told the League of Republican Women of the District of Columbia that women played an important part in breaking up the "Pendergast-Truman machine" in Kansas City.

"Women of the country must get out their brooms and be prepared to do their share in the cause of good government," he asserted.

The Republican Senator from Missouri said women should have a larger share in the fiscal affairs of our national Government. "If they did, we would not be facing a national debt of 258 billion dollars and a current deficit of over 7 billion dollars," he declared, adding, "women as housekeepers know a lot about budgets."

According to Senator Kem, the United States is abetting England in furthering socialism by supplying "the economic soothing syrup." "If I had my way there will be no more American dollars to finance European socialism," he averred.

Congress should protect the American taxpayer so that our money cannot be used "by Socialist governments in a way that is slowing down recovery in Europe" is his conviction. Putting it another way, he said, "It is time to stop coddling socialism, both abroad, and at home."

Senator Kem termed nationalized medicine and the Brannan farm plan steps toward socialization in this country.

Mrs. De Sola Pool Reports

THE WASHINGTON area Hadassah groups gathered last evening at the Jewish Community Center to hear Mrs. Tamar de Sola Pool give a first-hand report on the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School in Jerusalem.

Mrs. de Sola Pool, who is chairman of the Medical School Building Committee of Hadassah and four times national president of Hadassah, told of the highlights of her recent trip to Israel.

The Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School opened May 15 in temporary quarters to enable veterans of the Israeli Army, both men and women, to complete their medical education, Mrs. de Sola Pool said.

All the students in the first class, she explained, had completed their premedical education in European colleges and universities and had entered upon medical studies there when the war broke out in Israel, their homeland.

"Four years from now," Mrs. de Sola Pool said, "these students will hang our their shingles with an M.D., from the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School. Some will deal with the sick, others with the healthy. Public health and disease prevention will keep them busier than bedside practice."

The program of the evening included a group of Israeli songs presented by the combined choral sections of the Aviva and Kelitah groups of the Business and Professional Division of Hadassah, under the leadership of Miss Edith La Porte and Mrs. Sidney Weiss.

WOULD YOU like to have some good homemade candy and preserves?

Then meander over to the Harvest Festival of the Parish Aid Society of historic Christ Episcopal Church in Alexandria today. You'll find homemade foods and preserves at the Pantry Shelf, cakes and pies at another booth and, of course, homemade candy.

You can solve your Christmas problem early by dropping by the booth selling aprons, tea towels and potholders. Not too far away Mrs. Louise Browning will be cutting silhouettes. There will be movies for the young people, too.

Shoppers will have a chance to sit awhile at the Harvest Tea Table and chat with friends over a cup of coffee or tea.

Arlington BPW Holds Banquet

ABOUT 100 members and guests of the Arlington Business and Professional Women's Club met for the twentieth annual public affairs banquet in the George Mason Hotel last night.

Guest speaker was Shane MacCarthy, chairman of the Current Affairs Committee of the Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus.

We take freedom and democracy too much for granted, Mr. MacCarthy said. He suggested two ways to jolt America's complacency. He advocates preparing the youth of this country to be more aware of the militant type of life into which they are being graduated; and he wants adults to learn more about totalitarianism. "It's not a threat of the future," he said, "but an actual present existing danger."

If You Know U. S. History, You Won't Be Troubled by This Mannix Walker Quiz

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

MANNIX WALKER, a many faceted and humorous intellectual, has just delivered the third in his series of Tuesday night lectures on American history. The lectures, which are given in Mrs. William McCornick's house at 1504 26th st. nw., are as entertaining as instructive, structive, Mr. Walker sparing no body blows, making the listener feel like an actual participant as he skilfully unfolds our national drama.

Remembering the terrible scandal at Yale, when, during a quiz on American history, several students were unable to identify Lincoln, —and feeling a few guilty twinges about our own abysmal ignorance—we asked Mr. Walker to make up a 10-question quiz. The questions, none of them supposedly too difficult for the average student, we think are most entertaining. They'll be answered in tomorrow's column.

Here they are:

1. What was the XYZ affair? Who were Messrs. X, Y and Z?

2. In allotting representation in the Lower House on the basis of population, were slaves counted as people or not?

3. On what occasion who said "Don't give up the ship—blow her up?"

4. Who was the Union commander at Gettysburg?

5. Who identified the Democratic Party as that of "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion?"

6. Who lost the Presidency because he failed to contradict the above remark quickly enough?

Salute to Rescue Squad

HAVE you heard about the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad, Inc.? It was organized four years ago by a group of returning veterans to meet an urgent need for organized ambulance and rescue service in those areas. There are 42 active members, all qualified to administer first aid. Each of them is assigned to 7 p. m. until 7 a. m. duty at least once a week.

Their paraphernalia includes just about every imaginable rescue item from an asbestos suit to a portable iron lung, the latter installed in one of the squad's two Cadillac ambulances. They have a truck, too, which is equipped with the latest gadgets for auto wrecks.

All three vehicles carry two-way radios, there's an operator on 24-hour duty and when an emergency arises just dial WH 1000. The service is free though those able to pay make a contribution. In 1948 the squad answered 912 calls which ranged from emergency transports of parturitive ladies, heart attacks and strokes to road accidents, explosions and cave-ins. The "rescuers," now headed by "Les" Thompson, range in age from 18 to 36. Some joined because a person close to them was assisted by the squad. A young electrician volunteered because his father's life could have been saved if he'd been able to obtain a pulmotor promptly.

Their activities are governed by a board of directors made up of ten Bethesda and Chevy Chase businessmen. Since the squad depends entirely on voluntary contributions for its support they raise money by various means, a spring carnival in April, sale of Christmas trees, miscellaneous contributions and a fall door-to-door drive which is now in progress. They're trying to raise $15,000 for general servicing of equipment and for the purchase of a third ambulance—this one to be equipped with hot and cold running water.

The Greenbrier look....

A look you recognize instantly—the look of the woman who selects her clothes in our Greenbrier Sports Shop. You'll see her at the smart hunts across the countryside of Maryland and Virginia. You'll see her wearing our wonderful separates, combining them with a sure knowledge of color and line.

You'll meet her in a Brigance, a Claire McCardell, a Toni Owen, a McMullen, Wragge, or a soft-as-down Izod of London tweed. You'll know her by her soft, imported cashmeres—she buys them in many colors to wear with beloved skirts and suits.

She's a woman at home in the country, in a town house, or office. In the country, she chooses clothes with a careful, casual look. In town, she wears our faultlessly cut classics for daytime. For "little dinners," she likes to assemble dinner costumes in Clare Potter's delightful color combinations.

You might find her at Warrenton, in Chevy Chase or the Embassy in London. (Our Greenbrier classics are to be found in embassies and legations around the world.)

She is the woman who knows the wonderful values of Greenbrier—who knows the thought given to fabric, to cut, to weave, to color in our selections.

And once she has become a Greenbrier enthusiast, there is no other shop anywhere else for her.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman Who Has Been Unhappily Married Once Ponders Advisability of Marrying a Man Who Is Younger Than She; Would Age Blight Love?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am very anxious to hear from you, for my decision shall be according to your advice. I am 31 years old and I am going with a man who is four years younger. Although we are very much in love and get along wonderfully, the difference in ages weighs heavily on my mind.

I have always heard it said that a woman ages much faster than a man; and I wouldn't ever want Dan to be ashamed of me, or to have his family or friends say that I look too old for him. This line of thought keeps me very worried, but still I hate to think of giving up Dan because of it.

I was unhappily married once and so was Dan; and if we marry again we want it to last and be successful, and do you think that is possible if we marry each other? I have a daughter 6 years old and Dan gets along very nicely with her. Whatever you advise, that I will do; and I thank you for a prompt reply. L. V.

Attitude Points to Chronic Fear

DEAR L. V.: Your insistence upon wanting to put me in a position of leading you by the nose at this crossroad suggests that you are a childish dependent personality and tremendously anxious about everything,—and that your defensive concern about your looks, as compared to Dan's in years to come, is merely one symptom of a chronic anxiety neurosis that always expects the worst.

Perhaps life has been for you a pretty cheerless experience thus far, without much if any warm affection or social help or economic security forthcoming from your family. And it may be that unconsciously you expect failure to crown any attempts on your part to establish a "tender and true" relationship with another human being,—and this habit of inner discouragement may have become more fixated since your marriage turned out badly.

Psychologists observe that persons who worry intensively about their looks as age begins to show, on the theory that signs of age will blight their love-life or hopes of same, are persons who weren't sufficiently loved in their earliest years, but were made to feel on sufferance, not cherished for their own sake; and who never imbibed directly from a significant relationship the conviction that intrinsically they are loveworthy.

Anxiety Neurosis Weighs Her Down

AS FOR your hearsay notion that women age faster than men, I asked a spokesman for an insurance company what figures might be found to sustain or disprove the idea. He replied that gradually since 1900, at least in America, women are living longer than men; and that on the average at the present time, they outlast men by about five years.

In other words, it is men who age faster nowadays; that is, if they are trying to hold their own or advance a bit in the typically American scramble for prosperity. The insurance man said it is the stress, strain, tension and pressure of business competition and desire for success, which allows the average man's nervous system no real rest, that is shortening his life (as compared to women's lengthening span) in our turbulent century.

Out of respect for your urgent appeal I have done my best to make some sense of your sketchy letter and to shed some light on the uneasiness which drove you to write it; and I hope I have turned your attention to the perennial problem, namely your anxiety neurosis, which stands in the way of solid happiness, whether you marry Dan or someone else. For advice: to get this problem out of the way, you need first-hand counsel to dig with you into personal history not told here. And until that is done, there's no telling how you would fare in second marriage on a risk basis.
M. H.

About Taffy Apple Recipe

For some time I have been trying to locate a taffy apple recipe and directions for coating the apples, and also the caramel coating used on apples in the same manner. Could you please help me, or advise me where the recipes may be found? A. N. B.

TAFFY APPLES

2 cups sugar
½ cup water
⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vinegar
½ cup cream
Apples.

Wash apples and dry completely. Stick on wooden skewers. Combine the sugar and water in a large saucepan and bring slowly to boiling point, stirring just until sugar is dissolved. Add cream of tartar, butter, vinegar, and cream; cook, stirring constantly, to soft crack stage (290 degrees F.). Remove from fire and dip each apple, impaled on a skewer, into syrup. Place on buttered platter to harden.

Caramel Coating

For caramel apples use one cup brown sugar and one cup granulated sugar instead of the two cups granulated sugar in recipe above.

I have a reddish oak record cabinet that I would like to refinish to match the rest of our limed oak living room furniture. It there any satisfactory home method that would resemble a professional manufacturers finish? Is household bleach a satisfactory bleach to use on the wood after the present finish has been removed with paint and varnish remover? What type of white paint should be used to get the limed effect? Should I use shellac or varnish, then a hard wax or regular furniture oil? I would like a dull, satiny finish. W. G. S.

There is a home method for giving the limed oak finish to wood which is quite satisfactory. However, to get a finish which matches the rest of the wood in your room I suggest you experiment with the process on an inconspicuous part of the cabinet before applying it to the entire surface.

Here's how you go about it: Remove the present finish by using a good commercial paint and varnish remover. When the finish is completely gone you will find the raw wood is very much lighter—in fact, it may be light enough so that no bleaching is necessary.

If not light enough, I would suggest using a commercial wood bleach rather than a household bleach. Follow directions for applying which come with the bleach you buy.

When bleached, sand the surface smooth and wipe up loose dust with turpentine on a cloth. Now, apply a coat of flat white paint to the bare wood and wipe it off almost immediately to leave the paint only in the pores of the wood. Allow to dry thoroughly for a day or two and sand smooth.

To get a dull satiny finish with the least effort, I suggest you apply a dull drying varnish to the surface after sanding. This varnish can be bought at most paint stores and when dried gives the wood a soft finish which used to be possible only by long rubbing with powdered pumice and oil. If you wish, when completely dry the surface may be waxed with paste wax or furniture oil applied.

FCC to Test Color Video Sets Itself

Independent Government tests for all of the currently proposed color television systems were ordered yesterday by the Federal Communications Commission.

FCC Chairman Wayne Coy, who made the announcement, made it clear that the objective is to put the equipment through its paces outside the hands of the scientists who have demonstrated and explained the various methods to the commission during the last four weeks.

The Government testing will be done by the commission's own technical staff in the FCC laboratories at Laurel, Md. It will be designed to help the commission in deciding whether color video is ripe for the general public.

Told to Place Receivers

Columbia Broadcasting System, Radio Corporation of America, and Color Television Inc. of San Francisco, all sponsoring different systems, were directed to place their proposed receiver models in the hands of the Government technicians by next week.

Coy explained at the color hearings:

"You people have been talking about what your various systems will do and all we know is what you have to say about them. We want the opportunity to test them ourselves in the FCC laboratories."

The companies were instructed to notify FCC by next Monday when the equipment can be delivered to Laurel. Coy said that if the receivers cannot be there by October 27, FCC will require an explanation.

Only One Built Month Ago

Earlier Coy had asked George E. Sleeper, jr., who developed the CTI color plan, how many receivers his company has built.

Sleeper said one complete model had been assembled when he left the West Coast a month ago, but that other equipment was in process of construction.

Sleeper, explaining technical detail of his system, said yesterday it would fit into color network operations because its signals would go through the coaxial cables, which are the backbone of intercity television connections.

The FCC will go to the West Coast next month to see the CTI system operated in the hands of its designers.

Jerusalem Cross Here on World Tour

The Jerusalem Cross, containing what is said to be a fragment of the cross on which Christ was crucified, arrived here last night for a six-day stay.

Flown here from Detroit, the 10-foot wooden cross is on a world tour which began last Good Friday when it was borne along the original way of the cross in Jerusalem.

It was blessed by Pope Pius XII in May and sent on the world tour as a plea for restoration of the holy places in Palestine, mercy for refugees of the war in the Holy Land and "to show the world there will be no peace on earth without the cross."

At Catholic University

This morning the cross will be placed in the crypt at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at the Catholic University. It may be seen there from noon to 9 p. m. today, from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and beginning at 7 a. m. Sunday.

On Sunday at 8 p. m. prayers for world peace and peace in the Holy Land will be offered in the crypt and benediction of the most blessed sacrament will be celebrated. The Rev. Thomas Becquet, Benedictine monk from Chevetogne, Belgium, who is accompanying the cross on its tour, will tell the story of the cross. It will leave here Monday morning.

Seen by Thousands

Thousands of persons have seen the cross on its tour through Syria, Italy, France, Belgium and England. Before arriving in the United States, it was shown in Canada, where more than 6000 persons are reported to have accompanied it on foot the 21 miles from Quebec city to the Shrine of Saint Anne de Beaupre. After a tour of Catholic centers in the United States, the cross will be taken to South America and Australia, before being returned to the Holy Land.

Senate Refuses Back Salaries for Straus and Boke

By the United Press

The Senate yesterday refused to vote back pay for Reclamation Commissioner Michael Straus and California Regional Director Richard L. Boke.

Accepting the recommendation of its Appropriations Committee, the Senate aproved an amendment to a House appropriation bill which would withhold $8,581.68 from the two officials. If the proviso is approved by the House, they would have to sue to collect.

Straus and Boke were removed from the Federal payroll early last year under a "rider" to an Interior Department appropriation bill which specified that their jobs must be filled by qualified engineers.

They did not begin receiving pay until the start of the new fiscal year on July 1, when the rider expired.

Result of X-Ray Exams

Fewer than 150 persons of 6089 who took chest X-ray examinations recently at the Alexandria Health Department will be asked to undergo further tests, Health Officer T. F. McGough announced yesterday.

Bear's Return Makes Little Wolfe Happy

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
JUDY WOLFE
She cuddles Jimmie

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 18 (UP).—Jimmie, a bedraggled teddy bear with delusions of reality, was back from the land of real bears today.

His mistress, 6-year-old Judy Wolfe, scolded and hugged her runaway bear, not caring that he is coming apart at the seams.

Judy and Jimmie were parted last summer during a vacation in the Canadian Rockies. Somehow he got lost among the real bears.

When Judy got home, she began worrying about him, all alone in the mountains. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wolfe, bought her new ones. But none would do but Jimmie, her companion for five of her six years, Many nights she cried herself to sleep.

In desperation, her father wrote to Harry Rogan, travel manager of the Michigan Auto Club. Rogan notified auto clubs throughout the West to be on the lookout for a soggy-eared teddy bear, about 10 inches long.

It took quite a while, but yesterday E. J. Budde of the Denver Auto Club, showed up at the Wolfe home. In his hand was a bedraggled teddy bear, thinner from his escapade, because a little more stuffing had leaked out.

But Judy didn't care. Her runaway bear was home.

Constitution Hall Filled For Opener

By Paul Hume

Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra opened the Constitutional Hall season last night.

A full house greeted the Philadelphians as they began their customary eight-concert series. Ormandy chose a traditional program for his premiere; Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, and Arnold Schonberg. If your eyebrow goes up at the name of Schonberg in a list of "traditional" composers, relax. The 75-year-old composer's Transfigured Night is pure "Tristan" and shocks no one these days.

Beethoven was added to the scheduled list in order to honor the memory of the late Hans Kindler, former first cellist of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and its guest conductor last January. Playing what he described as "gay music for a gay spirit," Ormandy presented the allegretto movement from Beethoven's seventh symphony in respect to the founder and conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra.

High point of the evening was the Transfigured Night. It has long been associated with Ormandy in this country through his great recording of the music made with the Minneapolis Symphony nearly 15 years ago.

Ormandy knows every nuance of this purple tone poem. He commands the intricate string parts with ease and absolute fidelity to the composer's score. After the tumult of the early passages died away, the repose of the final sections was miraculously peaceful. The orchestra's concertmaster, Alexander Hilsberg, as well as the other first string players, served poetically throughout the score.

Brahms' second symphony closed the program, bringing shouts of approval. These were appropriate for the over-all conception of this warm-hearted composition. The tone and style of the Philadelphia men and women is felicitous in this score. Tempos were happy, if a little deliberate, although several retards not indicated in the score tended to hold back the last two movements unduly.

It can be proven unquestionably that Bach would not play his D Minor Toccata and Fugue as Ormandy does in transcription, even if the old man were alive today. But Ormandy's public seems to like it in spite of its horrors. We can only hope we have had our transcription for the year from Philadelphia.

ON 14TH ST. at T, in the large square room called Club Bali, Billie Holiday sings. She is fourth in a succession of stars Bennie Caldwell has booked in since he reopened in September. First was Charlie Ventura, then Cab Calloway, and Roy Kral. Billie closes tomorrow night, and Sarah Vaughn opens Friday for a week. So far Billie is the most dramatic.

Billie Holiday

She's a large woman—plump to overflowing. Her features are regular, and there's a singular kind of repose about them: Billie is earthy, but with complete good grace. More factual than suggestive, still she's got a wallop that has the bar sitters, around her in a semi-circle at her feet, supplying a chorus of adulation.

But her gift is in the illusion she instills in listeners. "Let Her Go, Joe," becomes a man, Billie and another girl. While she's singing you feel each of the three personalities.

BROUGHT back to the Cross Roads last night was Impressionist Sonny Howard. So impressed with him is Owner Irv Wolff that he called in a special line of chorus girls, the Ann Connor Debs, to make it a very special show.

Sonny satirizes the style and mannerisms of such personalities as Tony Martin and Frankie Lane. He emphasizes accents—Lane's drawl, Martin's boudoir phrasing and Nellie Lutcher's honey-coated tones are part of the 33 personalities he rakes over the coals.

Also with Sonny is Joyce Aimee, a singer well known in Washington, and Alice King in a dancing act.

NEW YORK. — Mrs. Robert Murphy, wife of the former political adviser in Germany, her daughter and two daughters of Joseph P. Kennedy, were detained for five hours in the Soviet sector of Berlin. Wandering there, they asked a Red soldier to pose and when he saw their camera he immediately took them to a place of detention. They were released as soon as their identities were established . . . Former Gov. Ellis Arnall, now head of the Independent Film Producers organization, said last week that he will campaign for the governorship of Georgia next year . . . Bernard Baruch, who used to wear striped trousers on Sundays, now wears black zipper suits, tailored like Churchill's in London, and hopes to make them popular here.

Elliott Roosevelt is writing to his father's friends for copies of any letters they may have received from the late President. He wants these letters for his next book . . . Mr. and Mrs. James Mason are making a 16 mm. commercial movie, using 7000 feet of film, about their infant daughter, Portland . . . The Masons, incidentally, who had an unlisted phone number, now have one listed under the name of their maid, Violet. She had threatened to quit unless she had a listed phone number, in case "Stop the Music" should call.

Chester Erskine, who has been in Hollywood for many years, recently gave some table silver to newlyweds. "I have learned," he said, "that in this place you should always give a wedding present which can be divided in two" . . . Last week Governor Bowles of Connecticut again offered to appoint his former partner, Bill Benton, to the United States Senatorship from Connecticut . . . Mrs. Bobo Rockefeller, who was the last passenger to leave the Queen Mary, was told by the officials who examined her passport: "This hasn't been signed by you. It's not good until you sign it." And so Mrs. Rockefeller, who had traveled all over Europe with it, signed the passport at the dock.

Artur Rubinstein no longer checks into the Waldorf because a lady next door phoned him during his noonday piano practice and complained: "Please stop. My dog is sick and the piano disturbs him" . . . Dr. Clifford Loos, head of the Ross-Loos Clinic in Los Angeles, for years had to fight the Western medical associations which objected to the low-cost system he had introduced. Now, with the threat of a Government-sponsored health program, Los Angeles' doctors probably will elect Dr. Loos as head of their medical association.

Boys Club Camp For Negroes Plans Opening for 1950

The $41,000 summer camp for Negro boys of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club will be ready for next summer, Robert C. Simmons, president of the board of directors announced yesterday after an inspection tour.

The new camp, which includes 14 cabins and will handle 1600 boys a summer, is in Scotland, Md., near Camp Ernest E. Brown, which the club operates for white boys.

Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett, Assistant Superintendent Floyd Truscott, Max Farrington, executive director of the club; Leonard P. Walsh, chairman of the building committee, and Lieut. Forrest L. Binswanger, camp director, accompanied Simmons on the tour.

Rep. Stanley Asks Less Dependence On Washington

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Thomas B. Stanley, Fifth District Congressman, today called for greater action on the community level and less dependence upon Washington.

"The responsibility of my home town and your home town is the responsibility of the people themselves, because they know their area best," he told 250 women at a luncheon of the First (Southwest) District of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs in Hotel Roanoke.

Mrs. O. Hoge Hopkins, Marion, was elected president at an afternoon business session; Mrs. Harry E. Dixon, Roanoke, vice president, and Mrs. Henry Johnson, jr., Pearisburg, secretary-treasurer.

The Family Scrapbook

That Hurt Look

"I wish she'd scold me outright if I've done something wrong rather than go around with that hurt, disgusted look."

James, jr., is speaking for himself and for many other youngsters. When parents sulk, and that's really what it is, when they make their youngsters feel that they've been terribly hurt and disappointed, the result isn't likely to be very good.

I've known parents—only a few, fortunately — who have shown their displeasure with children by refusing to speak to them for long periods of time.

It's hard on children to live with this sort of thing. The burden of feeling that mother or father continues to be "hurt" is more than they should be expected to carry. It's much healthier for them to be reprimanded—if they need it—or corrected in other ways, and have it over and done with. No one likes to be around a person who holds a grudge. In a very real sense, that's what carrying a hurt look or maintaining an aloof silence amounts to.

What's the Verdict?

LANDLORD RESPONSIBILITY

Q. Mrs. F. was a tenant in an apartment house. After a time she had trouble with the electric light switches in one of the rooms, and notified the landlord. He sent an electrician, who worked on the switch, but trouble continued, to the extent that sometimes flicking the switch would cause sparks. Mrs. F. told the landlord this, but no further repair attempt was made. One day in answering the phone, Mrs. F. leaned against the switch, was shocked, and fell, suffering injury. She sues the landlord, who denies responsibility. Is he justified?

A. One person ordinarily is not responsible for injury to another unless the injury is due to his carelessness; and when one rents real estate from another, he is responsible for the equipment during tenancy. But a landlord who keeps control over part of an apartment house is required to use reasonable care for the safety of the parts he controls. This includes the plumbing and heating and electrical systems. A jury could reasonably find that, having once unsuccessfully tried to repair the switch, the landlord, in failing to do anything about it upon further notice, did not use "reasonable care." It could therefore find him liable for Mrs. F.'s injury.—F.L.D.

Radio Is Still a Mighty Live 'Corpse'

With more television stations than ever carrying the World Series, and more TV receivers than ever tuned in, the statisticians announce that more people than ever listened to the series on regular AM radio sets, too.

Television may be killing radio, but it seems to be a rather slow death.

PERSONAL NOTES

Mary Jo Watson, 8206 New Hampshire ave., Silver Spring, Md.: You're right. Many dictionaries do list "loveable" as a variant of "lovable," but I think the latter spelling is predominant. Except among my correspondents.

SPEAKING OF PUNS:

Robert Forward of 904 Highland dr., Silver Spring, Md., explains the origin of an old proverb like this:

"Old Number 9 was speeding down the rails one day when an alert switchman saw another train approaching from the opposite direction.

"The switchman turned the other train aside, and from that day on was convinced that a switch in time saves 9."

MISCELLANY

Local-boy-comes-home-to-make-good note: Tom Wade, former WINX newscaster, has been appointed news director of WCYB in his home town of Bristol, on the Virginia-Tennessee border. Tom's many friends can contact him there . . . Speaking of radio station call letters, Mrs. Martin Cooley of 1019 Woodside pkwy., Silver Spring, Md., notes that the Yankee baseball games are broadcast over WINS—and wonders whether that had anything to do with their success . . . And on an allied subject, Marie Temple says: "It's certainly a pleasure to listen to Ray Morgan's football broadcasts. Quite an improvement over the summer baseball duo" . . . Permit me to disagree. I think Washington is fortunate to have the excellent team of Arch McDonald and Bob Wolff on the baseball games, and even pinch-hitter Howie Williams does a good job. Arch has been a top-rank baseball announcer for years, and I'll predict it won't be too long before Wolff also gains national recognition. The one thing he does that drives me to distraction is that he insists on referring to himself as "we" while on the air . . . George H. Miller of 502 Four Mile rd., Alexandria, Va., reminds legal residents of New Haven, Conn., that they should write at once for absentee ballots for the November 8 municipal election. Address: Town Clerk, New Haven, Conn. . . . Third annual fashion show of Temple B'nai Jacob will be held at the Lafayette Hotel Thursday at 8:30 p. m., with J. Jeff's providing the latest styles. Rose Berg of 3907 Q st. se. (Victor 3907) has additional information . . . Next feature on the Family Movie Night series sponsored by the Trinity Men's Club will be "The Howards of Virginia," with Cary Grant and Martha Scott. The time is 8 p. m. Friday, the place is the auditorium of the Trinity Lutheran School, 38th and Longfellow sts., Hyattsville, Md. . . . The current edition of "The Falkland Times" keeps the corn popping with youthful gusto. When one tailor asks, "How can you make pants last?" the other replies: "By making the coat and vest first."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Out-of-town relatives who visited us recently were "taken" by the cab drivers who drove them to our apartment, which is in the third zone.

My aunt, first to arrive, paid $1. An uncle and aunt who followed were charged $1.40. And my parents were soaked $2.

Inasmuch as they all tipped generously, you can imagine their disgust when they learned that the fare to a third zone address should be 70 cents for one person and 80 cents for two.

A. Matthews,
326 Ridge rd. se.

Dear Mr. Matthews:

I know how you feel. I live in the same zone, and paid $1.75 for my first trip out from the depot.

Harry C. Davis, manager of Diamond Cab (which has the concession at Union Station) says that complaints about overcharges are very rare, and average no more than one per week.

However, it might be well for District Liners who expect out-of-town guests to advise them in advance regarding the proper fare. Our rates are relatively cheap in the District, and therefore constitute an open invitation for chiseling.

Most visitors are prepared to pay $2 for a 5-mile taxi ride, and no questions asked. They don't realize that our local hackers make up in volume what they miss in high prices.

SPEED TRAPS AGAIN

"Speaking of speed traps," writes Robert Reynolds of 1716 21st st. nw., "I can't resist telling you about two more.

"On N st. nw., between New Hampshire and 20th st., you'll usually find two motorcycle policemen watching the stop sign late in the evening, and waiting with their lights off for the kill. Another favorite spot is the parkway entrance opposite Walter Reed, on 16th st."

When reports like these are taken to high officials in the Police Department, the answer is:

"We tell our boys that we don't believe in speed traps, and that we want them to spend their time patrolling the streets—not hiding. And we always investigate reports which indicate that an officer is not doing his duty properly.

"However, it is unreasonable to expect a motorcycle man to spend eight solid hours patrolling. He's got to stop occasionally; and so long as he's not trying to lay a trap, or hide, we're certainly not going to criticize him for taking a short breather."

The question seems to be: When a man stops at the same spot with great frequency — without lights — is he resting or running a speed trap?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Admirals Running Handout Mill

By Drew Pearson

Last year, the Eightieth Congress investigated an Army propaganda mill which used taxpayers' money to sell the American public on military conscription, while Senator Byrd of Virginia also criticized any branch of the Government that issued a press handout publicizing its operation.

Burke

But today there operates backstage in the Navy a secret publicity bureau almost solely dedicated to smearing the Army and Air Force and disrupting unification.

The publicity bureau is called "Operation 23" and it consists of 12 officers and 17 enlisted men, all on regular duty and officially assigned to this detail. The detail is commanded by a full-fledged naval captain, Arleigh Burke, with Comdr. Thomas Davies, second in command.

This underground unit takes orders chiefly from Admiral Arthur Radford, outspoken critic of the B-36.

Significantly, Operation 23 has been flooding newspapers with anti-Army propaganda at the same time an official naval board has been investigating another Navy smear—the secret memo which claimed that Secretaries Symington and Johnson ordered the B-36 because of personal or monetary gain.

This vicious myth, now completely exploded, was written by Cedric Worth, a civilian naval employe—or at least he assumed responsibility. Worth, it now develops, was a part of Operation 23. And even before the board of admirals had finished its investigation of the Worth smear, more propaganda began flooding the newspapers—some of it sent through the medium of Naval Reserve Capt. James Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner.

Note—One member of Operation 23 is Lieut. Sam Ingram, a Naval Reservist. Ingram reported for two weeks' active duty one year ago, wrote Admiral Radford a letter castigating the Air Force, got a call from Radford to drop in for a personal visit. The visit lasted two hours, and Lieutenant Ingram has been on permanent duty turning out cartoons and charts against the Air Force ever since.

Big Business' New Partner

In the battle to restore the basing-point system, big business has had a unique partner—Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming, the famous trust-buster.

No one could believe that O'Mahoney would come out on the side of the big trusts. Hence, many liberals were lulled to sleep by the fact that O'Mahoney introduced the basing-point bill.

In the eyes of big business, this is the most important bill to come up this session of Congress. For it would amend the antitrust laws so that the steel industry, for example, could charge the same price for steel from the blast furnaces of Pittsburgh, Pa., or Geneva, Utah. This practice of regulating prices by absorbing the shipping costs was outlawed by the Supreme Court, so big business turned to Congress to overrule the court.

O'Mahoney made his bill sound so harmless that it almost passed the Senate without an objection. Only at the last minute, Senators Russell Long of Louisiana and Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, both Democrats, caught what was going on, and put up a fight against it.

O'Mahoney was sold a bill of goods by the Westvaco Chemical Co. of Westvaco, Wyo. This company has paraded as an independent which discovered large trona deposits in Wyoming and now hopes to build a new chemical business producing soda ash from natural trona.

Who's Fooling Whom?

The Senator from Wyoming wanted to emphasize the independence of the company when he brought Robert D. Pike, an engineer for Westvaco, to Washington to testify.

"This is an independent plant, is it not?" O'Mahoney asked about the Wyoming plant.

"Yes, sir; entirely so," nodded Pike.

"So that if and when established to develop the potentialities of this deposit it will be an independent competitive enterprise," O'Mahoney added.

"That is correct, Senator," agreed Pike.

Yet behind the legal red tape, the Westvaco Co. is not so independent. For the same record in which this testimony was printed, identifies Pike—in fine print—as representing the Westvaco Chemical Division of the Food Machinery & Chemical Corp. This turns out to be a Delaware corporation with tentacles all around the world.
